INTRODUCTION

»There is but little enmity against Satan and his works, because there is so great ignorance concerning his power and malice, and the vast extent of his warfare against Christ and His Church. Multitudes are deluded here. They do not know that their enemy is a mighty general, who controls the minds of evil Angels, and that with well-matured plans and skillfull movements, he is warring against Christ to prevent the salvation of souls. Among professed Christians, and even among ministers of the gospel, there is heard scarcely a reference to Satan, except perhaps an incidental mention in the pulpit. They overlook the evidences of his continual activity and success, they neglect the many warnings of his subtlety, they seem to ignore his very existence.«

Yes, many people do not know this... And they do not know it because I did not want them to know. Up until now, my work has been done in complete secrecy. I work best when people are not aware of my existence, my intentions and my actions. I have decided to change that. From now on, you will know about me.

Do you think that everything you have done and what you do now is a direct result of your thoughts and intentions? No, it is not. I manipulate with you. I misled you in almost every aspect of your life. You are filled with prejudices, and your priorities are twisted. I have imposed false life attitudes and beliefs on you. You are in complete darkness. I led you in disastrous pleasures and put distracting goals before you. My victory is even greater knowing that I have managed to do it all, leaving you in the belief that you are smart and wise, that you are free to do whatever you want, that you have the opportunity to enjoy life and that everything you have accomplished by now is the result of your creativity.

I am no longer interested in keeping you in darkness. I realized that I have humiliated mankind so much that even when you find out almost everything about me – that everything you do is, actually, a result of what I have imposed on you – you still will not have the strength to change anything.

I will go that far that you will – if you read carefully this book – see how to escape from my grasp, but your ego will be my ally once again, and will continue to keep you under my control.

Are you ready? Are you ready to meet the creature that is the cause of everything evil on Earth? Are you ready to realize that, even if you think that you do not have anything to do with me, you actually belong to and serve me? Are you ready to see that you decided yourself to allow me to rule your life? No? Nobody is ready for that. But the facts are such.

Do you think that you are protected from me because you are religious? Because you are a Christian? A good Christian? Do you think that I can not manipulate you because you are not religious? Because you do not believe in the Creator? Because you do not believe that I exist?

Start reading and find out how I tricked you in so many ways. Find out where and when you chose to come to my side and under my influence. I will show you all the paths of misery where I have led you. Miserable ways that you call »life«. You will realize that the problems you have are not the result of some random coincidences, but the result of my very careful and calculated plan.

You think this is funny? Just keep on reading, and I promise you that I will be the one who will have the last laugh.

At the end of this book. And at the end of your life.

The first part of this book follows the chronology of the Bible. If you have not read the Bible, all the better for me.

The second part of this book is the one where you play the main role... Under my direction, of course.

THE MOST PERFECT CREATURE

I came forth from the Creator's hands as the most marvelously designed creature that had ever existed. Wisdom, beauty, abilities and skills given me during my creation excelled those of all the other created beings. Other creatures admired me for my position. I was given the greatest possible role a created creature could have — a Cherub. The Cherubim are the highest order of Angels who are in the immediate vicinity of the Creator. I enjoyed observing how other creatures loved me. I enjoyed showing them my beauty, my wisdom, my skills... But something was missing. Although everyone was thrilled to be in my presence, everyone loved me and joyfully did everything I told them to do, but there was not the same spark in their eyes as when they were watching the Creator and His Son.

A new feeling came over me. I did not know what to do and how to behave. All in all, I started to feel something that was the opposite of satisfaction, even though the harmony in the Universe was perfect. There was no word for this feeling at that time, so I called it "dis-satisfaction". I tried to figure out what I was missing, so that I could win over all the creatures completely, but I could not find any fault with myself — I was simply perfect. Was not that alone the reason enough to appreciate and respect me even more? I was looking at all those creatures and Angels gathered around the Creator's throne. I was wondering what He could offer them that I could not. What had He given them? Life, love, Law, harmony, beauty... Law?

Law. I thought of it as something that was limiting our freedom. How can we be happy if we are bounded by some rules and commandments? The Creator called it "The Law of Freedom". What kind of freedom was it if it required obedience to something? Before me, no one had ever thought this way, so I could not share my thoughts with anyone. I started to feel something that pushed me away from the immediacy of the Creator and His Son. They noticed that something was not right with me. They tried to talk with me about it, but I did not have anything to tell them, because even I did not know what was happening to me.

I decided to share my thoughts with those Angels who showed me greater appreciation. They were also confused. I tried to explain to them how we would have more freedom without the Law. Suddenly, I realized that this statement could be the foundation for what I wanted to achieve — the spark in their eyes when they look at me. I would become their liberator. I would set them free from the bondage of the Law.

I talked with other creatures, suggesting what I wanted each of them to conclude. Because of their trust and love for me — it was surprisingly easy.

I went a step further. To gain their approval even more, I started telling them things that were not true. It was so easy. Until then, nobody has ever heard someone not telling the truth, so no one expected it. Therefore, they believed everything I said. At first, it was strange and awkward telling them such an un-truth, but the results in achieving their sympathy towards me were stronger than my feeling of guilt. After all, I intended to explain later to them that it was a faster way to become free.

The Creator came to me and tried to explain where this kind of thinking and doing will lead me. He begged me to stop doing what I was doing and to return to where I was. But I did not let Him to brainwash me like the others. And I did not change my mind. Soon, He told me that I can no longer perform the duties I did up to that moment. It gave me another reason to show that His principles were not very fair, and that He was even trying to humiliate ME — the most perfect creature! One after another, new feelings flooded me. I could not name them, but they have taken me over completely. I was afraid where these feelings will take me, but I could not let the Angels — who I won over and who had been on my side — see even a glimpse of self-doubt on me — the mightiest Angel.

The more I persisted in doing what I was doing, the more I realized how powerless the Creator was to do anything to me. It is true that He is the Giver of Life and that He could take it from me, but I realized that He will not do that, because it would only prove that I am right. That encouraged me even more. I realized that He has limitations I do not. I decided to use that to my advantage.

We accused those, who warned us and did not want to join us, that they serve the Creator out of profit or out of fear, even though they had free will.

I have to admit, I was even a bit surprised by the Creator's reaction to what I was doing. Had I been in His place, I would immediately remove the one that spreads such discontent among my creatures. Others would then, perhaps, serve me out of fear, but, at least, I would make sure that there will not be any similar attempts in the future, because I would not let the riot escalate like the Creator did.

Instead of doing everything to stop me in my plan to become equal to Him, I heard that the Creator and His Son are planning to create one more planet and to fill it with all kinds of living beings, as well as a being in Their image, as the apex of the Creation.

That got me pretty excited. Except for removing me from my position, it seemed that He was ignoring me and that He behaves like I do not exist, as if everything that I am doing does not represent any threat to His Majesty whatsoever.

Another new feeling appeared. Today it is known as — anger.

CHAPTER 2

THE EARTH – MY PROPERTY

This was exactly what I needed: a new planet and its inhabitants in their first days. All the other worlds were already biased against me. I carefully observed what was going on. The Creator decided to fill the Earth, which was deserted, with life. I thought I could learn how to create life if I watch while the Creator does it. It was an incomprehensible experience. When the Creation was finished, I observed all those living beings, and none of them were similar to the Creator. I saw that the Son was forming something from the earthly dust, but I could not come closer. Then I saw Him giving life to what He previously formed — a beautiful being in His own image. Shortly afterwards, He caused a deep sleep to fall upon the being, and then He used the being's rib to form another being of the same kind, but of the opposite sex.

I thought to myself that if only I could get these beautiful beings on my side, my victory would be complete. But it was difficult to find a moment alone with them. I was disappointed when I heard that they have been warned about me and about what I was doing, so the chance of approaching them openly was out of question. I had to think of something else. It was very important to me to have someone created in the image of the Creator on my side.

I began to discover that my abilities could be used for things other than their original purpose. I realized that the creatures on Earth were of a lower order and that they had lesser abilities than we Angels had, so I tried to take advantage of that fact and use my abilities to win over these newly created beings.

I decided to use the snake – the most beautiful creature at that moment – as a medium. I realized that I could use the body and the mind of the snake to speak through it. I wondered if I could do the same with humans.

But the main question was: what motive I should use to approach them? What could I use to my advantage? Of course, it had to be something concerning the Law again. I realized that they have the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. The Creator placed the Tree there as the only obstacle, so that He could test the obedience of the created beings. Why would man be deprived of knowledge about what is good and what is evil? Is not that an advantage? How can we defend ourselves against something we know nothing about? What is evil anyway? Nobody ever heard of something like that up to that moment. Why would not we have the choice to find out what evil is? Are we not beings with free will that can make our own decisions?

If I had approached them directly, the prejudice they had concerning me would hinder my efforts. Even though I could see that He was sad when He was explaining to them what was going on, I was sure that they were being manipulated. I had to tell them my side.

Eve was alone. She seemed somewhat weaker and less decisive than Adam. I decided to approach her. While she was passing by me, I spoke to her. She suspected nothing. The snake's body was a perfect cover. I started the conversation by deliberately misleading her with the false information. Even though I knew exactly which Tree they were not allowed to eat from, I asked her if it was true that they are not allowed to eat fruits from any tree. She corrected me. She told me that they could eat from every tree except from the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil, otherwise they would die. Up to that moment, none of us had the courage to do that, so I decided to try it on her. Just to see what will happen. I told her that it is not true, that they will not die, but – on the contrary – they will become like gods who know the difference between good and evil. I asked her what could possibly be wrong with that. Would not that be another advantage, yet another addition to their perfection? The woman, in these perfect surroundings – filled with love and harmony – had never heard of something un-true. Her eyes gave her away. The expression of her face revealed her thoughts. She was looking at that beautiful fruit, she was thinking about it. Thinking that death did not really exist and that I was probably right. She approached the Tree and took the fruit. Nothing happened. She started eating it. Still nothing happened. Then Adam arrived. Seeing what Eve has done, he froze. He knew what was going to happen. I tried to enter his mind like I did with the snake, but I could not.

But I was able to suggest him what to do and what to feel. I tried to convince him that his life without Eve would be pointless and that he should share her fate. And I did it. Being fully aware of what he was doing, knowing what awaits him if he takes the fruit — he ate it.

In that very moment, the light that surrounded them — disappeared. At the same time, I realized that all the strength they had to resist me also disappeared. They still had the appearance similar to that of the Creator, but they lost the strength He granted them. They had the strength because of their obedience to the Creator and because of the connection with Him. They no longer were the master-piece of the Creation they have been when I first saw them. Now they were my like-minded people. We were on the same side. I now owned the entire newly created planet with all of its inhabitants. They were all under my control. I started to like humans and I felt that they needed me to protect them.

Soon afterwards, I heard the Creator coming. I did not want to leave. They were on my side now and it was my right to have them. I stayed in their presence so that I could help them to defend and justify themselves. After all, this was all new to them.

The Creator knew what they had done. He knew that there was nothing they could do to undo what they did. But I was right. They did not die even though He told them that they would. He asked Adam what he has done. I suggested to Adam that he blames Eve. She was very surprised to hear that. I suggested to her to blame the snake. That way, nobody was to blame, except the snake. The Creator, then, cursed the snake, He took away its legs and wings, and then He said something that confused me. The Creator said that He puts the enmity between the snake's offspring and Eve's. At first, I did not realize what that meant, but it turned out that He referred to me and my offspring — the people who serve me. I was furious when I realized that the mankind, despite their disobedience to the Creator, will still have the possibility to resist me. Mankind was not so attractive to me anymore. I saw how much the Creator cared about these pathetic beings.

But, when will they die? Why have not they died yet?

It turned out that my suspicion was right: the Creator was not telling the truth. He was not true to what He said. If He was, He should have taken their lives immediately. This way, it seemed to me that He changed His own Law, which was supposedly unchangeable, so that they could be spared.

But... What are they doing?

The Creator is showing to Adam what to do. Adam catches a lamb, slaughters it, peels its skin and does something strange, some kind of ritual... What does this mean? I had to see what will happen. The Creator explained to them that there is only one way to fix what they did. The Creator had to be just and merciful at the same time, but that was not possible because those two notions rule each other out. He then tells them that He Himself will pay the penalty for their sin — for the disobedience to the Law. He will die through His Son, so that mankind could live. He will be merciful and He will forgive them for their offence, but He will still be just and He will bear the punishment for their deeds — death. That is why they did not die instantly.

I could not believe what I was hearing. How can He – who claims to be immortal – die? Why would He even do something like that for a couple of wretches who did not even obey Him? Because of love...? I was already sick of that word, because it started to ruin all of my plans.

But I will not let that happen. This planet is MINE. They obey ME now. There is no possibility of return and forgiveness. Fortunately, humans did not die and they still had the access to the Tree of Life, whose fruits the Creator used to grant them immortality, and I can still use them and their descendents to achieve my goals: a kingdom with greater freedom. A kingdom without the Law, which will be more appreciated and respected than the Creator's. I watched as the Creator takes them out of the Garden of Eden. Why is He doing that? He then placed two Angels with the flaming swords so that people will not be able to live eternally in the state I brought them.

My disgust and hatred towards the Creator and mankind increased rapidly. Humans were too weak and too limited. I could not do anything useful with them. They could not fly, they could not communicate through thoughts, they could not change their shape, and they could not travel from one dimension to another... They were really useless and pathetic. And yet still, the Creator gave them the possibility to resist me, even though I am thousands of times more powerful and stronger than they are. He gave them His Force because they did not have anything in them which could stop me from doing whatever I want with them.

I had to hinder and to occupy mankind with everything that I could think of, so that they will not have the possibility to resist me. And to accomplish that, I had to separate them from the Creator as much as possible. After all, I was doing this for their own good. For their liberation from the Law. For their complete freedom.

THE BEGINNINGS OF MANKIND

The Creator was not intending to leave this planet to me even though I had supporters on it. To be honest, they were not on my side anymore, because they felt cheated. They repented, but nonetheless, their disobedience to the Creator made them rebels, as I am. I tried to get them to join me, but they remained persistent in their repentance, so receiving Force necessary to resist all of my efforts to get them back. Yet time was on my side. I heard when the Creator said that they will have the offspring. Their offspring is my chance.

I wanted this planet. I realized that I should try to convince people to do everything against the Law so that the Creator would leave them to me completely. The Creator can not reside where the Law does not exist, a place dominated by what He calls »sin«.

I began to study humans and their weaknesses. I had to find a way to distant them from the Creator's Law, but also to make them believe that they are enjoying it. I had to make them live free, to do what they consider right — to do what I consider right.

And then, the two sons were born, Cain and Abel. As soon as they have grown up a bit, I saw that Abel could cause a lot of trouble to me. He obeyed his parents and firmly decided to keep the Creator's Law. Cain was different. He did not pay attention to what his parents told him, so I decided to use this weakness to win him over. Abel presented his offerings very zealously, often listening and talking to the Creator. And he knew that the only chance for a man to get back into the convent with the Creator is to accept His death as a punishment for his sins.

I was not able to convince them to stop presenting the offerings and to think of them as unnecessary. All I could do is to twist its purpose for a bit. Instead of presenting their offerings as a remembrance of the Creator's sacrifice, I suggested to them that a sacrificial system is just a way to make Him happy and to calm His anger. They had to believe that the Creator hates and condemns them, so that they would join me. And I managed to do so. Partially. I suggested to Cain that he can offer anything as an offering. Why would he buy his offerings? He can offer whatever he has at the moment. That is also enough. It was important that he is at least partially obedient to the Creator. Then something interesting happened. When the Creator responded favorably to Abel's offerings, and He completely ignored Cain's offerings because of his disobedience, I saw that Cain felt something very similar to what I personally feel. Injured pride, envy, anger... The door of his mind were wide open to me.

I already despised Abel because I was not able to affect him. His faith protected him from me. I wondered if I could turn his brother against him. To hurt him through his brother who was under my control. I, therefore, suggested to Cain that he hit his brother fiercely. I was interested in what will happen to a man after a strong hit. Completely overtaken by what I suggested, he did it. He hit his own brother. And Abel died. The breath of life which the Creator gave him simply went out of his body. He was un-alive. I reckoned that this was the end of the Creator's patience and presence on Earth. He will not tolerate this anymore. Maybe he would punish Cain by taking his life for what he did, and the planet would be left to me. But He even showed affection and love toward such a creature... To a murderer. If Cain showed that he wanted forgiveness, the Creator would have forgiven him. I realized that whatever I do, whatever I suggested that the mankind do, the Creator would not give up of this planet.

I was overcome with rage. My plans to rule the Earth and to build a better kingdom were becoming more complicated.

So now, instead of attempting to create my own kingdom, I wanted to complicate the Creator's plans. It was clear to me that I could not win the battle for the kingdom, but I still could win the battle for mankind. The Creator had other intentions. The Creator wanted to bring them back to Him, to enable them to return to where they were — in immortality, in the unity with Him. But my goal was to keep them as long as possible under my control.

Of course, I can not win if I fight openly. What was I supposed to say to people: it is better to stay with me and to die eventually than to obey the Creator and to have the eternal life in happiness and harmony? No, I had to do it without them being aware of what is happening. I had to blur the idea about the eternal values. I had to present the Creator as Someone who punishes unjustly, as Someone who hates and condemns them, as Someone who took their immortality unfairly.

My advantage was that I did not have to win over their love and attention. It would be difficult for me to do so. They would soon realize who is the cause of their suffering. But I do not need their love. I only want them to obey me and to worship me. I do not care if they love me or not.

I figured out that all I need to do is to divert their full attention to themselves. That is the fastest way to separate them from the Creator. I need to work on their self-confidence. Thus, they will stop relying on the Creator's Power and try to live on their own. And then...

Have you ever manipulated with an ant? It thinks it can go wherever it wants, but, if you put a hand in front of it, it has to turn. And by doing so, with more or less manipulation, you can direct it to where you wanted it to be. Or, if it did not want to obey you, you simply crush him with your thumb...

And this is a man full of self-confidence, compared to me — that small and helpless ant. Even better, it is quite easy to manipulate with a man so that he make his own pleasure and comfort the sole purpose of his life, regardless of how much it could cost him.

PRE-FLOOD WORLD

Pre-flood world was advancing quickly. The inhabitants of Earth were mine. We were on the same side, except that there was no way back for me. Ritual offerings gave me a better insight into the Creator's plans. He planned to redeem mankind with His own death, although I did not know how He intends to do that. Abel was not alive anymore. Moreover, he decomposed long ago. The Creator did not redeem him although he was faithful to Him.

Then I thought of another way of distorting the sacrificial system. I suggested to people that the bigger the sacrifice is, the more merciful the Creator will be. Can there be a greater sacrifice than a human one? A child, perhaps? That way, I managed to win over a lot of those who were not openly on my side. May they perform the rituals, but not in the way the Creator said, but in the way I have inspired them. My goal was to make them do something bad in the eyes of the Creator, while still believing that they are doing the right thing.

Furthermore, realizing that man can die before the consequences of the separation from the Tree of Life overwhelm him (when dies of a "natural" cause), I began to encourage and to inspire people to physically eliminate their opponents by murdering them. I was convinced that there had to be a point when the Creator would give up from this planet.

I realized that people mostly crave for three things: power, lust, appetite. I encouraged man to set his own pleasure as his sole priority. To achieve these pleasures, he was ready to do anything. By using the great human intelligence and their great potential (in the terms of their limitations), I managed to take control over almost every corner of Earth. Busting their self-confidence and pride was easy to do, due to their great intelligence. And that is how I set the foundation of my rule over the human race.

By learning about human weaknesses, there was no way humans could resist me, the more so because they believed that all what they did was the result of their decision-making skills. Since they enjoyed doing such things, they did not pay much attention to true life values. By separating them from the Creator, I have managed to take complete control over them. I twisted the meaning of sacrifice, I encouraged them to be violent and to be uncontrollably lustful, I perverted their appetite... Had I been at the Creator's place, I would have given up on them a long time ago. Only a handful of people, led by Noah, remained on the Creator's side. There was no way He could win now. From the billions of people who lived back then, only eight of them were on His side.

The Creator repented for having created mankind. Even though He offered them the eternal happiness, they chose – under my influence – only short-lived pleasures of this small and almost insignificant world. I understood His disappointment. But it is His fault. Nobody forced Him to oppose me. He could have just left this planet to me and give me a chance to prove that my kingdom would be better than His. This way, I will not get my kingdom, but neither the Creator will. The more sympathy He showed to mankind, the more I hated them. This way, by inflicting pain to man, I was also inflicting pain to the Creator.

He told Noah about a world-wide flood. I did not know how, but I knew that He can do it. Noah warned the others, but I inspired them to present various “scientific evidences” against his claims, and to make fun of him. Until then, there was no rain — how could there be a flood then? How could such a catastrophe happen in this – literally – perfect world? And so we made fun of Noah and of those who built the Ark with him, for 120 years. He was one of those who stayed on the Creator's side no matter what, so I could not do much except this. And finally, the Ark was finished. Noah, his family and a pair of each type of animal entered the Ark. Even though people started wondering why the animals are coming inside on their own, I quickly calmed them down by showing them that science is on their side and that there is no way that some disaster could happen.

But, the rain started. The Creator also released water from Earth's crust along with strong earthquakes and volcanic eruptions.

People were terrified. And they should have been. It was their end.

But it does not matter, there will always be others. Now it will be easier. I already had almost 1.700 years of practice in deceiving and manipulating people, and I had not even taken my intellectual and physical supremacy into the account. I did not see any reason why the Creator would give another chance to mankind. I defeated Him once, I will defeat Him again.

What new He could do?

CHAPTER 5

AFTER THE FLOOD

I was thinking that the Creator, if He wanted to die and so to pay the penalty for human sins in this way, had to become a man, a mortal being, for a period of time. That will be my chance.

So far, I have managed to outsmart every human being, in one way or another. And that is all I need to prove that nobody – and I mean NOBODY – can keep the Creator's Law completely. This means that the Creator Himself, while on Earth, will have no chance against me. And the Creator Himself will help me to prove that the Law He set is impossible to keep. All my efforts have been directed to prepare myself the best I could for that moment.

Designing a variety of new life habits so that man could transgress, I noticed that humans, as race, are prone to degradation of their skills and abilities through generations. Therefore, I decided to make man as weak and defenseless as I possibly could, both physically and intellectually.

Moreover, it seemed that the events – to which the sacrificial rites referred to – are not going to happen any time soon. It will give me enough time to humiliate mankind as much as possible. If I was able to deceive the perfect man, who lived in the perfect conditions, I was sure that there is no human being alive that could resist me, even if that person was the Creator Himself in human form. I was not intending to leave anything to chance.

And the best of all is that the man himself will help me to succeed in my venture. Interesting, is not it? Only man would accept habits that humiliate him, disable him and make him ill. Of course, the only condition is that he enjoys it. He would do anything for that.

Water that devastated the entire planet created new seas and oceans. I have never seen anything uglier. That wonderful planet – which I wanted only for myself – was now an eyesore of the Universe. Beautiful mountains, forests, waterfalls... Everything was completely destroyed. Earth's global ecosystem was completely changed. Soon afterwards, the ground separated itself into several parts, the poles froze, and the phenomena you today call »clouds« appeared. The aqueous layer around the Earth was no more. The living space on Earth was reduced by two thirds.

I wondered what the Creator's intentions were now. How could He let something so ugly and imperfect to exist in perfect Universe?

Noah and his family came out of the Ark. They were also horrified by what they saw. They panicked. What will they eat? Where will they live? Soon, the Creator spoke to Noah. He told him something about a covenant. He promised them that there will be no more global floods. He commanded them to multiply themselves and to replenish the Earth. How can not He see that there is no way He could win the battle for mankind? What other intentions could He possibly have?

If He wants the people to spread across the four corners of the Earth, I have to try to stop that. I wanted to keep people together on a small place, so that I could unite them to do the opposite of what the Creator told them to do. I wanted them to win their independence on their own. I gathered them in a valley with a plan to build a tower that will be the symbol of their power and independence. The Creator did not like that, of course. He did something unusual. He made people speak in different languages. They could not communicate with each other. But they all still understood me, and it was ALL that mattered.

In a short period of time after the Flood, the world was once again in the state it was before the global catastrophe. I wondered how the Creator will destroy the world now. Will He finally let me rule this planet? Then I saw Him approaching a man, telling him that he is chosen to be the father of a special nation. It was Abraham. He was a pious man. I was not able to deceive him, because my plans were constantly thwarted by old Noah. He was like a living fossil among them. The Creator let him to live long so that he could testify about what happened to mankind for their wickedness. Abraham listened to his every word and he decided to follow Noah's footsteps and to obey the Creator's will. That is the reason why the Creator chose him.

So what? What He could do through this chosen nation? To have a greater influence on the rest of mankind than I have?

Abraham moved to a place the Creator told him to. It bothered me that he now lived at a place which can be considered as a crossroad of cultures. Everyone who passed there could see how Abraham was blessed. His family was growing, little by little. I convinced them to accept the behavior, habits and rituals I imposed on the surrounding nations.

Relying on the power of the Creator, Abraham became a great authority and example. True, I managed to break him a couple of times, but it was all meaningless and short-lived. I had to prevent that such nation spreads itself and to become a warning and example to the others. I managed to separate that family. I suggested to Lot that it is best if he moves to one of the most beautiful cities at that time — Sodom. He was seduced by its exterior beauty, but he was not aware that I have set a trap for him there. He wanted to teach those people the truths about the Creator, but I had other intentions. I wanted to teach him about all the pleasures the human body can experience. Immorality of every kind flourished in this city. The Creator did not wait for long. Once again, He decided to destroy. This time, He destroyed Sodom and the surrounding cities. And while He spoke to Abraham about what His plans are, two of my former colleagues went to scout the situation. Never mind. He – and especially his family – will stick to the prejudices they have picked up while living in Sodom.

Then, the cities were destroyed, people lost. Who won? ME!

CHAPTER 6

ISRAEL

I did not quite understand how the Creator intends to redeem mankind. Abel was still dead. The others who were obedient to the Creator died too. Will He resurrect them? It was the only explanation I could think of. But when will it be done? Why did not He do it right away? Thinking about that gave me another wonderful idea of how I could, yet further, deceive mankind. Why would not man believe that there is another life after death? It was time to remind man on my first lie. And, while people studied the Creator's truths about their salvation, I suggested to them to conclude that it must mean they take effect immediately after death. I assured them that death does not mean the end of one's life, but simply, that one is continuing his life in another form, and that those who died actually live. Awesome!

This opened the possibility of a new way of communication with people in which they would believe that they are speaking with the dead — that is, with their souls. Of course, the Angels who share my destiny and me would pose as the dead and imitate them. This idea had its drawbacks, but once we have spoken to people in the image and voice of their dead ones, they would not think too much about how that contradicts to what the Creator told them.

The Creator's family can keep what they already possesses. I will deceive everyone so good that even those who are on His side – living near those who obey to me – will not be able to forever remain immune to my influence. I will break all of them eventually.

Several generations later, there was a great drought. The Creator took care of His people in His own way during the drought in Egypt. In fact, He brought them there so that they could multiply and enrich themselves faster, considering that it was the most fertile part of the planet at that time. This was a direct challenge to me. He decided to make a temporary residence for His people in the center of MY kingdom? We will see how long they will be safe here.

The pharaoh, who respected Israelis, died. He was the one who let them populate the best parts of Egypt.

His successor was under my control. I flared up his hatred toward Israelis, as well as the fear from the possibility that one day Israelis could numerically overwhelm them and take away his kingdom. I used the pharaoh to cause a great pain to the Creator's – now numerous – people. Both physical and spiritual pain. I whispered to them that the Creator has abandoned them, and I even told them that He does not exist, that only Egyptian deities are real. The people were close to fully be under my influence. I decided to fully weaken this nation and to keep it in permanent slavery by suggesting to pharaoh to kill every male child at birth. Did the Creator really think that He could strengthen His people under my very nose?

Knowing that the Egyptians will kill her child, a woman – Moses's mother – carefully concealed her baby and then she put him in a specially prepared basket, which she let down the river. I knew that the Creator has some plans with this child and that is why I tried very hard to kill him, but the Creator forbade me to do it. The Creator led things so that the baby Moses was found by the pharaoh's daughter. I tried to make them kill the child, but the Creator forbade me to influence them. But it does not even matter. Harsh slavery crushed the Israeli spirit so much that there is no chance anyone would be able to organize them and to lead them back to the Promised Land.

As Moses grew up, he realized that it was the Creator's providence that led him to this position. He knew the Creator has some plan for him. I tried to suggest to him that it would be unreasonable to identify himself with the slaves when he can inherit the throne of the most powerful kingdom on Earth. But it was clear to me that he was not attracted by it as much as I wanted. And then I decided to intervene into the Creator's plans, to make Moses take the initiative and trust in his own strength, education and wisdom.

I suggested to him that he is, after all, the one whom the Creator has chosen and that he should try to deliver his people from the slavery by a large and armed rebellion. Surprisingly, he fell for that and he started thinking about it. The rest was easy. When he saw that one of his compatriots was being beaten by an Egyptian, I suggested to him that he should kill him. And he did it. I made him think that this act will promote him into a leader and protector of his people. But the Creator did not want to use Moses in this way. Next time, when he tried to separate his two compatriots, instead of praising him as their patron, the Creator made them humiliate him and spread the rumor about the murder Moses committed. It was all the same to me: make the Egyptians kill him, or inspire him to try to free his people by force. It was important that the chosen people stay here where they will not have any kind of influence on anyone.

But Moses managed to escape. But the people stayed here. I wondered what the Creator was up to now. The years passed. Moses, although alive, was too old to be used by the Creator for anything. And then, when Moses thought his plans remained unfulfilled, when he began to think about dying, when there was no strength and power left in him to rely on, when even I started to wonder how the Creator could possibly fulfill His promise of bringing Israelis back to the Promised Land, the Creator tells Moses to prepare himself for his mission. I could not believe it. What could this old man do? But the Creator could now empower him, because Moses was finally ready to do his part.

Moses returns to Egypt, asks the Pharaoh to let the people out, but I had no intention of doing so. I will try to stop him at all costs. The Creator tries to assure people that He will guide them, by performing miracles through Moses. At first, I tried to imitate what the Creator did, but I was not able to. Instead of miracles, I only managed to create illusions. But it does not matter. I can make people to be pretty stubborn. The Creator was willing to go all the way, and, in the end, the Pharaoh gave in. The Creator then established a new rite — Passover. I had to thoroughly analyze the meaning of this rite for two reasons: 1) so that I could twist its meaning, and 2) to prepare myself for the moment when its symbolism fulfills at a certain point in the future.

I reckoned it would be wise to send some Egyptians – who were loyal to me – to join the Israelis, out of fear, when they leave Egypt, under the excuse that they want to serve their God. And, of course, that was one of my brilliant moves — my people among the Creator's. My standards and rules among His people. Thanks to the Egyptians, I made the journey in desert, to say at least, troubling, especially to Moses. I spurred the riots through my followers. But it did not last for long. The Creator swiftly punished those transgressions and my subjects were reduced to an insignificant number.

When they arrived near Canaan, they chose twelve spies to scout the land. During that survey, while the spies enjoyed the beauty of this land, I constantly tried to divert their attention to the strength of the local nations and their cities, and to discourage them in their intentions to enter Canaan.

And I did it! Actually, it only worked on ten of them. The other two knew what the Creator was capable of doing for those who trust Him. But, the ten spies were enough to make the Creator return His people back to the desert for forty years. I used that time to prepare and strengthen the nations of that land, who were under my control and influence, so that they could be prepared for the upcoming clash with the Israelis.

THE REST OF THE WORLD

After the Flood, people quickly multiplied themselves. And, after the incident with languages during the construction of the Tower of Babel, they have spread themselves across the four corners of the Earth. But, wherever they would go, the Angels who share my fate and me went with them. We were still far more numerous than mankind. Every part of the world was under my control. I knew that people have an inner need for connection with Him. I easily used that human trait to my own gain. I made up all kind of names for the deities in cultures all around the world. Through the people who were loyal to me and who had spiritual authority among their people, I built religious systems that were, more or less, worshipping me — the most powerful Angel. Baal — that is me. Isis, too. Shiva, Vishnu, Krishna, Seth, Zeus, Odin, Osiris, Hekate, Mithras, Horus, Ra and every other name – which is not of the Creator – are nothing more than the names through which people worshipped ME.

Once I teach people to do something, there is almost no way of going back. Prejudice is a powerful tool and I am an expert on using that tool. Just be patient and you will see that you also got trapped in one of them.

In religions I have founded, I invented all kinds of ceremonies. Some where immoral, others were morbid. To my delight, man was ready to do any of them. He proved himself to be an excellent subject. Eventually, I realized that the source of my joy is to harm man. This was one of the ways to get even with the Creator for what He did to me. And there was NOTHING He could do about it.

The most advanced civilizations were easiest for manipulation. They were keen to accept morbid rituals: human sacrifices, torture and suffering, death and horror. Nations, who were under my control, did all of these things. Once taught by me, people did not need a lot of encouragement from my side anymore.

If the Creator wanted to present Himself to the world through a handful of people, that would mean He really underestimated me — the ruler of THIS planet. How could somebody teach any of the nations under my control that there is a God, when I am their deity? I brought my followers to a state of such fanaticism that they would kill anyone who thought differently, even if that person was a member of their own family. The Creator knew that. But, does He have any other plans? Why does He allow me to inflict such pain, suffering and death to His creatures? Why does not He just kill me?

Anyway, I put an extra effort to make sure that nations most biased against the Creator live in the Promised Land, close to His chosen nation. I wanted to use them to make a particular impact on Israel. The Creator will probably order the Israelis to exterminate them, but I will find a way to get some of my followers close to Israelis. Not even they are immune to power and lust...

ENTERING THE PROMISED LAND

By observing the Creator's nation in the desert, I began to understand what He intended to do with them. He wanted to place them at the junction of the world and to set them as a role model to every nation on the planet. He chose a completely average nation, without any remarkable traits. And then He gave them the Law of the Universe. The consequence of this act would be very bad for me, because the surrounding nations would soon realize that the cause of their misery is the lack of such laws and commandments that Israelis adhere.

Seeing Israeli religious ceremonies, full of meaning, and comparing them with their bloody orgies, my followers might wish to join them and wait for the Redeemer to come. Seeing how Israeli spouses mutually respect and love each other, they might realize that the cause of misfortune in their family is fornication and bad treatment of women, who are observed as sex objects. Seeing how Israeli children respect their parents, they may understand the benefits of family happiness and proper upbringing, compared to their alienation and rude behavior toward children. Seeing how Israelis do not lock their doors, without fearing that someone might steal or try to kill them, they could realize that such a life is far more peaceful and comfortable than their life, which is full of violence and despair. Seeing how Israelis are all in a good health, there is a possibility that they would realize that the cause of their illnesses is their wrong diet and lifestyle...

The Creator cunningly devised it. The people of Israel would not have to say a word about the Creator. People would come by themselves to believe and serve their God. I did not like that at all. I had to twist the very meaning of the Law the Creator gave them. It is better that they do not see the blessings that can come through the obedience to the Law. Fortunately, that was not too difficult to achieve. I suggested to them that it is important to adhere the mere form of the Law, instead of thinking about its meaning, thus letting the Law to change them completely. I managed to make the Creator's Law by itself to be the very meaning of their life. Israel will never be able to testify about the Creator in the way the Creator intended.

They will never learn. Even with all the incidents that happened in the desert, when Egyptians were with them, they still did not realize that I am doing the exactly same thing again. And they did not see it because their union with the Creator was not as strong as it should have been. Once again, I have taken control over them. I had to come up with something even better. I had to make them reject the Creator as their King and to enthrone a man instead. And behold, I did it again. That was a very hard blow for the Creator. Direct rejection of everything He has done for them. Before this event, such ingratitude was only shown by me. But as I said, man is a great and reliable subject — when he is separated from the Creator.

THE END OF THE CREATOR'S REIGN

The Creator lost again. For the umpteenth time, mankind rejected Him. I wondered why He does not just give up? Why does not He just let me have the Earth? Can not He see that almost nobody wants Him? I figured out that He will probably do it when the last man on this planet rejects Him. I just could not manage to get the entire mankind to bow down to me. As much as I have tried, there would always be that very small and – in my opinion – insignificant number of people loyal to Him. Obviously, they were not insignificant to Him, because, as few as they were, He still claimed my planet to be His.

I had to make sure that there be no man loyal to the Creator on the whole Earth. I could not accomplish it as long as He reigned over them. It was not particularly difficult to convince Israelis to seek their independence and to wish to get rid of the protection the Creator granted them, so that I could “protect” them. It was already my usual practice which I used to put other nations under my control.

The Creator agreed with them, despite the pain He felt. He chose a very good-looking king for them. I was pleased with the choice. There were a lot of things I could turn against him. Sooner or later, I will be able to control the Creator's chosen nation through him. Better to say — sooner. Considering that he was a very handsome and tall young nobleman, granting him power was a safe and proven way to get him to MY side. When he became king, I told him that there is no one above him, that he can do whatever he wants and that he is the one who sets laws now. Of course, he will be setting my laws from now on. I assured him that he is even above the priests, and that he even can – if necessary – perform rituals and offer sacrifices. And that is how I brought him into situation to desecrate the holy rites.

Then, after a battle before which the Creator Himself ordered him to completely annihilate the Amalekites, whose moral I managed to pervert to extreme lengths, I assured him that it was not necessary to exterminate everyone. It would be much better if he capture the emperor and present him to his people. He may present it as the Creator's victory, it does not matter. For me, it was important to make him divert from what the Creator told him to do, at least for a bit. I also suggested to him that the Creator would be pleased to see the cattle – that he was supposed to kill – brought into His country and offered as a sacrifice to Him.

The people did not think much about it. I assured them that it was all normal now that they have a king. My plan was coming true. More and more members of the Creator's chosen nation were crossing on my side. To be true, they did not know that, but not being with the Creator means only one – and one thing only – being on my side. Soon enough, I accomplished what I wanted to. The Creator rebuked and rejected Saul as His chosen one due to his disobedience. In addition to the sense of guilt he felt, I strongly pressured Saul in my attempt to convince him that he was not wrong. He only wanted the best. But there was no justification for his actions because he knew what was right. But, eventually, he relented and he did not feel the slightest guilt for what he has done. If he had repented, the Creator would have forgiven him, but now — he was mine.

Rather than giving up and leaving people to me, He looked for another king. Can not He see that I will do the same with the next one? There is no man who – when granted with a great power – feels any dependence on anyone, even if that someone was the Creator Himself. I decided that every king will be mine, because it is the easiest way to keep the whole nation under my control. To my surprise, he chose a beardless young man — David, who was already known to me due to his modesty and connection with the Creator. I did not worry too much. People change. Power changes people.

After the Creator granted David a great victory, when he killed Goliath, the people glorified him, although he was just a tool in the Creator's hand. Considering that I managed to have more and more influence and control over Saul, I decided to use him to get rid of David before he even becomes a king, so that I would not have any problems with him in the future. Saul tried to kill David several times while he was playing for him, but David was unusually quick and skillful and he always managed to avoid death. And the Creator took the extra care of him.

With Samuel's death, Saul was left without support. Because of that, I managed to convince him to resort to what he almost destroyed at the time when he was faithful to the Creator — the Black Arts! I suggested to him to seek the guidance from one of the witches, since the Creator clearly did not intend to answer him. She invoked the spirit of the prophet Samuel. Naturally, I appeared, in Samuel's form, of course. And then — my victory! The Creator's chosen one kneels before ME. I wish I could see the Creator's face. It was not too hard to tell Saul what will happen, knowing Philistines's strength and determination, and the fact that the Creator will not be with him. But it had to look like I am the spirit of the deceased and that I am revealing him the future.

And that is how the foundation of modern spiritualism were set — in the Creator's chosen nation itself. In the centuries that came, this was one of the most powerful tools I used to deceive mankind.

DAVID

It was easy to persuade Saul – whom I successfully seduced for years – to commit suicide. I filled him with such a sense of hopelessness that my final suggestion seemed to be the right solution.

David came to the throne. It was almost impossible to separate that man from the Creator. He had all the qualities which are necessary to connect with the Creator. But he is just a man, and there will be a moment when he will let his guard down. And nobody is patient and persistent as I am. Time passed. And then the opportunity presented itself. Bathsheba was very beautiful...

While taking a stroll, David saw her bathing. Knowing him, I assumed that he will turn away upon seeing a naked woman. But, I stayed with him. Then something completely unexpected happened — he stopped and secretly watched her. I do not miss such opportunities. Not even one. I used that brief moment of his separation from the Creator to fill his mind with passion, to fume his body with lust, to darken his mind enough to be capable of doing something terrible, and to finally be rejected by the Creator.

He no longer had the strength to resist me. He did it. He brought Bathsheba to his palace, even though she was the wife of one of his greatest and most reliable warriors. I blurred his mind so much that nothing else mattered. Not even the Creator nor her husband, Uriah the Hittite, or the consequences of such an act — nothing, except her beautiful body. He thought that I would just leave it at that, but I had a few more surprises in store for him...

Bathsheba got pregnant. He hurried to call her husband back home so that he could sleep with her in time to frame him with the baby. However, this hero was so devoted to the Creator that he did not want to leave his soldiers, not before he spends the night with the troops. I convinced David that there is no other choice but to kill her husband. To make his abomination greater, I suggested that Uriah brings the death sentence himself. When my victory was complete, it was not too hard to convince David that he did what he had to do. After all, he is the king. He is the supreme ruler.

But the Creator did not think so. He rebuked David through the Prophet Nathan. As with Saul, I kept repeating to David that he is innocent, that – as a king – he has the right to do something like that, but the Creator's words broke him. Rather than justifying himself and so to get more further from the Creator, David fiercely repented for what he did. I reckoned, if the Creator did not forgive Saul such an insignificant mistake, how could He forgive David this abomination? But David just did not stop begging for forgiveness. He changed the course of his life and the Creator forgave him and took him back. I was furious. Therefore, I decided to make David's life a misery. The rest of his life passed in an overwhelming frustration. He was king, but – because of what he did – no one respected him, neither his sons nor his generals, nor his people, nor his priests. Hence the problems, hence the rebellion, hence the second exile.

But in spite the misery I have unleashed on him, the Creator granted him the honor of acquiring the material necessary for the construction of the Temple. I was not pleased to hear that. Having such a Temple in their land, Israelis would be in a better position to think about the meaning of everything they see and do, minimizing my chances of winning them over. But I had a plan even for this situation.

THE “WISEST” MAN IN HISTORY

David was succeeded by his son, Solomon. He was, also, a very pious and modest young man. He was selected to build the Creator’s Temple. He considered himself unworthy of such a venture and he was concerned that he is not up to the task. He also was not sure if he is wise enough to rule over a nation. He prayed to the Creator to grant him wisdom. It moved the Creator, because man – under my influence – would only ask for treasure, long life, death of his enemies and other earthly things, and would not seek anything eternal.

When I heard that the Creator gave him the wisdom that no other man before him had, I became curious. Is he finally a worthy opponent? The situation was same as it was at the beginning of man’s union with the Creator — Solomon was untouchable to me. He was one with the Creator. He was building the Temple. He did not want a single detail to be left to chance. It was the highest honor the Creator could grant to a man. He behaved accordingly. But, the time is always on my side. He will fall, too. I can use any man’s traits to my benefit better than the Creator can. Why? Because I can make him overconfident and arrogant rather than the Creator can use him to do something good. And Solomon had too many good traits that I could not use against him. He was really intelligent and insightful as no man before him was, and he was the wealthiest person on the planet. He had all he needed for a perfect earthly life.

If he had stayed with the Creator, he could have been used to greatly expand the truths about the Creator and the plan for the redemption of the mankind. A lot of people would soon realize how good is to obey the Creator, and I certainly did not want that. Although it seemed, at first, that the Creator’s plan to show the rest of the world the character of Israel’s God was finally coming true, I knew that – sooner or later – I will turn everything to my advantage. And that is exactly what happened.

The wisest man in the world did not stand a chance against me. He was not even a challenge. He was a disappointment. As any other man, he was unreachable to me while he was with the Creator. Without Him, even with all his intelligence, he was far from a worthy opponent. On the contrary, I realized that his great intelligence can be used as a tool to defeat him completely. The level of his intelligence was close to the one of heavenly beings, but, living on Earth, he was limited by material, since I managed to separate mankind from the spiritual — from the Creator. He was limited and mortal, because I separated man from the Tree of Life. He was familiar with the spiritual world, but he could not reach it. He was familiar with the eternity, but he was limited by transience.

I kept telling him that whatever he does on Earth has no sense or meaning. After all, he will die sooner or later. That produced such a frustration inside of him that he desperately tried to make the most of life and to find its meaning. And he got the best of life, but he found no meaning, because there is no meaning of life. I have taken it away. Of all that the Creator made available to him, he chose to give in to the physical and material pleasures of this world. I was able to convince him that death is the complete end. I took away his faith in the redemption of the mankind the Creator prepared.

The state of absurdity – in which I brought him – made easy for me to turn him into whatever I wanted him to be: idolater, adulterer, tyrant, or anything else. Deceived completely, he turned his frustration into a book. It was strange to me that the Creator incorporated his discouraging writings into the Canon, but then I realized that by doing this, the Creator wanted to teach man not to search for a meaning in the earthly life, because even the one – who had the best living conditions on Earth – could not find one.

As if I would mind if man finds that out.

Do you really think that now – after seeing how I tricked and ruined the wisest man of all time – you will be able to escape me? That you will be able to resist me? That you will be able to control your ego which I constantly feed in order to separate you from the Creator? You do not even begin to realize how great my power is, how diverse my methods are. How great my persistence is, my motivation, my hatred... There is a path to the Creator, but you can not follow it. There is an obstacle you can not overcome, and that is you — with ME on your side.

THE DIVISION OF THE EMPIRE

Solomon's sins – as a chosen and anointed one – hurt the Creator so much that He decided to take away his empire. But, due to the promises given to David, He decided to do so in the next generation. Did the Creator really think He could have a nation loyal to Him on MY planet? There remained only a small number of those who I was not able to control and to make them do the opposite of the Creator's will. As much as I tried, I never managed to seduce all of them.

Through the following generations, the Creator's chosen nation was mine. Just as I planned. Through the kings loyal to me, I have managed to conquer the nations they ruled. The Creator was very sad.

Solomon helped me to set the foundation of Paganism in Israel. I saw that the Creator plans to take the throne from Solomon's son and to give it to Jeroboam. Although, at first, he was very faithful and loyal to the Creator, I was able to seduce him. When he became king, I inspired him to separate the tribes who were on his side by building new sanctuaries so that they would not need to go to Jerusalem as they did before. He did what I suggested him to do. He made two golden calves, and then all the ten tribes who were on his side worshipped them, rejecting what the Creator commanded. Following generations continued on doing the same. There was no one who could make some radical changes. A few kings – who were on the Creator's side – tried to do something, but it was without any solid results.

When my complete victory was close, the Creator raised the Prophet Elijah. In a short period of time, Israel witnessed His power and intentions, but yet again, time was on my side, and things were back where I wanted in a matter of a couple of generations.

I decided that I should completely destroy this nation and so to make my victory visible to everyone.

When the king Ezekiel fell ill, the Creator sent the Prophet Isaiah to tell him that he will die. He started crying and begging the Creator to have mercy on him. The Creator even decided to give him a sign that He Himself healed him. He returned the shadow on the sundial by ten degrees backwards. Very impressive of Him... I figured that I could use this to make Israel suffer.

It was a miracle that scared the whole world. The Chaldean astronomers were astonished. They could not explain how something like that could happen. People started to talk about the end of the world. Clearly, I supported them in that. I love when people panic. After a while, they learned that the Creator made this miracle as a sign of healing the Israeli king. They decided to visit him. When they came to the king Ezekiel, they wanted him to speak about the Creator who did this, but I suggested that it would be wiser if he would show his power and wealth to the foreign delegation, instead of speaking about the Creator. And, of course, vanity almost always wins over reason...

The Chaldeans were denied the truths about the Creator, denied the call that He wanted to send to the world through Israel. Ezekiel only boasted, speaking about his power and wealth, all under my influence... I overwhelmed him so much that he did not leave anything hidden. Are you wondering what have I accomplished by doing this? Firstly, the Creator's name remained unknown to the people who could pass it well on the others due to their authority. I prevented the Chaldeans to learn about this miracle and to respect the Creator. Secondly, I set the foundation of the final destruction of Israel. What do you think the Chaldeans could speak about when they returned to their land? Only of Israel's wealth and treasure. Wealth and treasure... Sufficient reasons for an exterminating war at that time.

The Creator saw my plans and wanted to stop me from doing that to His chosen nation, but He had no excuse to do it. If they remained faithful to Him, I would not be able to do anything. Thus, He was left only with feeble attempts, sending His prophets to warn people that – if they do not change – they will be exterminated and enslaved. His men – prophets – came one by one. They warned people to repent, to return to the Creator, but they had no success. Why? Because I have anticipated such a move from the Creator and that is why I did not seduce Israel to worship me directly under a certain god's name, or better yet — to be completely irreligious. No. I have misled them so that they remained in the belief that they are truly faithful, that they truly serve to the Creator. I succeeded to completely separate the religion from their everyday life. During their services to the Creator and their prayer, their faith was the greatest, but in their everyday life, there were no greater criminals than them. I was proud of my success.

What do you think the Creator's prophet must have felt when he approached to a – according to his own belief – religious man telling him that he must repent? I presented such calls as a biggest insult to a personality of an Israeli, as well as an insult to the Creator Himself. It was not hard to convince them to beat the prophets, to ridicule and to banish them, and even to kill them. Through people loyal to me, I presented all those serious warnings as lies. And to whom did the majority believe? To ME, of course. Because I play on the card of human ego.

The Creator was very sad seeing that people – even the ones He chose – stayed so cold to His calls. Then He finally spoke about specific promises of the Redeemer, which I desperately wanted to hear. Through His prophets I found out where and when will the Redeemer appear. I also found out where He will be born. Born? Will the Redeemer come as an infant? Well, He did not stand a chance against me as a grown man, let alone as a newborn. Does He really think that the baby will be able to survive?

I had all the more informations about the moment that was approaching, the moment of the redemption of the fallen man. I even previously found out from David how He will die. I carefully listened to what all the prophets spoke about it. Every detail was important to me in order to prepare myself for what was coming. By the way, I have made sure that all those messages be misunderstood, so that they would not be prepared for the upcoming events.

THE SLAVERY

I spread rumors about Israel's wealth and treasure among the Chaldeans in their capital city of Babylon, as well as across the country. So prepared, it was not too difficult to convince them to attack Israel. On several occasions, all of Israel went into captivity. My plan worked. After a while, Israel – as a nation – will be completely assimilated into the nations I scattered them in. There will be no one to live by the Creator's principles. At least I thought so. The Creator had other plans, and other strategies. Although He was not able to stop me from scattering the people of Israel, and even though He was sad to see the consequences of Israel's sin, He did not intend to leave them. I realized (although too late, unfortunately) that He will use His people to do what He wanted to do during the time of peace — to tell the world the truths about Himself and the plan of the redemption of all people and of all nations. But Israelis will not be able to do that if I exterminate them.

Then something unexpected happened. In trouble, pressed by the slavery, Israelis began to remember the promises given to them by Moses and the prophets. The more I oppressed them under the rule of my followers, the more firmly they clung to the Creator's promises. Rather than blaming Him for their trouble – which I constantly suggested to them – they begged Him to forgive them, admitting their guilt that brought them into this mess. Every attempt to exterminate them fell through, although I almost managed to achieve it through king Ahasuerus.

The Creator did not stop warning them. Even in the time of Babylonian captivity, He called His people to repent through His prophets.

Daniel was in one group of young men brought from Israel. My long practice has shown me that I will not be able to influence him, but this fact does not discourage me from trying. After all, David was like that in the beginning, but he fell later. Babylonian king regarded Daniel and his friends as reliable assistants due to their loyalty to principles they adhered. Soon enough, he took them to his service. I did not see anything wrong in that, because faith in the Creator always weakens when one is in prosperity, and that was what I wanted to accomplish. I believed that they will quickly forget the Creator, under the influence of wealth and power of the Babylonian empire. I was wrong. So I decided to destroy them. I inspired the emperor Nebuchadnezzar to build a statue in his glory and power to which all of them must bow. I knew that there is no way I could make the young Israelis worship any idol, because the Creator's commandment prohibited that. Their faith was sealed. Their jealous colleagues reported them and they were to be burned alive in a fiery furnace. The moment I began to exult about my success, the Creator interjected. He sent His Son to save them from the furnace. This was very bad for my further plans because it turned out that an emperor loyal to me – due to this incident – became loyal to the Creator. The emperor even ordered that all people must respect the Creator as the only God. And, instead of destroying the nation of Israel, they were sending the message about the Creator better than they did in the conditions of peace and prosperity. I was furious. And frustrated.

Then the Creator revealed the future to the Prophet Daniel in the form of visions. Daniel relayed the messages to his people and wrote down everything. I carefully listened and studied to what he had said. This way I found out the course of human history. What future empires will rule and what are the Creator's future plans. I realized that the Creator is planning to destroy this Earth (everything that is on it) and then to restore it and to establish a new eternal Kingdom. I saw that most of the prophecies the Creator gave so far were conditional. I wondered if this was one of such kind. He plans to establish His Kingdom on Earth — if there will be anybody to establish it with. I now did everything I could to maintain the control over Earth. If I lose, I will be exiled. I learned so from the rites of the Israelis. The goat Azazel – on to which the sins of the whole nation were symbolically transferred – represented me. And he was only cast out into the desert. He was not killed.

And finally! The Creator told Daniel what I wanted to find out for so long: WHEN...?

In his vision, the Prophet received a revelation about the exact time of the Redeemer's appearance. It was the information I have waited for. I had exactly five hundred years to prepare myself for these crucial events.

I began to plan every single detail to ensure that the conditions – in which the Redeemer will appear – be as unfavorable as possible. According to the prophecy, the Israelis were to stay in the slavery for a little while more. Some of them already returned, others decided to stay. In captivity, Israel learned its lesson. They decided to change and to remain faithful to the Creator. Not even such a decision was an obstacle for me. I can make people go to the extreme lengths of godlessness as well as of fanaticism, if possible, and I can make them think that they are serving the Creator, while they are actually on my side.

It was the first point I started to work on. I assumed that the Redeemer will try to teach His nation the truths He gave them in a practical way. Of course, I helped them to misunderstand those truths as much as I could. Therefore, the creation of the atmosphere of the religious fanaticism was the best thing to do.

Since I had the knowledge of the empires that will come, I knew I had to specially prepare the Roman Empire for the crucial events that are to come. After the fall of the Babylonian, Medo-Persian and the Greek empire, I made the Roman Empire so powerful – due to their organization, discipline and determination – that no one could oppose them. I had great influence on them because they worshipped me directly through their gods. I answered all their requests, assisting them in their conquests. Soon, I conquered Israel through Pompeii. I imposed high taxes on them and I oppressed them as much as I could. But I did not want to interfere into their religious rites. Therefore, I suggested to the Romans to allow them to confess their faith, and not to meddle in this matter. My goal was to create difficult slavery-like conditions which will, together with the religious fanaticism, distort the prophecies about the Redeemer. As the time passed, the Redeemer was becoming all the more the One who will set them free from the Roman oppression, and all the less the One who will redeem them from their sins and the One who will allow them to return to the Creator. Once again I turned the religion into formalism. I integrated a strong national feeling into the religious rites. Politics and religion strongly intertwined. The main goal of their faith became the hope of liberation from the Romans. The sole purpose of the Redeemer's coming was reduced to only one thing — liberation from the Romans.

I was pleased with what I have achieved. I set up the most unfavorable circumstances for the Redeemer's appearance. All my goals were achieved — man was physically and intellectually weakened – under my guidance – with religious fanaticism and slavery. Religion, a spiritual matter, focused only to the physical satisfaction and to liberation from the slavery. Wrong expectations — awakened and flared up.

Perfect preparation — for a disappointment!

A disappointment that no one will be able to escape. Neither the people, who will only hear spiritual messages, instead of liberation from the Romans, nor the Redeemer Himself, who will be rejected by His own nation.

After that, He can return to His Father and leave this planet to ME.

CHAPTER 14

SUPERIORITY

By now you may have already realized what some of my traits are. You saw that your strength and power is nothing compared to mine. Your own limitations do not allow me to fully describe my superiority not just over you, but over other Angels as well.

I am a Cherub. Cherubim are the most powerful and the most highest order of Angels. And I am the wisest, the most beautiful and the most powerful one among them all. What? How come that I am not a horned monster with the pitchforks and goat's hooves? As I said at the beginning of this book, my success depends on secrecy. If you do not know that I exist, or, if you know, but you have the wrong idea about me, my actions will not face any obstacles. I purposely created such image of myself, so that those – who suspect that I really do exist – do not even consider my actions as a serious threat, due to such monstrous appearance. Who would be afraid of such a creep?

But the reality is quite different. The moment I would appear before you, your body would have experienced such a trauma that you would instantly became blind, and you would spend the rest of your life vegetating like a plant. If I would reveal myself to you in reduced power and allow you to see me, you would realize that you have not seen anything more beautiful than me in your entire pathetic life.

Do not worry, you will see me. One day. Regarding my power over this world, it is incomprehensible to you. You would have to simultaneously be the most brilliant scientist in the fields of biology, chemistry, physics, mathematics, psychology, medicine, genetics, military strategies, and other branches of science in order to be able to understand just a fraction of what I am capable to do. However, I will try to explain this to your feeble mind in the simplest way possible.

I can control nature. I can control the weather. I can control animals. I can control humans. In fact, I can fully take control and authority over all living beings on Earth. Unfortunately, the Creator has limited my influence on both the environment and animals, as well as on the human mind. He only left me the possibility of suggesting thoughts to them. The Creator forbade me to force people to do what I want them to do, He only allowed me to suggest. Thoughts. But that is more than enough. So, if I want to make man do what I want, I will just impose my own thought on him. I can do that for years. If it is necessary.

You humans would call such a form of communication as “telepathy”, but it is a pathetic term to express what I really do. Man is under the impression that it was his thought which “came to his mind”.

But that is my thought and it remains mine until man accepts it and starts thinking about it. From that moment on — it becomes your thought. And you take a full responsibility for it. I can tell when man has accepted my thought by looking at his face and behavior. Then I wholeheartedly assist him in the development and implementation of that thought the way I wanted. I especially try to suggest the nastiest thoughts when man looks at something good, something that is close to the Creator. I manage to discourage many of them by convincing them that these are their own thoughts and that they will never be able to unite themselves with the Creator.

I do not have the ability to know what man thinks, but I do not need that. I study every man on Earth from his birth to his death. Angels – who are under my control and who share my fate – are helping me in doing this. We watch everyone, all the time. Therefore, it is not too difficult for us to know what people think. Facial expressions, hand movements, body language — it is almost as if we are directly reading their thoughts. Due to our careful and persistent study of every man’s life, we are able to suggest what is the best for each man so that we could separate him from the Creator more quickly, and bring him on my side.

Everything that you did – even in the utmost secrecy – is known to me. I know everything about you and I can use that knowledge against you. I know you better than you know yourself. I never forget anything.

The Creator placed the sense for right and good into each man.

Whether or not man believes in the Creator, He speaks to him through conscience, so that he knows what is right and good. All those who ignore that voice, voluntarily leave the shelter offered by the Creator, approaching me more and more. When they approach close enough, I have the right to completely overcome them and to do what I want with them. The Creator can no longer protect them.

My knowledge of the human brain enables me to induce various states of illnesses of all kinds. Also, if necessary, I can cure him and deceive him even more. I do so in case if someone prays for healing to someone or something other than the Creator. After that, nothing can save him from me anymore.

Maybe my actions could be easily understood if I would compare them with a large company. But, what you will not be able to understand is that MY company has billions of employees, with hundreds of different areas of activity, all of which are in perfect harmony and concentrated toward a single goal: the destruction of mankind. In my company there are no fights, no salaries, no careers, no holidays, no rest. We left evil, disorder and disharmony to you: mankind. We are active in each and every aspect of human life and there are no areas in which we have no influence. But, you will see all that in due time.

In spite of the limitations imposed on me by the Creator, with all the powers I have, it is not very hard for me to control almost everyone. With perfect psychology, great persistence and practice of nearly six thousand years, this world is exactly in a state in which I want it to be, with minor exceptions. It is a pity that you have such a limited mind. Too bad that there are no words in your human dictionaries that could explain more further how powerful I really am. And that is why you will have to settle with this.

Do you now understand what I told you at the beginning of this book? I manipulate with you. You then ask how can you know the difference between the thoughts that are coming from me and your own. In order to answer that, you would have to know what the Creator says. And I will find billions of reasons which will prevent you from doing that. All of them will be in the form of small excuses, which will feed your vanity and your ego.

Sometimes the excuses will be noble, because you will feel that you first have to do something “more important”, such as to allegedly take care of your family or to “sacrifice” yourself for others.

You are allowed to do anything, except to learn about the Creator.

And that is why you can not win. You could if you would wanted to. The Creator would give you His power to do it. But you do not want that, am I right? You want to be yourself. You do not wish to change anything. Sounds familiar? Are these thoughts yours?

Or mine?

THE REDEEMER'S ARRIVAL

Everything was set. The Redeemer could appear now. Through the Prophet Daniel, I have found out the year of the Redeemer's arrival. I learned from Isaiah that He will come as an infant born by a virgin. I found out from Micah's writing where He is going to be born. By carefully studying the Jewish rites, I learned the month of His birth. The Redeemer was to come the following year. I began to search for the girl that could be chosen to carry His Son. There were no such girls in Bethlehem. I separated them all – more or less – from the Creator. There was a girl on the other side of Israel who was especially faithful to the Creator. I realized that the Creator will somehow bring her to Bethlehem to give birth to the Son. I did all I could to make the girl unworthy of it and so to prevent her from giving birth to the Son. I failed.

She soon found out that she was chosen. She was told that she will carry the Creator's Son. Since she just got married, I decided to use her husband to prevent the Creator's intentions. I constantly inspired him with the feelings of jealousy, humiliation and anger. I encouraged him to stone her publicly, but he was also very close to the Creator and I only succeeded in convincing him to leave her. But the Creator intervened and He explained to him in a dream what was going on. A few months later, the Creator took the right to set the rulers on my planet and He arranged that Caesar conducts a censor. In this way, Joseph and Mary were brought to Bethlehem. I thought that it could be a good thing if the baby was born in the unhygienic conditions. maybe it could, like many other children, die from some kind of illness. All I needed to do is to prevent them from spending the night indoor. And I did it. Everyone rejected them, although many of them had spare beds. The Creator forbade me to go near the stable where they eventually ended up. I knew that the Son was born when a large number of Angels appeared, revealing themselves to people and singing a song to the Son.

At the same time, the Angels were very sad, because the people, even though they received so many prophecies, had no idea what was going to happen that night and what did happen. Only I have carefully studied and understood the prophecies. At the same time, I misled others, making mankind completely unprepared for the Redeemer's arrival. Angels only announced this to the shepherds. They were the only visitors that night in the stable. No one else came.

Then the shepherds wanted to tell everybody what happened earlier. That was a good chance for me to check if I have prepared people not to listen to anything they hear about the Redeemer. Of course I did. Although they heard what the ignorant shepherds said, they – in the end – chose to listen to the pharisees and the scribes whom I taught how to interpret the prophecies. Messiah will come to liberate them from the Romans, and a newborn can not do that. Therefore, it is not the Messiah. People continued to live as before. Nothing changed.

Joseph and Mary settled in Bethlehem. The child was brought to temple to be consecrated.

I found out that some astronomers and scholars from the East saw that large number of Angels that sang up in the heavens, thinking that it was a star. With the help of the Jewish writings which they have had ever since the Jewish slavery, they started to study what that star could mean. I tried to mislead them from understanding the prophecy. I failed. I was only able to delay them. A few months later, they found the answer to their question and concluded that it was a star that heralds the coming of the Israel king. They prepared and went on a trip. Ten months later, they were close to Israel. They expected that everyone will easily direct them to the new-born king. But, thanks to me, no one knew anything about it. They decided to go straight to the capital, to the king Herod. He also knew nothing about it, so he called the priests and scribes to answer the question of the wise men. They only knew that the Messiah should appear in Bethlehem.

Herod was ideal to fulfill my plans. My thoughts became his thoughts. I convinced him that he will lose his kingdom. He asked the wise men to tell him where they have found Messiah so that he could go to see Him. Only now the wise men were pointed towards the way to the Creator's Son birth place.

After giving Him the gifts, the Creator revealed to them my intentions and they went back to their land another way. It was not hard for me to persuade Herod to do something drastic. Considering that he found out that the Messiah was born more than a year and a half ago, I did not want to risk, so I convinced him to issue an order to kill every child of up to two years. The Creator intervened again and He told Joseph and Mary to flee in Egypt. The massacre was in vain. I failed. But, I will not give up. In the last five hundred years, I have carefully prepared everything. The Redeemer in human body did not stand a chance against me.

I just needed a single, small sin in any form, and then this planet will be only mine. I did not have even the slightest doubt that I will finally succeed.

CHAPTER 16

THE CONFRONTATION

Due to Joseph and Mary's connection with the Creator, during the years of the Redeemer's childhood on Earth, it was not possible to make them unwary in any way. The Creator explained them that they have no chance against me on their own, so they relied solely on Him and His power.

After returning from Egypt and settling in Nazareth, I have tirelessly tried to make the Redeemer sin. All my efforts and the majority of Angels under my authority were focused on a single goal: making Him to sin. Because of good parental education and the self-knowledge that He is the Creator's Son, the Redeemer resisted all my attacks in His youth. Finally, when He was thirty years old, He was baptized. So He began His ministry. The Creator took Him to the desert in order to prepare Him for the upcoming direct confrontation with me. After speaking with His Father and fasting for 40 days, He was finally ready.

I did not want to miss the best opportunity I might ever have. True, He was spiritually strengthened, confident in His Father's favor, but also physically exhausted. I must use this chance. I know best how weak a man can be when he is hungry. And He was hungry. Very hungry. If I could only make Him use His divine power once, all the Creator's plans would fail. All His achievements would be worthless, because He was forced to use His powers, ones that ordinary man does not have. Therefore, the Law is impossible to keep.

But, hunger did not cloud His mind and my trap failed. Then I tried to assure Him that He should make sure that the Creator is on His side by jumping from the Temple. I even quoted the Scripture to reassure Him that the Creator will save Him. But He declined. Knowing the human lust for power and authority, I offered Him the whole planet, with all its resources, if He bows to me. By the force He was granted from the Creator, He drove me away. My anger and frustration knew no bounds. I was not able to make Him do what I want, even though He was in such a difficult physical state. I could not make Him doubt in the Creator, even for a bit. Even the power I offered Him had absolutely no effect on Him.

This was not supposed to happen. This planet was only mine. I claimed it because no one was able to completely stay loyal to the Creator. If I could just make His Son be disobedient even for a little, or to doubt the Creator just for one moment, or to have any sinful thought — my victory would be complete. The Creator's efforts to recover this planet would, then, be pointless.

But my experience showed me that some people were able to resist the big things, but they fell on the little ones, because I indirectly made them do that. I knew I had no reason to worry. I prepared absolutely everything and all my efforts was directed only toward this.

I carefully observed the Redeemer's work. He began to gather disciples. They were all ignorant people. I did not understand His strategy. If I would want to make a big influence on people, I would go to kings, priests and to wealthy and respectable people. That is what I did, and I was very successful with it. But He knew that these people were under my control and that their door was shut for Him. I wondered how He plans to spread His influence with the help of these ignorant, peasant men. While He was gathering His disciples, I decided to insert one of my men into their group. I chose Judas. He, unlike the others, was very intelligent and insightful. He had very distinct national preferences and I realized that I could influence other disciples through Him, as well as the Redeemer Himself.

As I have expected, the Redeemer lived in a way that the Creator intended for a man — in full compliance with Him. He wanted to set an example to the mankind and show how, despite the condition the humans are in, one can live as He did. He spoke about high moral principles of Heaven, about brotherly love. He spoke about the Creator's Law, but not about its form, but its meaning. The meaning I managed to hide. He told them that they need to change their character. He spoke about His role. He correctly interpreted the prophecies and rites that pointed to Him for thousands of years. He spoke to them about the redemption and salvation, about the eternal life. He showed perfect obedience to the Creator, and He encouraged people to do the same. He showed what perfect obedience grants to common man. He fed the hungry, He healed the sick, and raised the dead. Many people were coming to see Him. It made me sick. Everything that I have been building for centuries was slowly beginning to fall apart.

I tried to trick Him in a variety of ways through the Pharisees and Scribes. I set thousands of traps for Him. I tried to present Him as the One who raises the people against the government, as the One who blasphemes the Creator, I tried to undermine His authority by questioning Him, presented Him as the One who is against rituals and customs, as well as the One who wants to destroy the Temple. I made Him pay the temple taxes in order to present Him as worthless in the eyes of the people, because Prophets were released from this.

But most of all — I tried to discourage Him so that He would not finish His mission. And there is no greater discouragement than seeing that everything you do is always completely misunderstood and devalued. I managed to make that most of His miracles be interpreted as my own work. I was able to blind people so much that they have belittled everything He did.

People were still investigating whether or not He is the Messiah, but His deeds just did not fit into what they were expecting. They expected the liberation from the Romans, and He offered them freedom from sin. They expected the power over all other nations, but He offered them the Kingdom of Heaven. The Messiah was to appear in Bethlehem, and they thought He came from Nazareth. They expected the Emperor, but they got the servant. I completely darkened the minds of Israelis with their aspirations and desires to get rid of the Romans. They did not understand the prophecies of the Redeemer's first arrival. They applied the prophecies about His second coming to His first coming. People's disappointment grew.

It was time to act through my man, Judas.

CHAPTER 17

JUDAS

Under the pretence of true discipleship, I encouraged Judas to think that the Redeemer will give the Jews what they have wanted for a long time. While he was observing the works of the Redeemer, I helped him to prepare a plan that will make the Redeemer do what the people wanted — to free them from the slavery.

On one occasion, while the Redeemer was feeding a multitude of people, I suggested to Judas that, with the Redeemer on their side, the Jews would be invincible. He can feed an army just by Himself. He will heal the wounded soldiers by Himself, He will resurrect those who were killed. He will encourage every demoralized soldier. Judas had to do something. He had to crown the Redeemer as their King, even by force and against His will. If He would reject that, the people would reject Him as well. And He does not want that to happen. The Redeemer simply had no choice. He had to become the King. Everyone would welcome that, even the ignorant people, as well as the pharisees and the priests. Who would resist this? No one. The trap was literally perfect.

Judas soon organized everything. The people were delighted. Everyone said that nothing like this has ever happened. The only thing they did not understand was the Redeemer's modesty. They decided to act. I was close to achieving my goal. If He accepts the crown, they will not kill Him. If they do not kill Him, He will not redeem the mankind. If He does not redeem the mankind, He Himself will be under my rule, as well as the whole Universe.

To my astonishment, He found out what the people were up to and He sneaked out from the crowd and left.

My anger became the anger of the people. My frustration became their frustration. But unlike humans, my anger does not affect my reasoning. On the contrary. I immediately suggested to Judas that it would be the best that he personally deliver the Redeemer to the priests and elders, because, once He is prevented from accomplishing His goal, He will have no other choice but to use His divine power to free Himself. Judas started thinking how He could accomplish this. He did not want to betray the Redeemer. He just wanted to use Him to help his people, even against His will. At least, I suggested him so. No one – except me – could see the depth of the Redeemer's mission. The Redeemer wanted to truly and genuinely help people, to help them choose the eternal life with the Creator. And I was able to hide almost everything related to that goal from people, setting the earthly well-being as their only goal. In this case — the liberation from the Roman oppression.

Judas will accomplish my plans. I knew that. It will be too late for him when he realizes what he has done.

CHAPTER 18

MY FATE

I listened very carefully to what the Redeemer was telling to people, so that I could use it against Him. And then, while He was teaching His disciples, I found out what fate the Creator has intended for me. He was not going to just banish me if the Redeemer succeeds in His plan, He was going to destroy me. Completely and forever. I was terrified. So far, the goat, Azazel, comforted me because it was not killed, but just banished.

But the Creator was not intending to leave the sin unpunished. The Redeemer was to pay the penalty for the sins of a repented man, but I will be the one to bear the consequences for those who did not repent. Everything became clear to me. Every man whom I have managed to separate from the Creator will bear the final penalty for his sins and trespasses by himself, while for those who rejected me — I will be the one to bear the consequences. Their sins were thrown on me.

This knowledge only angered me more and made me hate the Creator even more. And ALL people. YOU too. My revenge will be terrible. I am going to be destroyed, but you are going to suffer. You will suffer terribly. Considering that there is no any other way for me to hurt the Creator except through mankind, can you guess who will suffer the most? Can you guess who will feel the full blast of my hatred and my power? Can you begin to understand the work and persistence I put into the destruction of EVERY single man? There are no exceptions!

THE PASSOVER

I could not understand why the Redeemer agreed to descend from His heavenly Throne and to become one of those pathetic and worthless creatures — man. Not only that, but He is willing to let His own creatures kill Him! And what for? So that He could pay the penalty for their sins? For thousands of years, I could not believe it, but, now, I was sure that He is really going to do that. I had to stop Him.

I tirelessly whispered to Him that His death will be in vain. That it is not worthy to die for man. That man deserves to remain under my control. I would constantly remind Him of that each time they did not listen to Him. Even though He encouraged, comforted, healed and raised them from the dead, they now hated Him. He did that tirelessly for three and a half years, and what has He accomplished? He had a handful of twelve poor souls who would be willing to give Him up at the slightest sign of trouble. He also spoke to them tirelessly for three and a half years, He taught them, He lived with them day and night, and they thought only about one thing — which one of them will get the highest position in the newly established government.

In spite of all of His explanations, they did not realize the true nature of His mission. He is a servant that will lay down His life.

And what did He have after three and a half years? NOTHING! One big NOTHING. Unless I count sadness, grief and disappointment. No one can cope with such disappointments. He will have to give up. I was convinced of it.

Judas prepared everything. For thirty silver coins, the priests were promised that he will help them to catch the Redeemer. During the dinner, the Redeemer debunked Judas so that only he knew that He is familiar with what will happen. After that, the Redeemer went to the Garden of Gethsemane with some of His disciples. And I was waiting for Him there. I used all my power to break His determination and His will to continue with His plan. His body barely coped with the pressure. Suddenly I realized that He was completely alone. His Father was not with Him anymore? What happened? After a moment of confusion, I continued to pressure Him. But He resisted. For the first time, I saw fear and indecisiveness in His eyes. Just a little more and I will succeed. The Creator did not respond to His cries. The disciples He brought with Him fell asleep. He was alone against me. I poisoned His mind with the darkest thoughts and fears, with the utter despair. Nothing was working. I could have crushed Him with ease, but it was forbidden to me. After everything, He was determined to finish His mission. I had no intention of giving up. Everything was at the stake. If He resisted the mental pressure, He will not be able to stand the physical torment. Even the strongest ones have some limit. He does too.

Soon, the priests and their men arrived led by Judas. For Judas, this was the culmination. When the Redeemer mentioned that He could easily call Angels to help Him, Judas believed that He will indeed do so and so to free Himself and start ruling Israel. But He did not do it. They tied Him up, they beat Him, and led Him from one authority to another. And Judas suddenly – before everyone else – realized what the Redeemer’s words of His suffering and death really meant. He will not free Himself! He is going to die! And he – Judas – was to blame for it. He went to the priests to explain that the Redeemer is innocent. But it was too late. He was close to repenting, but why would I bear his punishment? I assured him that his sin is so great that he can not repent it. Therefore, it is best for him to commit suicide. He listened to me.

When the Redeemer was taken to Pilate, I saw that he was going to release Him. I showed him all the possible political problems which would occur if he releases this man. People might rebel, and he would be to blame for the potential unrest. Also, he would not be the ruler of Judea anymore. He was not sure what to do: to convict an innocent man and to keep his political career, or to release Him and to say goodbye to his ambitions. He did not think too much. As I said before, a man is capable of doing even the strangest things because of power. The Redeemer was convicted. But, this was only the beginning. His death would mean my defeat. He must not die. I decided only to torture Him until He realizes how pointless His plan is — He wants to die and so to redeem His own creatures who are torturing Him. I encouraged the crowd to humiliate Him even more.

Mocking, spitting, kicking, stripping naked, crowning with thorns, lashing...

I was with Him the whole time, whispering to Him: »Are these the creatures you want to die for? Do you want to redeem them? It is better that you give up, and to return to Your Father«.

He was slowly moving to the hill where He will be crucified. I specially designed this type of torturing so that the victim could suffer for days. The victim was nailed to the cross through the hands and the feet. The knees were slightly bent. While hanging on nail-pierced hands, the pressure on the lungs was so high that the victim would begin to suffocate. To prevent this, the victim would use its pierced feet to raise itself and catch a breath. This caused unbelievable pain.

He was nailed to the cross. Raised. I stayed close to Him. I had a few days more to try to convince Him to give up. No one can endure such a torment. I encouraged the people to mock Him while He was on the cross. I wanted Him to take the remedy which would weaken His mind so that I could affect it more easily. He refused.

Suddenly, the sky darkened. Everybody was silent. Then they panicked. And He was alone. The only one who was with Him was ME. I told Him that, except that He did not accomplish anything with the mankind, His Father also abandoned Him. I realized that in that very moment, all the sins of the mankind were on Him and in Him. Even if He withstands my pressure and the physical suffering, He will not be able to cope with the separation from the Father. He will give up.

A couple of hours after that, the impossible HAPPENED. He died. There are no words which could describe what I have felt in that moment. He simply was NOT supposed to die. He had to give up. But He did not. All the prophecies and symbols that the rites indicated came true that day. The Creator tore up a few feet high curtain in the Temple with His hand. Services in the Temple lost their meaning completely.

My fate was sealed and my defeat was final. I did not use the ONLY chance I had. He denied all my claims against the Creator and His Law.

Then they took Him from the cross and buried Him. He said that He will resurrect. I did not even think of stopping Him in that. But I came up with a story for the gullible. My followers claimed that His disciples stole Him, while the well-trained Roman soldiers were guarding the grave. Of course, many of them believed it.

He rose from the dead. He spoke to women and then appeared among the disciples. I listened to what He was saying to them. He will stay with them to the end of this world. He does not really think that a handful of uneducated poor people can do anything useful? I have manipulated with them while He was standing right next to them. With Him out of sight, things will be much easier.

The prophecies – given so far – pointed toward a very long period of time to come until His second coming. I had to look for other ways to keep the Earth under my control.

THE APOSTLES

The Redeemer returned to His Father. He told to the eleven Apostles not to go far from Jerusalem. The prophecies claimed that they would receive the necessary Force to begin their work. The Redeemer personally promised them that. But the Creator grants His Force only if His prerequisites are met. I had to divide them. To make them discordant. To fill their lives with obligations and other earthly cares. To persecute them through people under my control. Without the Creator's Force, they will be completely helpless. I decided to destroy the Redeemer's work in its initial stages. But the enthusiasm and the experience they had were insurmountable obstacles to do what I have intended. They did not separate. They talked all the time about what has happened. They prayed together. They supported each other. They interpreted and ascertained everything their Redeemer told them after His resurrection.

Ten days after He returned to His Father, the Redeemer sent the Force to His disciples.

Up to that moment, I comforted myself with the thought that the Redeemer's life and work did not leave a significant mark on this world. Therefore, I was sure that His disciples will not do anything important. But when the disciples received the Force, they went into the crowd, and most of them soon realized that they were tricked and that the One they have killed was indeed the Son of God — the Messiah, whom they have been waiting. After that, thousands repented for their sins and joined the Creator's side. I could not believe what was happening — people standing up against me on my planet...?

As many times before, I used the state and church authorities to achieve my goals. I organized the persecution and destruction of the members of that movement. Everyone faithful to the Creator was declared an infidel and as an enemy of the people. I darkened the human mind so much that they were ready to arrest and brutally kill others, even though they did not violate any law. I organized the public stoning and persecutions. The people were euphoric. Some of them to be on the Redeemer's side, others to destroy the first ones. I chose a very devout Jew whom I fully inspired and convinced that banishing and killing the Redeemer's followers is actually the Creator's will. Although a lot of people accepted my suggestion, he was especially eager and zealous. But the Redeemer decided to select him, Saul of Tarsus, as the twelfth Apostle. He revealed to Saul and sent him to His disciples. They quickly acquainted him with what the Redeemer said and did, and the Redeemer Himself spoke to him in visions, preparing him for his service. Knowing Saul's ability and eagerness, I decided to remove him, because he could quickly become a serious problem.

In a short period of time, the Apostles organized the Church under the Redeemer's leadership and they spread themselves across many countries. From a handful of poor people, they have become worthy opponents. The only thing that I could do was to make their lives as difficult as possible. State authorities and fanatical formal believers were a powerful tool I used to hinder their progress.

On the other hand, I tortured the Apostles with the dispiritedness. They could not understand why they face so many obstacles while offering the world something better. Some of the Apostles wrote letters to encourage newly formed churches that they had to leave in order to establish new ones. I carefully studied what they said, and I deliberately raised the ones who wrongly interpreted these words, thus destroying the Church from within. It had to fall, sooner or later. I put an extra effort to eliminate the Apostles because they were the living witnesses of what the Redeemer said and did. As such, they were the main reason why the Church expanded. And I did it — one by one, very cruelly. As they were dying, I was next to them asking where is their Redeemer now, why does not He save them. But this did not discourage them, because they knew that this life is actually a preparation for a better, eternal life. They died with joy. I knew I had to distort the Redeemer's teachings once again. But it required time, and I had to act immediately.

By killing them, I took away their opportunity to live, but I also ruined my chances of bringing them on my side by making them unfaithful to the Creator, or, at the very least, fanatical. But there was no way of stopping the spreading of the truths they preached.

I continued to encourage the persecution and hostility towards them wherever they showed up. I had to kill some of them so that I could slow down the expansion of their teachings.

As much as I have tried, they seemed to be always one step ahead of me, even though I knew what their plans were. Even though I introduced many false doctrines into the first Church and tried to feed old misconceptions, the Church continued to grow. There was one type of misconceptions for Jews, and another one for converted non-Jews. But it only slowed down the expansion of the Church. It did not stop it.

I began planning a new strategy against the Creator. Strategy against what He did through the Redeemer. So far, I managed to suppress all His efforts to expand the truths about Himself — I will do it AGAIN.

A WINNING STRATEGY

After the Redeemer's death, the Jews had – according to Daniel's prophecy – three and a half years to repent and turn to the Creator. They did not do that. At least, not as a nation. They chose me as their master. I decided to destroy every mention of them. I had Jerusalem destroyed in no time. The Creator managed to save only those who He took away from the city a couple of years before its complete destruction. The others continued killing each other until Titus came and destroyed the entire city. He wanted no victims. I have managed to flare up the Jewish national pride so much, that all his efforts to persuade Jews to surrender failed. Eventually, Titus entered the city, and because of the rage of the Roman soldiers – who hated Jews who lived in Jerusalem at that time – the entire city was burned and destroyed to the ground, as well as the Temple.

Enraged over the Redeemer's success, I decided to completely physically exterminate all His followers. At that moment, the whole world was under my control. Rome and its authority worshipped me. I organized public executions of Christians as a form of entertainment. I accused Christians as enemies of the state and as the cause of all evil. They were caught, arrested and thrown into arenas where they died in a terrible pain. They threw them to the lions or armed gladiators, they burned them at stakes, they was tortured and killed. But they, like their teachers, died with joy. Even with song. But instead of demoralizing and scaring others by such actions, and convincing them to give up from following and living according to the Redeemer's teachings, I achieved the opposite.

Hiding in the catacombs beneath the earth and meeting secretly, the Church grew unstoppably, much faster than I was able to destroy it. There was a danger that other people may realize that I exist by wondering who would kill an honest, humble, good and modest man for no reason. They might connect those people – who did such things – with me, who inspired them to do such things. I wanted to stay in the shadow. I had to think of something else. More effective.

And a brilliant idea crossed my mind. Knowing the Creator, I was familiar with what He wants from His followers. And I knew what He does not want and what offends Him. I also knew under what conditions He can never save people who are convinced that they are serving Him.

I decided to distort the truth for a bit, the truth He left to His followers. Not much, so that the misconceptions would not be easily spotted. Not immediately, so that the Church leaders would not notice it.

The Creator forbade His people to follow the religious customs of other nations. In His perfect plan, He did not want to let man to make changes and to determine the rules by which he serves the Creator. He knew that I was behind all of it, and that I would – sooner or later – use that deficiency in service to win over the people to my side. I devised a perfect plan of how to merge the Roman religion with Christianity. I waited for about two hundred years. I did not stand still during this period. I introduced more and more problems, misconceptions and prejudices among Christians in order to successfully implement my plan.

When Constantine became the ruler of Rome, I used him to accomplish my plans. I assured him that it is in his best interest to make Christianity the official religion of the Roman empire. Considering that he had rather vague ideas about Christianity and its meaning, he ordered his whole army to be baptized. Mithraism – the worship of the Sun – was the main religion in Rome for centuries. Therefore, I suggested to him that it would be wise to rename the Pagan deities into Christian apostles and to call them Saints. Then everyone would be pleased by it. Of course, everything was done very subtle, so it had its apparent justification in the Redeemer's teachings. Do I really have to say that my idea was so good that it lasted up to this very day?

You are also a part of it, are not you?

The idea was literally perfect. Everyone fell into my trap. Well, almost everyone. Except an insignificant number of those who were not seduced by my tricks. My success was immeasurable. By killing Christians physically, I was only doing them a favor. They would remain faithful until death, thus gaining what the Redeemer made possible — resurrection and the eternal life.

But by putting the misconceptions into the truth, I achieved the real victory. I led them into eternal destruction, without them even being aware of it. They continued living their lives, they stayed religious, they prayed to the Creator, but — in MY way. I gradually introduced what the Creator forbade — pagan customs, pagan statues, pagan images. I even managed to change the weekly holiday — the day that pointed to the Creator. I managed to switch the Christian day of rest and celebration, which was, of course, the same as the Jewish one, to the first day of the week. Christians welcomed that Commandment, because they were often equated and persecuted along with the Jews.

I changed the feast in honor of the birth of the Sun into the day of the Redeemer's birth. I did the same with the pagan Spring feast by changing its purpose — it now celebrated the Redeemer's resurrection. People worshipped the Creator through customs and holidays I established. At least they believed that they worshipped the Creator. By separating them from the truth, they lost the ability to see the purpose of life the Creator intended for man. I did not encounter any resistance. People have been stranded for the eternity, and I did not even have to chase and kill them. As I said before — a perfect plan!

At that time, I failed to fulfill another idea. Since the Creator initiated people to perform and select the writings which will be included in the biblical Canon, I tried to inspire and suggest them to incorporate as many fabricated writings as possible in it. But the Creator did not let me do that. All that was left for me is to try to belittle those writings. Not too innovative – but quite useful – was my attempt to try to spread the doubt in the veracity of the Bible, because it was written by man. Man also decided which book will become a part of the Canon, and which book will not.

Fortunately, very few people think about this argument. To them, it seems irrefutable. No one asks why man would canonize those scriptures that he will not adhere, the books that judge him, and for which he would fear they could get into the hands of the ordinary people. Why not choose the scriptures that suit their own views, and then recommend them to the people, thus ensuring the complete control over their minds in the centuries to come? Nobody realizes it in this way, there would be no religious conflicts, persecution, and heresy... People would believe whatever they want... Whatever I want.

Human shallowness and willingness to accept new ideas without thinking, questioning and testing them is one of my favorite human traits.

And that is what I like about you.

THE MIDDLE AGES

The prophecy said that the Roman Empire will fall apart. Under the onslaught of the barbarian tribes, it completely collapsed. I tried to grant the state power to the Church, whose doctrines already were far from the original teachings of the Apostles. Then, I would be able to fully exterminate those who did not accept the misconceptions I introduced into the Church. In the following generations, the Church ceased to be what the Creator intended it to be and it became fully MINE. But first, I had to make sure that the Church – which I moved to Rome – is completely separated from the East. I did not want to leave the slightest possibility that Christianity – even in its diluted form – spreads to the East.

The people of the Middle East were rather disjointed, aggressive and alienated. I shaped their mentality through the centuries and – in accordance with it – I devised a special religion for them. This religion was, of course, intolerant towards Christianity and Jews. I managed to reorganize them very quickly and to spread this new belief system from the far West to India.

I gave the religious and civil authority to the Church of Rome. She quickly became the exact opposite of what the Creator wanted it to become. Due to the authority it had and the false decrees, I suggested it to issue an order to confirm her authority over the Church, as well as over the state, it had a great influence throughout the whole then-known world. Everyone accepted her authority and belief system which I have spread through her. My victory was almost complete.

But one thing this church – which rose in power and force – lacked was the effective mechanism to prevent the spreading of the truth. Considering that I have organized new persecutions of those who opposed to what the Church taught, true followers of the Redeemer could teach and preach the truth only in secrecy. Those who followed the Creator's truth lived in the extreme poverty and they could only spread the truth – which I wanted to be hidden – on such an insignificant level. Of course, I dealt with this problem too. Under the excuse of the restoration of the Church, I organized various ranks of the poor clergy that would deal with the Redeemer's preaching on this level as well.

I humiliated the Church to the point that it waged the most shameful wars and exterminations in the name of the Creator. The Crusades were organized in His name. This only deepened the gap between the East and the West, between the people and the Church in general. Between man and the Creator. Many stopped believing that the Creator even exists upon seeing what the Church was capable of doing in His name. To them, I presented the Church teachings as a careful, man-made, creation. This way, every man was exposed to my influence, whether he was a believer or not.

By depriving the people of the Scriptures the Creator wanted to show to the world, I was able to spread prejudices and misconceptions of various kinds. In addition to the aforementioned acceptance of the pagan customs, I added many other misconceptions and untruths — the cruel Creator who punishes, the Creator who needs to be propitiated, justification by deeds, paid forgiveness, life after death, prayers for the dead, human intermediaries before the Creator — the saints, the worshipping of the Redeemer's mother... I have managed to gradually change the rites that the Redeemer Himself established so that they lose their true symbolism. These are the misconceptions I was able to introduce into the Church and then to firmly embed them, even seemingly proving them by citing certain sections of the Creator's Scriptures. Since I managed to convince them that the Scriptures can only be interpreted by the authorized people – the Church authorities – it was not a problem for me to keep these misconceptions up to this very day.

Apart from keeping the Creator's Scriptures at a safe distance from people, I made sure that ordinary folk was illiterate, while those who could read and write were mostly under my influence. The oral tradition – together with a small number of writings which believers carefully guarded and transcribed – was almost insignificant attempt to spread the truth about the Creator and the Redeemer. There were moments when I thought that I finally won, but, somehow, a couple of them would always find a way to keep the truth unchanged. As the light of the Creator's truth slowly faded away, I eagerly waited for the moment when it will all be over.

But my waiting does not mean inactivity. The Creator's followers lived in the poor living conditions, and I reckoned that these are the ideal circumstances to exterminate them in a way they did not expect. They can not hide from this new, powerful and insidious weapon — the black plague. I tried to infect them with this deadly disease in every possible way, but the Creator did not allow them to be completely annihilated. Although one third of the world's population died, I still was not able to destroy His followers completely.

To my surprise, the Creator used the honesty of one of the Roman priests who studied His Scriptures, to initiate a new wave of spreading the truth. My anger knew no bounds. I was so near to complete the destruction of all His followers and He decides to use the authority – who I established – to spread the truth. Martin Luther revolted against the teachings of his own church. He discovered the truth I wanted to hide – the truth about justification by faith – which exposed the misconceptions of a cruel God and showed that the Redeemer gave His life to pay the penalty for sin. He started translating the Scriptures to his native language. He wanted to make them available to everyone. I had to stop that. I wanted to destroy them, but the Creator did not allow it. He always finds new ways to get His truth to the people. Soon, similar movements rose in other parts of Europe. With the help of my church, I started a war against all those who taught otherwise. I had to start from the beginning.

I established the Inquisition, and then I used it to destroy those who dared to side with the reformers, but that simply was not enough to stop the spreading of the truth.

After that, a new land was discovered — America. A part of the Creator's followers decided to move there, where they could freely preach the truth about the Creator.

Time was running out, and the truth was spreading once again. I started to realize that I will not be able to stop it from spreading, so I decided to concentrate all my powers into one effort — new misconceptions, the masking of the truth and misinterpretation.

Since the Creator led His people, multitudes of them realized the truth about the misconceptions I maintained for over a millennia. The settlers tried to create a completely different social order than those in Europe. I was not too worried. Whatever the form of the governance is, man will always want power and be selfish. Because I support him in that.

THE REMNANT

In the next three hundred years, the Creator let the new light illuminate the long forgotten biblical truths. The time has come for me to use different types of prejudices. There was no Bible study where my associates and I were not present at, always ready to feed and introduce new misconceptions as much as possible. Some had new insights and wanted to introduce them in already existing communities. Then I managed to convince sincere believers not to accept these new findings and only to stick to what was previously known to them. Those who had some new findings, had to leave their communities in order to use these new informations. I was pleased with what I have accomplished. I managed to separate those who had the Creator's Scriptures in their hands into dozens of small, mutually similar, and yet completely intolerant communities. I overstated the newly discovered truths, and made people believe them to be more important than the previously discovered informations, thus creating imbalance in faith and implementation of what the Creator wanted — reunification in the truth. I ruined some of them by preventing them from accepting new truths, while I cheated others due to their spiritual arrogance, for considering themselves so good that they accepted these new revelations. Yes, it does sound contradictory, but I can make a believer live in the belief that he is a faithful servant of the Creator, and, at the same time, to be arrogant and intolerant toward others.

One by one, the truths were being discovered. The lie about the state of the dead was debunked. In addition, a new light was cast on the Redeemer's second coming. Accordingly, the truth about the Final Judgment was also discovered.

As time went on, I saw that the Creator wants to unite all those truths in one community of believers as it was the case in the first Church. Although I tried to stop that, the Creator succeeded. Therefore, I have put every effort that the truths be misunderstood, but the enthusiasm and seriousness that the Apostles had prevented me to fully accomplish my intentions. I only managed to seduce them to allow themselves to calculate the exact date of the Redeemer's second coming. I was hoping that their disappointment in the Bible will discourage them, so that they start to regard it as unreliable and that they will start doubting everything, even the existence of the Creator Himself. Soon, they were convinced that they have calculated the exact date of the Redeemer's second coming. Of course, He did not come. The Redeemer have not even said anywhere that He will come on that day. My deception was successful. The disappointment was great. Although the number of believers was drastically reduced, many of them have searched for a mistake in their own interpretation, and not in the Bible. This spurred them on reunification and a deeper study.

The truth about the Creator's eternal Law was also rediscovered. The Ten Commandments were accentuated as the basic moral principle. But people did not like these new truths, because they did not fit in all the prejudices which I have introduced over the centuries: a need for a visible deity, widely accepted day of rest and celebration, lust, greed, selfishness, violence, endlessly recited prayers, human intermediaries and much more...

My work was also revealed, through the truth about my origin and everything that I have done, as well as through fatal misconceptions I introduced and expanded through my church. I was exposed. Soon, many people knew the full truth. I was belittled, portrayed as a villain, the cause of everything evil that ever happened on Earth as well as in the Universe. I had to carefully conceal my work and to draw people's attention to something else.

If the Creator thought that, by exposing me to the world, He will hinder my actions in any way, and that the preaching of His truth will reach everyone, He was very wrong. I had many more ways of separating man from the Creator.

How will the truths about the Creator reach everyone if I tell people that the Creator does not exist? If I say that the world was not created, but that it was formed ACCIDENTALLY?

And what if, in support of it, I present evidences? Scientific evidences...?

THE THEORY OF EVOLUTION

For thousands of years, there was no particular technological progress on Earth. I saw that the Creator intends to change that. He inspired many people to discover new informations about the Universe, nature, chemistry, biology, physics and other areas of science. But there is nothing that the Creator can use, which I could not misuse. Along with the discovery of the truths about the One who created the Earth and the Universe and the One who will judge the world, I had to introduce an opposite doctrine that would cast a shadow on what the Creator wanted to tell the world. Throughout the Bible, people were taught to worship the One who created Heaven and Earth.

As human knowledge and different sciences progressed, I wanted to use that fact completely, and I came up with a theory that would seduce all those who consider themselves wise and educated, through strong pseudo-arguments. It was particularly important because that part of the society had the greatest influence on the development of civilization.

I used a young medicine and theology student through whom I managed to set the foundation of the modern theory of evolution. Due to the prejudices people had towards the Church – for what it has done in the Middle Ages – a lot of them lost their faith, equating the Creator with the Church. That was precisely what I wanted. In such circumstances, it was not too hard to give the world a new theory — a better theory of the origin of the world which teaches that there is no Creator. I flared up the imagination of people who started exploring this theory. My theory. Knowing the stupidity and frivolity of the human mind, I did not have to bother myself much about the clear flaws of such a theory. It was important to give the basis that opposes to those who claim that the Creator created everything with His Word.

Suddenly, people started believing that everything was created by pure accident, that they do not have to answer to anyone, as the only purpose of their lives is to please themselves, and that it does not matter what they do, because they are all going to die in a normal, natural and completely uncontrolled cycle. And while being overwhelmed by hopelessness on one hand, they were seduced by the sense of freedom, on the other.

I had to give a starting point to the theory of evolution, so I have – once again – relied on human stupidity and came up with the Big Bang theory. And so, you now believe that something exploded somewhere, and that from such uncontrolled explosion, during billions and billions of years, something thickened due to certain natural forces, thus creating the planets. And then again, after millions and millions of years, the conditions to create life suddenly appeared. And it all appeared out of nothing...

I am especially proud of this because human stupidity seems infinite at this moment, considering that this theory is accepted by the most educated people. Hence, man believed that something so complex and inexplicable, something that no man – not even I – can create, under any conditions, appeared by ACCIDENT. As the new fossils were being found, I continued to upgrade my theory to make it more believable. I wanted to humiliate the Creator and man even more by suggesting that humans, roughly speaking, descended from the apes. The apparent similarity between man and apes is not the result of some imaginary process, but rather a result of the degradation of man. That is the only thing that can be accomplished by mutations, caused by various life conditions and habits. Decay, not progress and development.

Can you believe that something so hollow – as the theory of evolution is – can still be believed up to this very day? The secret of the survival of such a theory is not in its irrefutability. It does not have that much of power on its own. Its power lies in the human desire for “freedom”, which I constantly nourish. Man does not want to answer to anyone for what he does. For this reason, he will accept even the craziest theories.

As new evidences for the Creation appeared, I had to come up with new theories and explanations in various areas. That is why I – for instance – attributed the disappearance of the dinosaurs (most of them died in the Flood) to a fall of an asteroid and the ice age. A natural and accidental disaster. And the truth is that many of them were saved with Noah in the Ark, and lived for a long time among humans, until they – due to the deteriorating conditions on Earth – were extinct. Hence, in each culture, no matter what part of the world, there are legends about dragons. Fortunately, only few people links this to dinosaurs.

I explained the discovery of fossil remains of animals in the Polar Regions with my theory of the divisions of continents during millions of years, while I presented the theory of the antediluvian aqueous layer around the planet as so unbelievable that no one can consider it true. And that is exactly what happened. Due to the influence of the aqueous layer, because of the greenhouse effect, this planet had the uniform climate, suitable for the most abundant life of many different species. Hence, the life in Antarctica. There are many similar examples which I explained in my own way.

Although the theory of evolution itself is pretty hollow and connected by assumptions rather than evidences, and even though many faithful people and supporters of the Creation pointed to many gaps and inconsistencies, the apparent proofs had much greater impact on people. And while I inspired scientists to present new and unproven theories, I also encouraged people to observe faith as something that limits their endless freedom.

I set a big prejudice by introducing the theory of evolution. Every new information must be placed into the already accepted theory. If that is not possible, that finding is then automatically rejected, because people deeply believe that the only acceptable explanation for the origin of everything on Earth is evolution through natural selection. That way, many evidences which support the Creation are forgotten and cast aside. Only the ones which can be incorporated into the existing theory of evolution are accepted.

My greatest success with the theory of evolution is that I was able to convince those, who claim that they believe in the Creator, to declare the first eleven chapters of the Bible as fictitious. But that is also a part of my plan. I even convinced some of them that the Creator started creating with the evolution.

If I can manage to devalue the name of the Creator within religious circles, the image of the Creator would be degraded forever. People would never again be able to connect with the Creator in the way He intended, because they would have completely wrong idea of what He really wants.

The theory of evolution opened the door for many other delusions. It made the Creator's existence become unnecessary. Without the Creator, there are no moral principles that He gave. The Scriptures He wrote through His people no longer have any purpose. People are turning to themselves — they are turning to ME.

I was able to convince man to reject everything that he can not understand with his poor and miserable mind. Today, the greatest scientists will claim that there is no Creator, even though they are aware of how little mankind truly knows about the nature and about the Universe, and there is so much that it is – at THIS very moment – unfathomable and incomprehensible to the human mind. Man can only see a small part of the color spectrum. Not to mention the sound spectrum and the radiation, large areas and the atomic particles, of which man manage to experience just almost insignificant part. The reason for that is the degradation of mankind and its separation from the Creator because of sin, for which I take all the credits. But I guess scientists know that. And they know — a lot of what can be known from your “ant” perspective. And believe me, that is very little.

The Creator was losing the battle for mankind once again. More and more people were supporting the theory of evolution, thus directly rejecting the Creator. My plan was perfect. I introduced an incorrect theory and I used various branches of science to support it. The theory itself was not and, of course, never will be science, but the tinges of a real science make this fabrication to seem true: something that can be proven, but, at the same time, it can not be. Perfect, is not it?

Do you still think that you are smart and that you decide for yourself what to do and what to believe in? Are you a part of this group of people whom I have successfully separated from the Creator? You are, are not you? No? Do not worry, you will soon realize that you were seduced and tricked by some of my many hundreds of misconceptions which I spread across this planet.

You are also my victim, only you do not realize it just yet. But you will.

Will you be able to return to the Creator? Of course you will not. Not because He does not want you to return to Him, but because I am going to make sure that you do not want it.

THE NEW AGE

The predicted increase of human knowledge was already taking its root, as in the area of the truths about the Creator, but also in other areas of human interest. People were inventing new things. Printing press, the steam engine, different types of vehicles, communication devices, electrical power... Although it all contributed to the spread of the truths about the Creator, it was also good for me.

I could not stop the spreading of the truths. Therefore, I put a special effort to slow it down as much as possible. I had to preoccupy people with other things so that they could not spend enough time learning about the Creator's plans. I founded different mutually intolerant ideologies such as Nazism and Communism. When these ideologies developed sufficiently, I used the above mentioned progress of human knowledge to encourage them to make their ideology superior to others. Knowledge was used to produce all kinds of new weapons. I was proud of my success. And, while in the past I had to do a lot of work to kill a larger number of people, I now inspired man to develop much more effective ways of destroying himself. New firearms, chemical and biological weapons. I caused wars for various reasons. It did not even matter why. It was only important that people are getting killed. Many of them have never even heard about the Creator.

I easily used human traits such as pride, arrogance and selfishness to accomplish my goals. Ideological turmoil and war were ideal conditions to stop the spreading of the truths.

But I did not stop at it. My area of activity has no boundaries. I work in ALL areas of human existence. The Church – through which I worked in the Middle Ages – almost completely lost its power and authority. I had to restore it. I waited for hundred and fifty years, so that the memory of what it has done fades away. Soon, I restored its power, and the nations under my control easily accepted this. My Church became authority once again. And the greatest one. All I had to do is to change its appearance, but to leave its purpose exactly as it is — to separate people from the Creator with plenty of lies and misconceptions combined with a bit of the truth.

Through my Church and its authority, I had to deny all those truths that were being discovered. Even though many who read the Bible pointed to the differences from what the Scriptures says, I denied everything by claiming that my Church has the right to change everything she wants, considering that she was the Creator's only legitimate heir on Earth. And I used the Bible to prove all of it. How did I do that? No one on Earth knows the Bible better than I do. And no one can so skillfully misuse it as I can. Only those who carefully and persistently read the Bible can spot the thin line between the life-saving truth and the fatal misconception. Fortunately, there are very few of this kind. Even among the Creator's chosen nation.

With the victory of Communism in many countries, I have managed to satisfy the inner need for the universal equality, the need for the apparent justice, while simultaneously removing the Creator from their lives. The lifestyle I then imposed observed the faithfulness to the Creator almost as an anti-state act. At the same time, I developed completely different trend in the capitalist countries.

The simplest and the most useful was certainly MATERIALISM. It is something I have managed to keep up to this very day.

But the truth – induced by the Creator's power and people who could not be seduced and separated from Him – was still spreading unstoppably. People who properly understood the true values of life did all they could, often sacrificing their own lives to spread the truth as much as possible. Due to the new social system, I could not start an open war against them, but I have created strong reluctance against any new information regarding the Creator. As always, the majority was on my side, and the process of spreading the truth was very difficult and slow.

One of my best prejudices is the one that claims that the majority is always right and that something which has been accepted a long time ago is always correct. Because of that prejudice, people are capable of looking at the real truth and yet staying in their delusion. And, on this planet, the majority was never right, at least regarding the truth about the Creator. Nor will they ever be.

THE CONFUSION

Every corner of this planet has a way that I can use to ruin mankind. Keeping people away from the truths about the Creator, fatal misconceptions in the truth itself, the theory of evolution, various political ideologies, wars, mass destruction, false religions, fanaticism, atheism... Every man is a victim of at least one of them. Almost everyone.

In spite this, the Creator made His Word spread unstoppably. And I could not do anything about it. I needed a new strategy. Using the familiar human traits and needs, as well as the wishes of those who accepted the truths presented in the Bible, I have inspired them to interpret them in a way to have the truth adapted to themselves, not the other way around. Knowing the human vanity, the power of human ego and man's – now inborn – selfishness, it was not a particular problem for me to be successful in this area. All of this produced a fertile ground for the unhindered multiplication of various Christian communities. Those – who did not want to find out more – stayed in an existing community, while those – who have discovered and accepted more – established new communities. I introduced some type of misconception in each of them. But each of them had something in common as well. I did it, so that I could easily unite them all against the Creator's people.

The more Christian communities there are, the smaller they will be. The more communities there are, the less convincing they are. As it was more of them, it was more difficult to recognize the real truth — the Creator's truth. The truth itself, among them, looked just like one of them, in no way special.

The differences between some communities were small, while, in other cases, they were big. And they all read the same book — the Bible. My perfect knowledge of the Bible – combined with human hypocrisy – allowed me to manipulate with it however I want. I misinterpreted its truths to some people and I hid to the others. This allowed me to inspire some of them to wrongly interpret some biblical passages and to tolerate sin in their communities. I inspired others to reject everything that does not fit their needs and wishes, helping them to find the apparent justification in the Bible. Knowing the desired spirituality level of every man, I allowed him to join a community which will suit his needs the best.

In addition, I brought people into Christian communities for various, wrong reasons. Some were afraid of death and hell. That was very effective, because those people would come to the Creator not out of love, as He wants, but out of fear, never being able to know Him completely. Others joined these communities because they hoped they would be blessed financially due to their faith. Such people would quickly leave the Creator when they see that things do not work that way. Others came because of music and song, or because of friends. To others, faith was a hobby. Of course, I convinced them they have come to the Creator out of the purest reasons, while, in fact, they do not even know why they have joined the Church in the first place.

I used the Bible verses to completely distort the very essence of the Bible. By overstating one aspect of the truth, other parts of the Bible would stay hidden to those who studied it. Due to their lack of knowledge of the whole truth, there was nothing to protect them from my misconceptions.

For example, I inspired some of them to overstate the importance of baptism. Others rejected some misconceptions I introduced through my Church during the Middle Ages, such as the worship of statues, but many other things were still there. The third group was only interested in baptizing by the Holy Spirit. I found this especially amusing. I have convinced them that one is not fully converted unless he speaks foreign languages like the Apostles did after the Pentecost. They would be so obsessed with the desire to speak foreign languages that they would insensibly get into the state where I could control their minds. Then they would start talking gibberish, for which they thought is a sure sign that they are on the Creator's side. But I know what they are talking about. Actually, what I am talking about. And I am certainly not praising the Creator. After all, they do not even understand it. They even enjoy when I use their mouths to blaspheme Him. They think that they are praising the Creator in the most glorious way possible. Yeah, right...

The community – through which I was able to spread the misconceptions that humiliate the Creator the most – is especially important to me. And once again, I used the Bible to corroborate everything. Can you believe that I used His own Word to humiliate and belittle the Creator Himself and His Son? Through this community, I took away the Creator's power to create. I assured them that He was creating this planet for thousands, or – more precisely – six thousand years, that each day of the Creation lasted literally a thousand years. I reduced the divine nature of the Creator to a human level. I convinced them that the Redeemer is not a divinity. What is most interesting, I have managed to convince them that He already came for the second time, as He promised. I convinced them to understand literally what is given symbolically in the Bible, and – likewise – to understand symbolically what they should take literally. I developed in them a slave-like relationship with the Creator. Apart from taking away from them what is most important in the Bible, they also lost their humanity. I convinced them that, even though someone is going to die, they must not give their blood to save them, nor to receive it from anyone. I have managed to make a whole science out of it, just to separate them from the lifesaving truths of the Creator's Word. I carefully keep them separated from other religious communities so that the misconceptions I spread through them would not be diluted. I even made them change the Bible, due to the inability of corroborating their own science, so that they could justify their teachings.

And while multiplying the protestant Christian communities, making them disunited and inconsistent about the newly discovered truths, I worked on my most powerful Church with the greatest care. I knew how great influence I could have through it once more. I gave her the authority, power and wealth. I convinced people that it was all the result of a special attention and blessings the Creator grants to His chosen church. In reality, my church does NOT have any connection with the Creator. I built it in accordance with human needs and human understanding of the Creator — the concepts which I carefully constructed throughout the millennia. I carefully devised every single detail. From the exterior appearance to interior, from the clergy to the rites they performed. People had to be amassed and in awe. They had to believe that the Creator Himself is speaking through her. That is why I particularly exalted her clergy. Although the Creator explicitly forbade it, the priests became spiritual fathers, to whom people bow down to and who are considered as mediators between the Creator and people, instead of the Redeemer — the only One who actually is.

For all those who did not want to join any of the smaller Christian communities, there was she — the Mother Church. She asks the least from its members. In addition, she allows the greatest freedom, while making sure that its members are doing everything a religious man must do.

Through various holidays of the pagan origin, which I have been able to maintain and to rename as Christian, her members have a feeling that they are truly faithful to the Creator. But just a feeling...

A sense of generosity and kindness during the winter holidays, a sense of self-denial and sacrifice during the preparation for spring holidays, and, in the end, a sense of contributing to the Creator's plan of salvation. The last mentioned man's aspiration can easily be used against him. I decided to completely humiliate people – and thus inflict even more pain to the Creator – through their lack of understanding of the Creator's plan of salvation — by penance and self-punishment!

By wrongly presenting the Creator and His plan of salvation, I have convinced people that they have to do something to propitiate the Creator. They have to punish themselves.

This one is my favorite. I have managed to make people destroy themselves. I enjoy watching how their own ignorance makes them do such things. However, the sense of satisfaction, dedication and usefulness – which I give to the members of my church – makes sure they remain in the utter darkness.

Do you see what can be achieved by nourishing the human ego? Many of them will rather whip themselves, walk on sharp glass or even crucify themselves, rather than to change their own character.

All of this makes – as I call it – a perfect misconception! My masterpiece.

But I did not stop there. I needed something else... Something supernatural.

I have led many people into a state of extreme poverty, due to the lifestyle I impose on them, or the illnesses that I caused in them. Whenever it has fatal consequences on a major number of people, I will PERSONALLY set the one free from my chains. Why? Because I will make sure that it looks like the Creator's miracle, while the one who prayed for the one who is ill – and had put his hand onto him – does not even belong to the Creator. You still do not get it? The healed man and those who witnessed the miracle will all think that they have to join the community to which the “healer” himself belongs, for that is the true Church of the Creator, due to the presence of the supernatural.

But I saw that there was a considerable number of those who were deeply disappointed with Christianity, because of the state I brought them in.

Since the Creator placed the need for the connection with Him in each man, it was important for me to fill that void or they might get in touch with the complete the Creator's truth.

I had to offer them something new. Something mystical, different, oriental...

Due to the genuine need for spirituality and the desire to be popular and different, many accepted what I offered them. The oriental religions. I carefully developed them to the smallest details during thousands of years. They filled the gaps that many people, because of my successful work, could not find in Christianity — a new way of looking at the immortality of the human soul, life and at what they think deity is. I have already been using the misconceptions about the immortality of the soul for thousands of years in one more way — through the lie of reincarnation.

Actually, it was not particularly difficult. All I had to do was to insert memories of the alleged past lives in the minds of people who are under my control, so that they would believe that they were someone – or something – in their past lives.

I have managed to suppress the natural fear of death by the feeling of safety in a long journey of soul from body to body, until it reaches the spiritual perfection.

This way, I was able to trap and mislead people who were complete atheists, due to their incomplete and distorted knowledge of Christianity. Through many different ways on altering their consciousness with meditation or repetitive rhythmic sounds, I keep their minds under my control, safely distanced from the Creator. I explain everything with seemingly intelligent explanations and philosophy that even most of them does not actually understand.

Truthful and logical elements, such as a healthy lifestyle, only give support to this belief system I spread across the planet, while the spiritual need remains only seemingly satisfied.

You recognize yourself in one of the groups I described? Now it would be the best if it offended you. If your ego would conclude that this – what you are reading – is so degrading and humiliating, that it can not be true. That it is stupid and not worth of reading.

You do not even want to continue reading? That is exactly what I want.

I would just continue where we left off before you began reading this book. You are still there? It was worth of a try...

Despite all the obstacles that I have set, the Creator's followers were finding ways to spread the truths about Him, with His help and power.

People were still finding their way to the Creator. Was I worried about it? Not at all!

THE HURDLE RACE

For a man, the path to the Creator is not simple nor easy. The reason for that am I, of course. The first obstacle on this path is his own family and close friends, who I kept shut to the Creator's truths through various life habits, trends and social norms. A man who wants to become closer to the Creator will encounter misunderstanding and ridicule, intolerance and rejection. He will be classified as weird and fanatical. Even insane.

Due to the obedience to the Creator, he will have to give up on some deeply rooted habits, which the ones close to him will not like. Moreover, they will hate it, because I make sure that they get angry when they see him changing.

Many of them fall on such obstacles. They can not or, perhaps, do not want to deal with this sort of things. They choose the path of the least resistance. The path which I chose.

I try everything I can to keep all those, who encounter the truth, under my control and away from the Creator. Prejudice, human pride and selfishness are very good weapons which I use to make people stay by my side.

To me, it is only important to prevent people from reading the Creator's Scriptures — the Bible. Also, I created so many prejudices about the Bible itself, prejudices which are not even true. For example: one prejudice claims that the Bible can be interpreted in many ways. And it can, because I help you to do that. If you would read it only by yourself, you would quickly realize that the Bible interprets itself very accurately. But even if you start reading it superficially, you simply can not fully understand it. It would be good to pray to the Creator before you start reading it, so that He could help you to understand the text properly. But you do not want to do that. That is why you will see only what I want you to see in it.

Furthermore, I inspire people to regard the Bible as a purely human book which has been made obsolete, as an interesting book, as a part of cultural heritage.

Creating so many prejudices about the Bible made it stop being the favorite book. But the above mentioned prejudices are not the only reason for its unpopularity among people.

It awakens the conscience, it requires change. It offers a solution, an exit. And I made sure that the exit is reached as difficult as possible.

That is why one decides not to change himself, even though he will be ruined. It is important for him to live like everyone else, without encountering quarrels. Not to stray from social norms, even if they are wrong. Not to lose something which is, in this pathetic material world, so important to him.

In order to silence the voice of conscience, through which the Creator tries to speak to him, I occupy his mind with different things, depending on what will have the greatest impact on him personally. Stimulated human selfishness has a special role in all of it. I can assure people that they are too young – or too busy, or too old, or any other “too” – to start getting to know the Creator through the Bible. Fortunately, most of them do not realize that the link with the Creator burdens them the same way as they are burdened by a good health. They do not realize it because I am here to mask the truth.

If something needs to stop you from coming to the Creator, then I am your most reliable helper.

I will give you everything so that you stay right where you are. From a good excuse to wealth. People think that the material prosperity is a blessing from the Creator. In reality, it is my best way to keep you at the safest possible distance from Him. Many of those who were already on the Creator's side were completely corrupted and separated from Him by wealth and power. No, I did not separate them from their religious communities if that is what you think.

Just imagine how easy it is for me to separate from the Creator those who still do not know anything about Him.

To keep you by my side, I will even allow you to be religious, if you insist so. I will allow you to join one of the dozens of Christian communities I personally established. I will even give you peace in that area. But not a complete peace, only enough to keep you just where I want you to be. I will influence your views on spirituality, to make them completely distorted. I will bring you into a state where you will associate spirituality only with feelings and intuition, while your sanity – which is most important – will be put aside. And I will be the one who will manipulate with your feelings in various ways so that your harmonious attitude toward spirituality remains in perpetual darkness.

This way, I accomplish a lot. First of all, I devalue the Creator's efforts to fully reveal Himself to you. He is waiting for you, clearly revealed, with specific guidelines and instructions given in the Bible, while, at the same time, He watches over you as you wander on your path, driven by your own fickle feelings. Of course, you have come across His Word, but it is much easier to rely on feelings. Therefore, I always want to make sure that you do not even open the Bible. Even when something bad happens, I will help you blame the Creator for the disaster I caused. You will hardly blame yourself for not knowing the Creator and His Word. I will make sure that He is the bad guy in this case.

I will even make you religious and give you material goods in order to ruin you. But if the things do not go the way I planned, I will take away something from you. I will bring you into serious problems if it will help me to keep you seduced, while you blame the Creator for everything.

Do you now realize how powerful I really am? Do you begin to comprehend that everything that has happened in the history of the Earth and of mankind is the result of my perfect plan? Do you now know who is the cause of all evil on this planet? You did not think that something so dreadful (according to the Creator), yet perfectly designed to the smallest details, is just one big accident?

Up to now, you could only see a small part of my versatility to achieve my goals. What you now know refers mainly to my global actions. But throughout history, my work has been much more than that. To achieve all this globally, I had to work very hard on the individual level. That is the key to my global success: many humiliated and misled individuals.

I have just started to reveal you how skillfully I work on that level as well. And you are yet to see that my influence extends to areas where your feeble mind never imagined it could be. You will find yourself in many examples, realizing how you are being manipulated to do exactly what I want, even though the Creator warned you not to do such things.

You will realize that your problems, your physical appearance, health, intelligence, habits, moral, and even your spirituality and the environment in which you live, and much more, are the merit of my evil geniality. You will realize that you are MY medium through which I destroy you and this planet. You are going to find all that out. I will explain it all, in details. Do you think that you will change yourself after reading this? You will not. For sure. It is not that easy to change. I will help you to stay just the way you are, as much as possible. You know everything best. You are better than others. You are always right. You can not change your mind. It would be humiliating. You are too proud for that.

See? You will stay exactly as you are. And I will exult one day, when you meet the Creator face to face, because you have read this, but you still did not change yourself.

UNDER MY CONTROL

By now you have realized that I make a great effort to destroy you. I simply hate you. You are the only possible way to hurt the Creator who wants to destroy me forever. You have also realized that my goal is to make you pay for your sins instead of me. The moment I separate you from the Creator on a spiritual level, the moment you cross that thin line after which you can no longer go back, you will completely be under MY control. The best thing in all of this is that you chose it yourself.

The Creator pointed you to one side, me to the other, all the time. And you did not realize we were battling for you. Do you know why the Creator loses the battle? Because He suggests you to do things of the eternal values, to connect with Him through His Word, to build your character according to His own and to control your feelings and desires.

And me? As I said, I am on the side of your ego. I have declared as outdated and obsolete everything the Creator wants, the personality traits He wants — to be considered as flaws. The wishes He wants you to control — to be portrayed as the greatest pleasure. That is why He is losing the battle for you. You do not want to be considered as a weakling. You want to enjoy the life and all the feelings that you can experience. It does not matter if all that humiliates you spiritually, morally and physically in the eyes of the Creator. It is important that you enjoy it, that you are like the others.

Do you now see how simple my job is? I distanced you from the truths the Creator wishes you to find. I have convinced you that the religion is for elderly people and for the children. And now nothing can save you from the misconceptions I trapped you in. You recognize my voice as the voice of reason, while you ignore the Creator's fading voice of conscience, thinking it is useless. You would have to be selfless, humble, patient, caring, emotional... It does not matter that people from your environment would be happier because of it — you think that it is hard, degrading and humiliating.

After all, you can not change yourself now. Everyone got used to you just the way you are. What would they think of you? Just imagine, I have managed to achieve that those who change themselves for the better will be ridiculed by everyone else. I easily inspire them to do it because they justify their own inability to also change themselves in this manner. For example: you will be mocked by rude people if you become decent. Those who live unhealthy will mock you just because you started to live a healthier life. You will be mocked for being moral by those who are immoral. You see, things like this lose their meaning without my control. I use them to stop you from changing yourself.

The path to the Creator will seem impossible from the state you are in. You would have to avoid many traps in order to get to Him. You would have to discover all spiritual and moral misconceptions. You would have to accept newly discovered truths and to change your life completely. And what for? For the sake of the unity with the Creator? For eternal life in complete happiness, justice, health and true love...?

I will help you to conclude that it is better for you to stay the way you are, without changing yourself, so that you could live out your miserable seventy years of life filled with diseases and suffering, only to be destroyed with me in the end, rather than fulfilling your true purpose.

Do you think that I do not know what I am talking about? That no one can be that stupid? Oh, yes it can! You can, as well as billions of people like you. Do not forget that I have six thousand years of experience in helping people to do precisely that.

In the chapters that follow, you will see that you are on your way to do the same.

THE OPPORTUNITY

Human life is one big opportunity — opportunity for people to return to the condition in which mankind once was when the first man was formed by the Creator. And opportunity for the Creator to reveal His plan of salvation to man and use His influence to bring man back to Himself. But also, a double opportunity for me. First, to inflict pain, injustice and misery to people as much as I can, and, secondly, to separate them from the Creator and to ruin them for eternity.

The Creator can not interfere to prevent me in doing this, due to His righteousness. The whole Universe must see where disobedience leads to and what are its consequences. Therefore, He can only give life, provide testimony about Himself and what is good for man, and to wait for man to decide. He is limited by something as stupid as righteousness. Only if man voluntarily decides to be on His side, then He has the right to enable him to live by His principles, to give him the Power to resist me and to teach him by revealing Himself through nature and the Scriptures. All that is too slow and too boring. That is why I do not have any real competition since I am not limited by these conditions.

My influence is similar, while opposite, of course. Since He invented all the life principles for man and for all the other creatures, I have had to change them all. While the Creator's principles are designed so that the fallen man can be happy and satisfied even on this ruined planet, my principles are designed to bring me the greatest possible satisfaction — human pain. I feed on it. It is my only source of happiness. Your wrath gives me pleasure, your unhappiness is the source of my happiness and your pain is the source of my enjoyment. Your fear and horror are my food. And all of this is doubled because when you suffer, the Creator Himself suffers as well, at the same time.

Over thousands of years, I have developed various habits and principles in all areas of life so that mankind would suffer as much as possible.

You think that it is normal that you are getting sick, that it is natural to have a horrible marriage, that it is normal to be selfish and antisocial, that it is normal that there is so much injustice, that there are so many hungry people, that it is normal that people of the same sex are getting married...?

It is not, according to the Creator's standards, that is. The fact that all of the aforementioned is normal today is only the result of my perfect actions throughout the world. Now, something is considered "normal" just because the majority do it or thinks it is.

Depriving people from the basic criteria of normality, my change of moral and social standards has no limits. You will soon realize how much you have succumbed to the criteria I set. You will soon see that you do not have any way of resisting me. Each aspect of your life is filled with things I created to destroy you and everyone else, so that I could make you suffer, that you be unhappy and that you forget about the Creator and His plans for you.

Do you remember the words from the Introduction of this book? Universality! It is the word that will have a whole new meaning for you. Each time you hear it, you will remember ME. You will remember that I follow you wherever you go. You will realize that the only way to resist me is to know the truth which the Creator revealed in His Word. But you are only going to plan on doing it. Nothing more than that. You will not do it. You will not study the Creator's Word. You do not want to change anything, because the change would have to be drastic.

Although the encounter with the Creator through His Word would be salutary for you, it would also be very traumatic, at the beginning.

In other words, you will not use your chance to return to the Creator, but I will use my own two. You will continue to suffer, being destroyed for the eternity.

MANIPULATION

The only way I can do anything to man is to first separate him from the Creator. I achieve this in various ways. In the beginning, I always suggest to man not to have trust in the Creator. It is best, of course, to convince him that He does not exist. Then my job is much easier. I just add more arguments that strengthen his lack of faith in the Creator, as well as the resentment and ridicule to every religion. Naturally, your ignorance is my strongest ally. Everything I suggested you to believe is preventing you from even opening, let alone studying the Bible and its truths. Therefore, it is very easy for me to degrade you morally and physically, and to make you suffer and – ultimately – be ruined. Since you do not believe in the Creator, you also do not believe in ME, therefore — you are simply defenseless against me, apart from the Creator's constant protection over you. He keeps you alive so that He could use every possible way to reveal Himself to you and to save you from me.

I, of course, present all of His efforts to save you as meaningless and accidental occurrences. When you try to admire to the perfection of nature, I keep you from deeply thinking about it so that you would not question its origin and creation. When you speak with religious people, I fill your mind with pride and contempt toward them and toward their beliefs. When you start thinking about the increase of natural disasters, I tell you that all of it is just the work of nature, and not the fulfillment of Bible prophecies. When you realize that you need love, I am the one who tells you that such desires are stupid. Instead, I offer you a pathetic, but sufficient replacement for you — lust. When you get sick, I tell you that it is just a matter of misfortune and injustice rather than realizing that the reason for your bad condition is the lifestyle and diet I imposed on you. With all of this, my goal is to make you cross the line after which there is no returning to the Creator. Then I either use you to influence others. Or, if I can not use you for anything, I simply destroy you.

I have to work much harder with those who know that the Creator exists. There are two groups of people in this category. Those who do not read the Bible and those who study it on a regular basis. The first group is particularly appealing to me. It is a group of people through which I can spread the widest variety of misconceptions about the Creator. Due to their faith in the Creator, without knowing or even trying to get to know Him, they will attribute any injustice, any misunderstanding or any other bad thing that happened with my help — to Him. I feel best when I convince them to blame the Creator after I have managed to hurt or destroy someone by imposing him my life principles. They blame the Creator for the parentless children and for people who can not have children. Why did He let that happen?

As I said, since they do not read the Bible, their lack of knowledge about the Creator, about me, and the battle between me and Him, as well as their inability to go beyond material things and step into the spiritual world, prevents them from clearly seeing the reality. And that is exactly what I want.

They often ask my favorite question: why do good people get hurt? Good? By whose standards? The Creator will not affect the free will of His creatures under any circumstances. He only tells what is right, moral and just. And I tell everything else. I tell you to drink and to drive too fast — you decide who you are going to listen, me or the Creator. I tell you to live unhealthy. Once again, the choice is yours. If you get yourself in trouble because of your bad decisions, what the Creator can do when YOU did it by yourself with your own free will? Why did not He prevent that from happening? Oh, how I would like that! That way, He would only prove my claims that no one can choose freely to be on His side and to live by His Law. That is why He did not stop Eve from taking the fruit. He only offers you a choice. And you choose — ME.

This group of people is particularly interesting to me because I keep them and their loved ones in the belief that they really do know the Bible, so they have the authority to ask some questions and to make certain conclusions about things they do not know anything. I use them to make the Bible repulsive to others, even to those who believe in the Creator. Their motivation and faithfulness significantly changes. Having such a distorted image of Him, they can not serve Him out of love as He wants. Rather than that, their faith is reduced to formalism, to faith because of fear, because they expect an award, or nice emotions that accompany such a false spirituality. In other words, a false faith which does not mean anything to the Creator. Since others consider them believers, their lack of knowledge about the Bible and what the Creator really requires from man makes them a perfect tool to introduce many types of behavior – unacceptable to the Creator – to the society.

Through them, I misrepresent the Creator's love and tolerance, causing them to accept many aspects of immorality. I make them more tolerant towards sin and immorality even more than the Creator tolerates it.

On the other hand, I especially hate those who believe in the Creator and study the Bible. I make a special effort to separate them from the Creator. I could divide them into two groups as well: those who unconditionally accept everything that the Creator said and recommended, and those who attempt to change the Creator's commandments to suit their own needs. I have almost no influence on the people that belong to the first group due to their faith. Apart from revealing to them how to live happily and what the true purpose and meaning of their life is, He warned them about the traps they could easily fall in. In addition, due to their faith in Him again, they have given Him the right to protect them and to battle their battles against me and my misconceptions. They are filled with special wisdom and grace. He used their full confidence in Him to save them.

Those who study the Bible, in order to suit it to their own needs, give me the opportunity to use their every flaw, every trace of their pride and selfishness to hide certain Bible truths from them. These people made possible for me to introduce the aforementioned misconceptions in the faith. That is how I am able to make religious communities tolerant towards serious character flaws. I inspire them to find excuses for their lies in the fact that Abraham lied to the Pharaoh, even though he was a righteous man. Also, they have quarrels, as Paul had a quarrel with Peter and Mary. They cheated their spouses as David did, and the Creator forgave him. In many ways, by using their unwillingness to fully obey the Creator, I enable them to remain just the way they are. Even if they find some biblical truths, I will make sure they apply this Bible verses on someone else.

Each flaw of yours is a chance for me. I will use your every weakness – of which you do not want to give up – to ruin you and to make you unhappy: your every weakness prevents the Creator from protecting you. You wonder what weakness you have? What are you doing wrong? Oh, you know it very well... That voice of conscience that still simmers in you tells you what is wrong. But you choose to ignore it. You do not want to change yourself. True, you do not want anyone to take advantage of that, but, with the decision not to change anything on yourself, you are giving me the right to use all against you.

Are you ready to read about your own weaknesses? Are you ready to see where I found my chance in you? Are you ready to understand that you would have to give up on something that gives you a great pleasure, to be able to be free from the fate I prepared for you?

Of course you are not. No one is. But, do not worry. You will not give up on anything. You will continue enjoying in everything I have prepared for you, with the exception that these pleasures will be embittered by the knowledge that I am taking you down with ME.

MORALITY

Studying mankind from its very beginning, I have soon found a way to make people be disobedient to the Creator. I just had to wrap the sin and disobedience into bodily pleasures.

I realized that the Creator gave humans a particularly strong feeling while conceiving their offspring. The Creator wanted that this act of creating new being be deeply etched in their memory. As time went on, I managed to accomplish that this act becomes a pleasure by itself, due to the physical pleasure it produces. I encouraged people to it as much as possible, especially after seeing how it saddens the Creator and how much it can humiliate man. I began to heat up their lowest passions. In fact, this aspect of destroying mankind was one of the easiest. It was one of the reasons why the Creator decided to destroy the planet with the Flood — immorality.

After the Flood, I just continued where I left off before the catastrophe. True, not that much nor that publicly, because the memories on the Flood were still fresh. But people would always fall in the temptation when it comes to sex. Soon, the Creator destroyed the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah who crossed the line. The destruction was terrible, and I exulted because I succeeded in making the Creator destroy – once again – His creatures who were not obedient to Him. Today, the Dead Sea stays as a memorial and as a warning to the future generations. Of course, my success in the field of immorality was never seriously questioned.

Time was passing, and I was humiliating mankind more and more. Not only did I distorted the sexual relationship between man and woman, I also managed to convince them to do that with members of the same sex. And even to do it with animals. I inflamed man's imagination to do things he could never possible think of on his own. The Creator was desperate. I have managed to humiliate such a noble creature – man – below the level of irrational animals.

Did anything change as the civilization advanced? Sure it did. I have humiliated man even more. More than he ever was humiliated. Knowing that the Final End is set, and that there will not be anything like what happened to Sodom and Gomorrah, I am doing everything I can to increase the immorality even more. It is a vital part of modern society. Only a small number of those who are faithful to Creator can see the traps I set, but they can not do much about it, except to save themselves.

How did I manage to develop immorality so much? Quite simple: by replacing love with lust. I had to put a lot of effort in order to achieve that love ceases to be the principle and to be reduced just to a type of emotion. When I succeeded, it was not too difficult to turn that feeling into weakness, and to proclaim true love as utopia.

I have created many prejudices about love. One of my favorite is the one that claims that love disappears with time. I made people talk about love with a sneer, to convince each other it fades with time, and that it is normal that two people – who used to love each other – now not to feel anything, despite living together. This is one of my greatest victories over man. Victory over you.

The principle upon which the entire Universe is created — the strongest motivation, the strongest mover and the most powerful force... And I managed to devalue it almost completely. I have also managed to make the gap between man and the Creator be almost insurmountable. Left only to his lust, with little or no understanding of love, I can manipulate with man however I want.

MARRIAGE

The Creator created the perfect institution for man — marriage: uniting two people into one. By giving them love, the Creator enabled them to develop the noblest feelings towards each other. Love gives them the ability to put the interest of their spouse in front of their own, making the goal of their lives to make each other completely happy. In time, their bond would become all the more stronger and perfect. The Creator could be personally present in such a community. And that is what I wanted to prevent.

I could not just take away love from man. I had to find a way to push it out.

Selfishness! That was a permanent solution. I encouraged people just to think about themselves, their pleasure and their well-being. As I was succeeding in this, the respect between spouses was disappearing. Then the same happened to love.

Since marriage is the very foundation of every society, it is the subject of my special attention. Shortly after the matrimony, I start assuring the spouses that it is no longer necessary to take care of themselves as they did before marriage. Now there is no need to smile as they did before, to be nice, neat, clean, fragrant, kind, considerate, and selfless... This is the reason why love disappears quickly. I suggest to women to cut their hair, to neglect themselves, to enjoy food uncontrollably, assuring them that they no longer have to pay attention to their appearance — that all of it is completely normal. To men, I suggest that they do not have to shower often anymore, to listen to their wives carefully, to be kind to her as before, convincing them that they also do not have to pay attention on how their wives look, that there is no need to be so kind, thoughtful, loving... That way, it turns out that all the goodness and kindness before marriage was nothing more than a lie to cheat the future spouse. This has become so common that it is now normal to see these traits disappear in a marriage.

I have set some very strong prejudices about marriage through history. For example: the prejudice that a man is more important to the Creator than a woman. By distorting the balance the Creator had in mind, it is very easy to produce disharmony and discord in a marriage. Due to their sense of superiority, men do not appreciate the effort and the work women put in all of it. That way, almost no man will think about through what his clean shirt has passed so that he could wear it, and what needs to be done so that he could have a healthy meal in a clean plate on his table. With time, woman starts feeling despised and underappreciated, while man protects his pride, thus creating fights and arguments — which are now considered normal.

Actually, my job is quite simple. I just need to stop two important prerequisites for a happy marriage: woman's respect to man and man's care for his wife. I simply start with men. My work with them is not only to suggest them thoughts, but also to prevent them from thinking about important things. Because of that, everything becomes more important to him than paying attention to his wife. And to her, that is the most important thing. She starts to feel neglected, while her husband does not feel guilty at all about it. That is why her respect towards him quickly disappears. And the foundation is set...

When love disappear, the spouses just confirm and more firmly establish the prejudice I created. The prejudice that love fades with time. Actually, I make it disappear eventually, if the spouses are far enough from the Creator and far from the principles of life He revealed in His Word.

Then, I make them to lower their level of tolerance allowable in a normal marriage. I carefully make men to push the limits of tolerance that their wives have when it comes to their relationship with other women. Firstly, I achieve that their wives tolerate seemingly innocent comments about the appearance of other women, while I make men constantly push the limit until they commit adultery.

By neglecting each other, they soon realize that they can not get what they need in this marriage. Therefore, it is fine to search happiness elsewhere.

Once I have achieved THIS, it is easy to manipulate with such marriage. Depending on what would be worse for man, I either let them stay married in a union without love, constantly arguing and making their marriage seem like hell, or make them file for a divorce.

I could write books and books about this topic only, just to show you how marriage has become MY own institution, not the Creator's. If you look around a bit, you will see how successful I am in this area. I wrapped the marriage in so many negative stereotypes that it is not a desirable institution anymore. If you also add selfishness, ruthlessness and stubbornness to it, you will understand why nowadays so many men and women are single, never getting married. You will also realize why so many marriages are falling apart or already have.

So, what do you think? Did I manage to destroy the institution of marriage? Just look at the global statistics. Did I also trick you? Did I also convince you to live like I wanted? Of course I did!

And what can you do about it? Nothing! I have made sure that all those noble qualities that make marriage enjoyable and happy – the way the Creator intended – be considered as weaknesses and humiliation. That is why you will NOT do anything about it. You will stay married just the way you are. Selfish and immoral the way you are already. The only difference is that – from now on – you will know that I made you do that.

But not only did I manage to destroy marriage and to make it a subject of jokes and insults, a synonym of something ugly and unnecessary, I have also enabled the members of the same sex to marry each other. Do you see what I am capable of doing to something what the Creator devoted to the human race with so much love?

HOMOSEXUALITY

Convincing a man to commit a murder is a problem even for me. The Creator never allowed me to completely annihilate the basic moral principles. Therefore, murder has been always considered as wrong in all civilizations through history. Even though there were circumstances when it was justified, like wars, murder has always been regarded as violation of the law. The same is with theft. Most laws can not penalize adultery, but it has always been considered as something negative because it always causes pain to one side. That is why I had to think of something that will not break any law and that will not make anyone suffer, but what will be literally disgusting to the Creator.

From the very beginning, I was able to convince people to give in to their lust by having sexual intercourse with the members of the same sex. I have managed to preserve homosexuality – this most humiliating form of human sexual community – up to this very day. Modern technology made this phenomenon global. I constantly work on making this kind of behavior to become accepted as any other, proving that these kind of people do not deserve to be marked in the public, so that homosexuality becomes normal.

My final victory is very close, both among the non-religious and religious communities. While I suggest to non-religious people that every person has the freedom to do whatever he/she wants, I try to create a distorted image of the Creator — the One who forgives everything and accept every sinner among every religious communities. This, of course, is not wrong, but I try very hard to misrepresent the Creator's love, and to convince them that they do not have to change themselves at all, that the Creator loves them no matter what they are and what they do.

That is why you can hear nowadays that some extremely immoral men and women claim that they are also faithful to the Creator. A gay believer. A woman who takes naked pictures for magazines is also faithful to the Creator... Porn actress, swingers and many others — all of them go to the church. I enjoy humiliating the Creator in such a way!

The greatest absurdity I have accomplished is to convince homosexuals to refer to the Bible. They call upon the Creator's love toward man as well as one's love towards his close ones, in order to justify their perversion and to prove that homosexuality is not immoral. But they do not know what I know. As long as they continue with doing it only out of pleasure and not out of love, the Creator has no arguments to accept them into His embrace, because their actions are the complete opposite to what the Creator intended for mankind.

Countries, one after another, legalize homosexual marriages. People support it. The fact is that they only think that they are supporting it, while the truth is that they just do not want to be declared retarded and intolerant, if they condemn them. Do you see what man is willing to do just to be accepted in his society? Today, many of them claim that homosexuality is okay, that gays are also human, that they also have a choice — but the truth is that they actually do not care about them at all. What is YOUR opinion on this? We both know. As I have formed it. How did I do that? Keep on reading...

TELEVISION

Before the television was invented, it was much harder for me to globalize a sin, to establish a new rule or to influence the human conscience. That took a lot of efforts from me and the Angels who share my fate. The television helped us immeasurably. A picture speaks a thousand words. And while, throughout the history, we had to suggest thoughts to make people do what we want, now people can see the picture we want directly.

I just needed to put an extra effort into creating certain television programs. Since I have perfect knowledge of the human psyche and physiology, it is not difficult for me to come up with a way of making people accept what I want.

Speaking of homosexuality, you noticed that I have managed, in a very subtle way, to make something so unnatural be presented as normal and acceptable. Propaganda! Diversion. That is how you named it. By diverting the attention to one thing, I accomplish something else. If I want to make homosexuality socially acceptable, I only need to wrap it up carefully. For example: in a well-designed sitcom. You will laugh for hours while I present homosexuals as very likeable people, through carefully selected actors. And what happens? Your attitude towards them changes. Or, I will make the homosexual character, played by a serious actor or actress, in a serious movie, to be a “good guy” or a “good girl”. Thus slowly, but surely and irreversibly, I change your attitude and opinion.

I create very good and very educational documentaries for youth. I especially make sure that the show give lessons of bad consequences of stealing, gossiping, alcohol, drugs, so that the show be more authoritative. But fornication and adultery are still present with these cute and “responsible” actors, whose behavior is not criticized. That way, I influence your and everybody else’s moral standards. That is why it is normal nowadays to have many partners, to be homosexual, because everything I want can and will become normal.

I particularly try to present anything, that opposes to the Creator’s standards, as normal. You figured it out by now. I do that to make your potential return to Him be as hard as possible. You would not want to be condemned and mocked for such a decision.

The most powerful media through which I will conquer the ENTIRE planet is television. No one can evade its influence. Through it, I change your conscience in every aspect of your life. You do not realize how deep you are tangled in MY web.

But I have promised you. I will set you free, but just for a moment. It will be when you find out almost everything about me. Then you will have the opportunity to decide for yourself. To return to the Creator or to stay in my web.

Do you really want me to tell you who you will choose?

PORNOGRAPHY

Sodom and Gomorrah are nothing compared to what is happening today when it comes to immorality. Have the Creator's criterias changed? Why does not He punish those who do such things? Since the end of this world is imminent, He left the final sentence and punishment for the end.

Thanks to television, today it is easy to make a man to be immoral, because I have managed to present immorality as normal, since the majority of mankind behaves in that manner. But I want people to be humiliated as much as possible. I want them to become senseless animals. I commercialized the worst kinds of immorality, and I made a whole industry out of it. I use the most powerful media: television and newspaper, and – in the recent years – the Internet. This is the simplest way to reach every home, even Christian one. Using the human need to identify themselves with the people who inspire them, I was able to achieve a lot with pornography. When they watch it, people want to commit adultery. Fortunately, the mere thought of lust and adultery is equally disgusting to the Creator as is the physical adultery. Thus, I easily separate people from the Creator's protection.

I have managed to convince people that pornography can help them with their marriage. Poor creatures... They think that marriage is based on sex only, and, if they enjoy it, they will enjoy everything else. Since I personally devise scenes which I use to inspire people to make pornography, I make sure that they are as humiliating as possible. Seeing this, people try to imitate what they see. I succeeded in it, regardless of whether the person, who is watching it, just thinks about it or tries to recreate what he/she sees. When they do it, people do not realize how far do they go from the Creator. By doing it, people grant me the right to make them my slaves, forever. Their main and ONLY goal in life will be to satisfy their lust. On the other hand, if I do not make them to recreate what they see in pornography, I start suggesting them that they are being deprived of full happiness, that other married couples are far more happier than they are, thus kindling dissatisfaction in their marriage, which leads to discord and separation.

Pornography, of course, can be used against those who are not married yet. Those who can not fulfill their lustful goals – which I have imposed on them – may sometimes even use force to achieve them, even if that means killing someone. Lust is a very strong bond that keeps people close to me.

Movies, magazines and similar content is the best way to move boundaries of this kind of pleasure further and further. Deeper and deeper.

To see how much I have humiliated you, I will write down a sentence that you will not be able to understand, not even with the help of every dictionary in the world:

»Sexual intercourse is the pinnacle of true love...«

See? You have no idea what that really means. Of course, you understand every word, the same way you understand the phrase “appendix surgery” or “writing a computer program”, but – in THIS very moment – you do not know how to do it.

How something like that could satisfy you when your mind is corrupted with all those things you have seen: group, violent or unnatural sexual intercourse, bondage, whipping, slaves and dominos, homosexual intercourse, sexual intercourse with animals and hundreds of other perversions? You want that, not the normal things. They are boring to you.

With this, I was able to completely separate sex from love. I convince people that love is something I want them to believe. They enjoy satisfying their basic instincts. “Making love...”

As you can see, I have managed to turn one of the greatest honors the Creator gave to man – to participate with Him in creating a new life – into an act that ruins him.

Immorality – my greatest creation – was developed so carefully that no one can be beyond its reach. Whether it is adultery, an act that destroys family and causes pain, brings suffering and disgrace to family, or fornication... — you are all MY slaves. And because of that, all of you are way beyond the Creator’s reach.

Bringing one into such a state of immorality, I can destroy him physically, apart from the spiritual damage I inflict. Tell me, have you ever heard that someone who obeyed to the Creator’s moral principles had syphilis? Or gonorrhea? Aids?

Although the Creator forbade me from destroying man directly, I manage to do the same thing indirectly — in a way which gives me even more pleasure, because I convince man to destroy himself. Is not it perfect, or what?

Yes, you would probably be amazed by my perfection if you were not a part of it — a poor creature deeply tangled in my web.

Do you realize that the state in which you are now, your bad and vacuous marriage, the lack of genuine love, exalted ego, lust, perversion and your general moral depravity are the result of my careful work. I did that, but you alone are the only one responsible for that before the Creator. You had a choice, yet you chose ME. You have accepted everything just the way I wanted — every prejudice about what is good, what is beautiful and what produces satisfaction.

But sexual immorality is not the only area in which I have seduced you. I have even more surprises for you.

VIOLENCE

From the very beginning of mankind, I was the one who persuaded man to commit violence of various kinds.

What started with Cain, lasts up to this very day, as I inspired man to express his frustration, desires and wrath through violence. This now seems almost logical to you, but my success in imposing violence extends even to the areas of joy and happiness. I have even managed to inspire man to express such feelings through violence.

Bringing man into a state of such recklessness – that even human life and well-being of his neighbor is not worth anything to him – was a long process. I want EVERYONE to be like that. Even YOU. And I did it. No? You are glad you have evaded my trap this time? NO ONE can escape me. Remember the television? I do not use it just to spread sexual immorality. I make violence acceptable through it as well. Violence can not be acceptable? You believe that? You poor fool. When was the last time you have changed television program because you could not watch someone being beaten, raped or tortured? Killed? I will tell you: NEVER! And when have you changed the program from some documentary or travelogue just to watch a crime movie? Or a horror movie? Or to see anything violent? You see, that is what you often do. That is what is really interesting to you. And then you are going to tell me that violence is not acceptable? Such things bother you less and less. You are too far from the Creator to be able to see my carefully designed traps which I use to form “your” attitude. Basically, television can even be used to impose things such as extreme violence. The important thing is, again, that the actor is a likeable and positive character, so that I you personally wish for him to become a murderer and take away someone’s life, if needed. Have you ever resented this person, this “good” guy, because he murdered someone’s son? Or someone’s father? Or someone’s brother? Someone who had a family that loved him no matter who he was? Of course you did not. You did not even think about it. And you will not do the same if something like that happens to you personally. For example: if you go to a war or even in a quarrel with someone you know or do not know. With anyone who did something bad to you...

Television made violence an everyday occurrence. As well as the Internet. Television is always available as an alternative option for solving problems, just as I intended.

I particularly focused my efforts on developing a tendency towards violence from the earliest age of a person. Do you sometimes watch the television shows and do you play computer games which I have prepared for the children? I am especially proud of my accomplishments on that field. There were some attempts to draw more attention to the violence shown in the old cartoons like Tom and Jerry, but only few noticed it. Nowadays, I have managed to make the children watch violent and brutal cartoons, such as Pokemon and Digimon. The children started enjoying violence. They began identifying themselves with the characters in the cartoons...

Through computer games, the children can now personally eliminate hundreds of different creatures, especially those labeled as enemies. What do you think, how does a young military pilot, or the person who controls a real and destructive guided missile, observe people he sees on his monitor? Does he realize that those are real people down there? Does he think about a terrible pain and suffering which he is about to cause to them? Does he think about mutilation and killing somebody's loved ones...? Of course NOT! He sees it as a computer game. My cunningness gave exceptional results in this case. When someone is allegedly killed in a movie, in a vast majority of cases — there is no funeral or grieving for the one who has been killed. The movie does not show how this has shattered the lives of the family of the deceased. In the computer games, this does not exist at all. Soon, I will have a whole new generation who will be just as ruthless in real life. Taught that the violence is the only solution, what do you think — what kind of politicians they will be, people who lead governments, cities, companies, families...?

My plan perfectly achieves its goal. While I occupy parents with the pursuit for wealth, in order to reach the standards they have seen on the television. At the same time, I encourage them to have their children raised by ME – through television, Internet and computer games – rather than spending the time with their children.

As you can see, through carefully designed movies, television shows and computer games, I made people do in real life what they see in movies and games. They will fight, rape, torture and kill, if given the right opportunity.

Do you think that you would not do such things? No? Many thought so about themselves, until they were given the right opportunity. Do I need to say that they thought they same thing you do now?

Immorality of all kinds... My goal has been achieved. My perfect web, which keeps you at a safe distance from the ONLY Force that can free you from me. Your eternal damnation is guaranteed.

But your worst nightmare does not end here.

In fact, this is only the beginning.

HEALTH

It is hard to tell am I more proud of my achievements in destroying mankind morally or physically. If you could only see how the first man looked like... How the antediluvian man looked like... Only then you would completely realize how much I have downgraded man by imposing him my life habits and nutrition opposite to one the Creator intended for man in order to satisfy the true needs of his body.

I will try to describe to you – the best I can – how man would look like today if he stayed with the Creator. Imagine a top gymnast. His agility and dexterity. Imagine a top athlete. His speed and endurance. Imagine a man with perfect body proportions. Completely symmetrical. Then, imagine a man with the intelligence quotient of 1000 (now everyone with the intelligence quotient of 110+ is considered to have the above average). Imagine a man that can clearly see fine details from more than a kilometer. One who can hear high frequencies like a bat and low frequencies like an elephant. Imagine a man with a perfect health. And one that sings beautifully. Imagine an extremely talented artist... Now merge them into one person. Now, imagine that this man is more than thirteen feet tall. And, at the end, let us say that such a creature is filled with tender love and compassion, sacrifice and purity, chastity and prudence, uncompromising goodness and sincerity... Entirely devoted to the Creator.

Does this sound like a fiction to you? Unbelievable? As an absolute nonsense? You had enough of this book? You see, the more disbelief and outrage you show, the more recognition you are giving me for the results I have achieved. I really did my best to transform this magnificent creature – which I have just described to you – into a being you are now. The man I tried to describe is only a pale image of the creature the Creator formed, but your limited vocabulary does not allow me to describe all the details.

Just look at yourself. Do you now understand why so many people believe that man and ape are closely related? If the Creator would only let me have this planet for a couple of thousand years, the missing link between ape and man would walk the Earth. If mankind did not degrade so much, I would not be able to introduce the theory of evolution.

Now, thanks to your appearance — I can.

Yes, I AM the reason for the pathetic state you are in, because you have accepted my thoughts and everything I have imposed on you. Degrading you morally, destroying the feeling for righteousness, it was not hard to humiliate you in any other way.

Studying the way the human body was created, the needs of the human body, I have experimented for years just in order to see how I can affect the human body. By denying him one vital need after another, man became what you are today — physically and mentally incapable being with clumsy and unattractive appearance and degraded moral standards. I hoped that the mankind will become so disgusting and repulsive to the Creator that He will finally give up of this planet. But no... He even came to Earth to redeem something so ugly, impersonal and amoral as man is TODAY.

You are wondering how I have accomplished to bring man into such a state? I will tell you everything in details now. Details which are part of your everyday life. Details which you did not even dream that they could be a carefully selected weapon to destroy you.

NUTRITION

The best solutions are often the simplest ones. Imagine a car engine. With a proper maintenance, it can be used up to several hundred of miles.

With a proper maintenance!

Use a cooking oil instead of motor oil. Instead of fuel, fill it with a mixture of fuel and water. Instead of antifreeze, just use water... It is easy to conclude what would have happened with a car if this was the case. Even you can realize that. Does this offend you? You will soon see that this was actually a praise to your intelligence when you realize what I was able to convince you to do when it comes to a proper maintenance of your body.

If you pay a little attention to the biblical account of Creation, you will see that the Creator initially created conditions and environment, which He then has filled with bodies and beings that perfectly matched such environment.

Man was created in complete harmony with his environment. He had everything needed for life and for the full maintenance of all vital functions of his body. Fortunately, very short, but immensely important instructions about nutrition, which the Creator gave to him, were not too hard to hide from man. Not only that, I even managed to declare the whole account of Creation as a human invention.

Fruits, nuts, grains and vegetables... It was the only and complete human nutrition. But it was not enough for man to live forever. That is why the Creator placed the Tree of Life. Its fruits were addition to the nutrition of man, which enabled the cells to regenerate themselves perfectly, preventing even the slightest form of decay. Separating man from the Tree of Life, a very imperceptible decay of mankind started. The human life reduced to something less than a pathetic thousand years.

Before the Flood, I was not even aware that nutrition may have some impact on people, since everything that was created — it was created literally perfect, including the weather conditions. Hence, I tried to ruin mankind by destroying their morality. As you can see, I was more than successful in that field, apart from minor exceptions.

After the Flood, I noticed that some plant species – which was very important for human nutrition up to that moment – failed to renew. I heard that the Creator let man to eat clean animal species. Before the Flood, they were named so because they could be offered as sacrifice. Furthermore, He said something about the animals now being afraid of man.

I saw that something was wrong when people started to age rapidly. Life expectancy was decreasing rapidly. I began to research the reasons why this was happening. At first, I thought that the Creator intentionally commanded the reducing of life expectancy, but I discovered that one of the reasons was the changed nutrition. Due to the new climate conditions, everything changed. I also noticed that the Creator created something invisible to the human eye in order to maintain the balance in Nature and to make sure that the new conditions remain life hospitable.

These were the various bacteria and other micro-world. I managed to misuse it very quickly (via alcohol and various diseases).

As I continued to morally ruin man, while inflicting him even greater pain, I began to intensively devise ways which would shorten his life and make him more weaker and sicker. That is why I began to inspire people to eat and drink what they previously never thought they would. I intensively started studying the human metabolism, human needs and reactions to the lack of particular substances. I also studied flora and I found many – for human consumption – useful and important plants, and many other bad ones – which was my goal from the beginning. I wanted to find plants and animals whose consumption evokes a feeling of satisfaction in man, while simultaneously destroying him slowly.

Through generations, I developed the most lethal weapon of destruction and degradation of the mankind. Something almost as powerful as lust — appetite.

The food ceased to be the way of obtaining the necessary substances for organism, such as necessary nutrients, vitamins and minerals. In fact, to most people, this is the last thing they think when they talk about food. The food became one of the greatest forms of bodily pleasures. You only want two things out of food: to stop the hunger and to enjoy it. The fact – that your body craves for the ingredients it really needs in order to function properly, to develop and to maintain a healthy state of the whole organism and to fight against pathogens – is not important to you in any way and it is not of interest to you. Therefore, when you are hungry, you will take a bag of potato chips. You will satisfy your appetite with it, but you did not give anything useful to your body. In fact, you have given him a lot of bad stuff that can do a lot of harm to him. Fats, additives, salt...

That is exactly my goal. Why? Have you heard about mutations? For this matter, I will have to simplify the biochemistry. Mutations are degenerative changes. Most of them are hereditary. You still do not understand? All the garbage that you eat and drink is destroying your body on the micro level.

In that way, the mutations, which are always degenerative and often hereditary, have degraded man to this level — slowly, through generations and generations. All those diseases, as well as the physical anomalies, are the result of my thousands of years long and persistent work in imposing the lifestyle which destroys mankind. You still do not believe me?

Here is a simple example:

Animals are not that interesting to me as man is. For example: take a deer or a tiger, or any other wild animal species. When was the last time you saw an animal that is considerably different from the rest of its kind? There are no fat animals. Comparing to man, they almost do not get sick at all. Every single animal is just the way it supposed to be, by all proportions. And why is that? Because I did not try to make them eat and drink something unnatural to them. When did you see a deer that eats meat? Or a tiger that goes near fire to inhale the smoke? Now, look at the animals that man tamed. Man, whose modern nutrition is my creation, now feeds his animals the same way he feeds himself. The result? Obesity, lowered immunity, shorter life expectancy, degenerations, diseases... Just like in humans.

Seeing how man often slaves to food and how much he enjoys in it, I have managed to inspire him to come up with diverse and complicated types of food and beverages. All those delicacies are focused on one thing only — enjoyment. Health? Who cares about health? Feeling good and being healthy is not important to man. He only wants to enjoy. And I made that possible to him. Of course, in order to destroy man. To destroy YOU.

You poor idiot... If only you knew that the Creator made possible for you to live happily even on this destroyed planet. Thousands of seemingly ordinary plants around you are able to meet ALL the needs of your body. But you do not think that you will enjoy consuming them and that is why they are not of interest to you. You want to enjoy the taste I offer you. Who cares where it comes from?

MEAT

The climate changed significantly after the Flood. The poles were frozen, central region of the Earth became ardent, while the temperate zones now had an unstable climate. It took some time for different types of plant to grow. And especially the vitamin B12. For this reason, the Creator allowed man to eat the meat of certain animals. If man complied with the Creator's instructions – to use meat and other animal products only as a minimal dietary supplement – human life would not be much shorter, since eating meat can produce many adverse consequences. But I am an expert in exaggeration. Seeing how harmful meat can be to human health – but also how much it is delicious to man – in time, I replaced the vegetables and other plants as main course with animal products. The vegetables were to be used only as salads. I especially tried to encourage the consumption of those kinds of meat the Creator banned, such as pork, or oysters and crabs. The Creator knew very well why man should not eat such meat, but man did not. Man only cares about enjoyment, even if it is bad for him, and even if he eats the meat of carnivores or omnivores.

Speaking of the cost effectiveness and health, I recently realized that the taste of meat and its color can be improved by various chemical supplements. So, in order to make as much money as possible, I have convinced man to use the animal almost completely. Bad taste of inedible animal parts is easily fixed with various colors and additives. Of course, the profit is more important than the effects of using all that chemical additives. Therefore, it is in my best interest to make sure that you eat as much of meat products as possible. All those colored meat products, with preservatives, various types of salt and other additives.

But, even without this, man's greed enabled me to make the meat especially unhealthy. I inspired man to start with a massive farming of animals which are to be used solely in his nutrition. I made him to unnaturally influence animals's reproduction and nutrition. He started feeding them with meat. True, with the forage, but it is STILL the meat. The farms are, likewise, my idea. Living in such an unnatural surrounding, without necessary living conditions, the animals also become very prone to diseases. That is why the farmers are forced to add many type of drugs in their food. In addition, in order that animals gain in weight rapidly and also to earn more money, the farmers use various hormones. Do I even need to explain how much all of what you eat affects your body? What do you think, why man's appendix stunted? Because of evolution? No... But because of ME.

You see, you do not even realize that – everything of what you now consider to be a normal nutrition – is actually a mean through which I deliberately hurt you and make you suffer. Nutrition habits I imposed has become so strong that most people will not make any changes in what they eat even if they get ill. Not even when they find out what is the cause of their illness. They will just attribute it to something else. That it was just a bad luck. The majority of people will ascribe their bad state to aging, to normal and natural processes, but NEVER to their life habits.

SWEETS

A part from providing man everything he needs for life, the Creator enabled him to also enjoy in it. Seeing that man's favorite food is fruit, I knew it was because of its sweet taste. Man loves sweet. And why would not I allow him to eat it, while destroying him in the process? Can you guess who created modern menus? ME, of course. After you overload your stomach and your whole body with unnecessary and harmful substances with what you call "a good meal", I do NOT intend to stop there. I am very thorough.

I devised yet another disaster for you — the sweets! But why would you finish your meal by eating something healthy and sweet, when I came up with a much more delicious and unhealthy solution?

Cakes! Sounds good, does not it? And does this sound good, too? Saturated fats, refined sugar, chemicals, empty calories...

But if you still want to eat the fruit, it is fine by me. But, you will eat it MY way. Why would you eat only strawberries? It is better if there is some cream, sour cream and even sugar... Why would you eat small and ugly apples, which has probably been scratched by a worm? You should only buy those big, beautiful and perfect looking ones... Those a worm would never even go near. It is my luck that there is no possibility of conducting a chemical analysis of such apples and other fruits.

Why would you drink water? Soda is much tastier. Try also fruit juices. They have up to 20% of fruit, and they are rich in vitamins.

But this is not even near an end.

Chocolates, candies, ice creams, puddings... plenty of food pleasant to palate, but – for your body – full of completely worthless and harmful substances. This is how I do that you, with a great pleasure, prepare a hospital bed for yourself. But a particular pleasure for me is when you let your children have sweets instead of a quality meal, in a period when the right nutrition is critical to their development. I could tell you all about the consequences of it, but I do not want to give you a reason of depriving your children and me of all the pleasures which sweets provide to us.

OBESITY

Look around yourself. You see nothing special? Everything seems normal? Modern human appearance is now normal to you. Thanks to various prejudices I created, such an appearance and health condition of today's man, as well as his abilities, or – better to say – limitations, are regarded as a completely normal thing. What prejudices, you ask? Prejudice that meat is the main food, prejudice that it is silly to do sports after you are thirty and it is completely unacceptable if you are over fifty years old. Prejudice which claims that it is normal to gain weight after you get married, prejudice that it is normal to be sicker as you get older, prejudice that overweight is yet another acceptable lifestyle... You see, all these are prejudices which I slowly introduced over time.

I was particularly successful when it comes to destroying the human body through overfeeding. Considering that I am familiar with all the damage I can cause by making a person obese, I do my best to make it happen.

Since I know that the Creator forbade man to eat fats and grease, I was able to make exactly that part of an animal as the most popular, most economical and most delicious one — especially today. Just look at what those hams, sausages and salamis are made of — fats.

Fats are immediately stored in your body as a backup source of energy. Energy which you will never use, as you have bad life habits which I have imposed on you. Why else do you need energy except for chewing and recumbency?

By filling your body with fats, I destroy you very slowly and painfully. You think it is only about your appearance? That you will gain just a few extra pounds? I have to inform you that on the inside you look exactly as you look on the outside — bad and ugly. I put weight on your bloodstream and heart. The fatter you are, the more sluggish you become, which leads to a number of problems. Your heart is weakening and, instead of pumping the blood with its full strength and power, it makes up for by increasing speed. This is the very reason for your tiredness. I increase the risk of stroke and heart attack by clogging the blood vessels with cholesterol. It only takes one small piece of free cholesterol to clog one tiny blood vessel and look — heart attack or a stroke. I also destroy your spine and joints with your overweight...

Then, due to the excessive consumption of sugar and fats, as well as the storage of the fat tissue, your body becomes less able to regulate the level of sugar in your blood. The risk of diabetes thus increases which leads to many problems, even to blindness. I use your appetite to make you suffer as much as possible. You spend too much money on food, to satisfy your appetite, which leads to additional stress that produces many other diseases and ailments. Do you see how I can control you through your appetite? I made you miserable as well as the ones you love... And for what? Because you can not control your appetite? Perfect, is not it?

EXERCISES

Take two cars, for example. Drive one of them each and every day, take care of it, and leave the other one untouched for years. What do you think, which one of them will be in better shape after ten years? The one you did not use? Wrong. Inactivity will deteriorate it. Oxidation, followed by the condensation, dust and Sun will slowly destroy its vital parts. The car is designed to work.

The same is with your body. Your body is designed to move itself. Inactivity destroys your body. You can not even imagine what the human body is capable of. You are not even close to understand all the possibilities of the human body. Today, only a few people were able to develop only some of their abilities to an exceptional level, but the human body has the potential to be perfect in all aspects at the same time. However, I make sure that such a thing NEVER happen. I have made the human body so fragile and weak that, during the Middle Ages, the average life expectancy was only thirty years, mainly due to the poor nutrition or because of insufficient or excessive physical exertion.

I realized that due to the inactivity, certain body parts are prone to gradual deterioration, or even dying. Thanks to the technological progress, I could not destroy man any longer by excessive work combined with the inadequate food. I decided to completely change my approach.

Inactivity. I introduced the above-mentioned prejudice that makes exercising to be ridiculous and unnecessary, while tolerating bad health condition and lifestyles. I reduced human activities to a minimum. You can not even imagine how much I can hurt you in this way, with various diseases and discomfort. Gaining weight is so simple: you just have to sit, eat and not to do anything. The feeling of pleasure makes you forget about the time that is passing. But when you realize that this is the reason why you look so bad, that this is why you are so ill, then you will become painfully aware of how hard is to lose weight and burn down the extra energy. Of course, I will assure you that it is in your best interest to come to terms with the situation you are in, instead of trying to look better and be healthier.

WORK

Who does today even think about the origins of mankind as it is described in the Bible? Only a very small number of people. Its lessons are clearly presented, but it asks for man's personal research and reasoning. The Creator designed everything to ensure the lessons found in the Bible would be implanted powerfully and engrossingly in the reader's mind. That way, the truths one learns are meant to become part of his character.

Who even thinks about the Garden of Eden and why the Creator placed man there? Why did not He make buildings, streets, cars...?

I have managed to completely devalue the foundations of humanity and human habits which the Creator set during the Creation. I already mentioned marriage and the day of resting. I was even able to strip the Creator's blessing which He dedicated to man through work. I was the one who attached a negative connotation to the word "work". The work was designed by the Creator to give man the means of steady development, resource of acquisition of new knowledge and skills. The work is a perfect way of developing human creativity and a chance of using countless gifts which the Creator gave to man. I had to take that away from you. And so to degrade you even more.

It is important to prevent you from doing what the Creator wants. Whether you work too much, neglecting the Creator Himself, or to make you lazy and idle so that I would be free to poison your mind with a variety of thoughts and ideas. Tell me, when was the last time you heard that some farmer was homosexual? Did you ever see an obese or lazy farmer? Of course, this does not prevent me from trying, but I can not influence those who really work something and are physically active.

I consider the encouragement of man's aspiration to move to big cities as my biggest success. Imprisoning him in apartments, surrounding him with concrete, I was able to reduce his creativity to mere plans of how to use his free time to selfishly "enjoy" himself. Television, Internet, food, night life, food, night life, Internet, food, long walks in polluted cities...

To my regret, the Creator inspires some people to buy smaller orchards, where they find relief from busy everyday life I have imposed on them. But the majority still stays on MY side, because they follow my principles and lifestyles that cause a great mental burden. Only I fully know how this affects your body.

TOBACCO

One more thing concerning meat. Another paradox which shows that human stupidity really knows no boundaries. To be preserved, meat must be conserved. Apart from already present chemistry, the oldest method of preserving meat from decaying is — fuming. This is my very old trick. Why people do this? So that the flies and other pests would avoid it, right? Did you ever wonder why flies avoid it? I will tell you. Because it is poisonous! For the insects as well as for man. But since it does not kill you immediately, you are capable of poisoning yourself for years until you die from the consequences of such a poisoning — of colon cancer or other illnesses caused by eating of the fumed meat and similar food. You see, even a fly is smarter than you! Realizing how bad the smoke is for man, I have decided to take advantage of this sort of human stupidity and to teach man to enjoy the smoke.

I have to admit, this idea seemed so stupid to me at first, but then I remembered that I am dealing with man here. I can make him do whatever I want.

I realized that I could use one highly poisonous plant to cause a great pain to man. Tobacco. Because of certain ingredients it possesses, it can be used as an antiseptic, and to be comforting. Such a feeling of comfort can be compared to the feeling one has when put in the supine position, tied, calmed... and then release the guillotine on his neck! Tobacco has one substance that calms down, but it also has four thousand of other substances that slowly destroy the human body. So slowly that you will not attribute the symptoms of incurable diseases to tobacco. You will rather blame the cause, or better yet — the cruel Creator who punishes you.

This is my favorite strategy of mocking, humiliating and dispraising the Creator. You willingly ruin your health and bring yourself to the brink of death. Due to the selfish pleasure you take from enjoying the tobacco, when you get sick, you also bring a great pain to those who care for you. Your children, your wife, your parents... Then you die and make your family permanently unhappy, blaming the Creator for letting the children lose one of their parents, for letting that such a “good” person – as you are – dies. Oh, if you could only realize how brilliant I am!

If the peak of human stupidity exists, this must be it. People know very well that nicotine itself is very poisonous. They even know it is used as an insecticide. They can read the warnings on cigarette packs which warns them. But as I said, I can make man do anything.

ALCOHOL

When I saw, for the first time, that man – after drinking boiled grape juice – went into a state in which he did not have full control over his mind, a state in which his physical abilities are quite reduced and he becomes more open to my suggestions, I realized that this is a very good opportunity for me.

In fact, a lot of opportunities! Experimenting on man by suggesting him to consume as much alcohol as he can, I noticed that it caused many adverse effects in his body. To me, most important is the damage which occurs in the human brain. The more one drinks alcohol, the less will and strength he will have to resist me. The best part is that he becomes very addicted to it. Moreover, since the liver has to deal with so much alcohol, irreparably damaging it, alcoholism leads to an agonizing death.

I especially try to prove (with various scientific evidences) that alcoholic drinks should be consumed because they are healthy. For example: beer and wine. The truth is that some of the substances from grape and hop are good for your body, but that is meaningless when compared to damage caused by other substances and all the problems that I can create to an intoxicated man.

But, before such a man dies, I use him very skillfully to make his life and life of his family miserable. He will listen to my suggestions to be violent and spend everything he has on alcohol. Of course, he will not blame alcohol for his problems...

DRUGS

I have found plants even more toxic than tobacco. By developing immorality and recklessness, and thanks to chemistry, I was able to convince people to make for a living out of human misery and death. If I managed to convince man to enjoy in something as unnatural as is the smoke, I knew I could persuade him to a much faster form of suicide, providing that the pleasure is greater. And it is, as is my power over such a person.

It was not too difficult to assure man that the only solution to his problems – and to the state of horror I brought him in – is to seek relief in the pleasure and bliss that drugs provide. Of course, he does not think about the addiction, even less about what happens in his brain, due to the drugs, that makes him feel that way. Everyone thinks that he have it under control. That he can stop. And he indeed can stop — when he dies.

But before that happens... pain. Lots of pain. Both to him and to his family. Theft, lies, deceit, murder, diseases, mental pain...

THE MAZE

When it comes to your health, you have realized that you are in a very intricate maze. There is an exit, but you are used to the conditions in the maze. The maze you now call »normal life«. To many people, life without my maze would be almost a disaster. At least, I made it to seem so.

Encouraging human carelessness, finding an exit from this maze is getting harder and harder.

I have led human carelessness to such a stage that people will not care about anybody or anything just so that they could earn money. The obvious example was mentioned when I talked about drugs, but the situation in other areas is similar, because people lost their conscience. Why? Because it is now legal. Take, for example, a tobacco grower. Do you think he even considers how many people will die from lung cancer or stroke because of his products? Do you think that he is even aware that he is a death merchant? Of course not. Moreover, he will condemn a drug dealer, not realizing that he is doing the exactly same thing.

What about wine and the producers of other alcoholic beverages? Do they consider the fact that many people will become addicted to their products? That their consumers will die prematurely? Do they even think about the pain they cause to the family that has a drinker? They do not. Not even for a little. Even if they would start thinking about it, I assure them that they did not force anyone to drink their products, that they are just making for a living. And thus, their minds are seduced by the profit they make.

Likewise, money encourages cattle breeders to feed the animals with various junk food in order to maximize their profit. That way, the animals grow faster, thus reducing farming expenses. A farmer will even use excessive drug doses to protect his investment, as well as a variety of hormones and chemicals to earn more money. You already figured out that he also does not care about the negative effects on people who will consume such meat. Having counted the money he earned, the problems of obesity and various other diseases he caused do not even cross his mind. After spurring him to do so, I make sure that his thoughts are diverted from all the problems he caused.

The situation is not better with fruit and vegetable grower. His goal is the very SAME — to profit. To make more money. If his plants needs to be treated with various pesticides for dozens of times, he will not think twice. He just wants the product to be ready for sale. By “ready”, he means that it must have a nice and commercial look. The time between the treatment of the plant with pesticides and the consumption of such product is of less importance. This way, all the pesticides – toxics which are used to protect the plant from diseases, pests and weeds – become effective in the human body, causing the worst diseases of various kinds. But, who even thinks about it when he gets his money? I use his concerns about profit to completely suppress the filling of guilt for poisoning others.

Do you think that a tobacco producer will want to get out of the maze when he sees how much money he earned by ruining others? Will those who produce alcoholic beverages stop doing what they are doing when they see a drunkard freezing in a ditch? Will the animal and plant breeders choose a healthier way of farming over bigger profits? No! They will not. I suppress the voice of conscience with money and profit.

Industry. So many employees. Imagine if someone would shut down a tobacco company. How many people would be without work? What about meat industry? Or confectionery and alcohol industry? Do you see now how big my maze is?

You wonder now, is there a way out? Fortunately for me, for many people there is no way out. The consumption of various unnatural and to the body harmful substances has become so common that almost no one even considers giving them up. Today it is perfectly normal to eat unhealthy cakes, to drink alcohol, to smoke and to eat meat. Even most of the fruits and vegetables are poisoned. You already know the answer, do not you? To avoid all my traps, you would have to give up from all of that and to start producing your own food. But would you still have time to watch television? Would you have time to browse the Internet? Or to rest? How would you earn enough money to follow the trends I set?

Is there a way out? There is. But you decide to live according to my rules. You eat what I want you to eat. You drink what I want you to drink. You accept the lifestyle I designed for you. You are going to die the way I want you to die.

Now we come to the most interesting part. Medicines. Yes, there are medicines for all the diseases I have caused. Even effective ones. But no one will just give them to you. You will have to pay for them, if you have enough money. You have already realized that my best tool in destroying man is — another man. I have brought man into such a state of consciousness that he will be able to watch a child dies, since his/her parents do not have enough money to buy the necessary medicine. Do you wonder how someone can ask for money to save another person's life. Should not people help each other? Forget about those the Creator's ideals. Did you forget about my influence? Do you really think that you would be any better if you would be in their position?

But I do not just affect your health by making you consume or not consume something. I have other ways of destroying you.

ECOLOGY

I did not understand for a long time why the Creator said in His Word that in the last times, the Sun will shine much stronger. But now I do. In His mercy, He wrapped the Earth with an atmospheric layer which protects the Earth and its habitants from harmful radiations. I noticed that, for some reason, the planet is getting warmer as the technology advances. I soon realized that the pollution weakens the atmosphere's protective mechanisms, thus enhancing the greenhouse effect. I immediately started encouraging people to pollute the atmosphere in various ways.

When man found out what he has done, I was already pretty satisfied, and the damage done was irreparable. Various agreements signed by the representatives of many countries did not help either, because I convinced the main polluters not to sign any treaty to reduce the emission of poisonous gases. This could endanger their country's industry.

I am very successful with each of my attempts to use man to make his own life miserable.

When it comes to ecology, do I even have to tell you in what a desperate state the planet on which you live is?

Nuclear energy was developed so that it could generate even more profit and power. By itself, it is not bad. It is profitable, but with the nuclear waste I will destroy multitude of people who will live after. Not because it is that dangerous, but because of negligent and corrupted disposal. Emissions, large industrial facilities that emit large amount of smoke into the atmosphere — made the air you breathe become very harmful. The waters – which are polluted by the great industries and the waste waters of cities – are now also bad for man. My goal is to destroy ALL the supplies of the drinking water.

I am close to achieving this. I just think that the Creator will not give me enough time to do it.

But I can also spread death, fear and suffering in many other ways. For example, with tsunamis. Beautiful, is not it? With holes in the ozone and with the pollution of the atmosphere, the temperature on Earth irreversibly increases itself. And what is going to happen? The poles are starting to melt. The glaciers as well. Sea level is rising. Many cities will be flooded soon. Do the residents of those cities worry about that? I occupy their thoughts with hundreds of other things, so that they do not even think about such disaster. And that is precisely my goal. The less they are ready for what is coming, the more of them will be destroyed.

I try to speed up the global warming even more by causing large forest fires and destroying forests by cutting down the trees, making the Earth even hotter and less habitable. In addition to that, I tirelessly try to cause various environmental disasters. Sunken tankers! My favorite game. The whole ecosystem of that area becomes irreversibly damaged. It takes many years to even mitigate the consequences of such catastrophe.

The reason for my success in creating a global catastrophe, as you can already guess, lies in the successful manipulation with people on the individual level. From recklessly throwing away a plastic bag or an empty battery, to discarding various chemicals into sewage or spilling it on the ground...

Is there a way out? No! The Creator seen it long ago and He prophesied what will happen. I am so close to accomplishing my goals. My web of destruction for the mankind is fully stretched. And you are in it. This time — consciously. And there is no way out. You do not even want to get out of it.

FASHION

You have the honor to meet the greatest fashion designer of all times — ME! Do you wonder why would I be interested in fashion? Because this is a unique way to combine the destruction of the mankind in the areas of morality and health at the same time. Can you notice that the size of clothes is getting smaller and smaller. That it is getting shorter and shorter. No, that is not the result of the global warming, but it is a direct result of my careful strategy for the gradual introduction of the utter immorality. I inspire fashion designers to combine provocative immorality with very unhealthy and impractical clothing and footwear.

Since man became very frail, it is pretty easy for me to make him permanently sick and crippled by the mere way of dressing, especially women. I have a number of very modern (read: unhealthy) details in clothing and footwear for women. T-shirts, thongs, high heels, short skirts... Let me ask you, what do you think is the reason for frequent infections, infertility, urinary tract infections, sciatica, strained spine and feet, as well as the other illnesses of women? Yes, the reason is the clothing which I create for them. I particularly try to seduce the youth.

The earlier you start dressing like that, the longer you will suffer.

Apart from degrading the women morally, they lead men, who are already filled with prejudices, into a state of reduced control over their actions and thoughts, thus making them lustful. This is especially important to me because – to the Creator – this kind of behavior is the same as adultery. In this way, I firmly separate both men and women from the Creator.

Making that men neglect their women had a particularly important role in this matter. I lead women to think that their clothes is the best way to attract men's attention. Of course, many of these pathetic women do not even know what kind of attention they actually attract. Every possible attention, except the one they actually want.

But the fashion is not just about clothes. It is modern to be tanned, right? Better to be tanned than white. When I think about it, the human stupidity had some brilliant moments. This is one of them. People know that the excessive solar radiation is harmful and that it can severely damage the skin. They also know that the skin will age more rapidly under the conditions of the overexposure to the Sun. They are also familiar with the fact that the ozone layer is getting thinner, thus making everything already mentioned even more dangerous. But what many people do not know is that the Sun can LITERALLY kill them, and it can be very painful too: death by malignant melanoma or malignant skin cancer.

Imposing tanned skin through fashion trends, men, regardless of everything, wants to get tanned. Who even cares about the moles? Let them get some Sun too. But they do not like Sun and they do not like to be burned by it. They punish you very quickly if you would expose them to Sun. I spend the rest of time enjoying watching you cursing your own stupidity, because that is actually a praise to my ingenuity and success. But fashion trends are not limited just to your physical appearance and clothing. Fashion trends which I set go much further than that. The car is a fashion trend, cell phone, computer, motorcycle... You are wondering how the car can be harmful to you? Is not that something what is needed today, as well as the other mentioned items? The fact is that – in most cases – one can not afford such things without lending money.

My goal is, if you have read carefully, to occupy you with various obligations so that you would NEVER even think about seeking the Creator's Word. And that is why I set expensive fashion trends as your life goals to which you can not resist because you want to be trendy. They force you to take bank credits. When you are already lending money, why do not you buy something nice for yourself? Something better. It does not matter that you actually do not need it. You only live once. Let your friends see you, let them envy you. That is how I encourage you to lend more and more, buying more expensive and luxurious stuff. This way I accomplish two things. First, I enslave you with an additional job so that you can repay the loan installments you trapped yourself in. It is clear that you will have no time for the Creator. It goes without saying that you will also neglect your spouse and yourself, and especially the children. You will allow ME to educate them. Through television, Internet, games... On the other hand, all those things you bought make you arrogant and proud, thus making sure that the Creator can not approach you, nor you to Him.

Fostering a genuine humility – to which the Redeemer came to point out as the only reliable protection from me – is, in this modern era, presented as a character flaw, a human trait that reflects the backwardness. And you do not want to let other people think that about you. You want to be popular, you want to be someone in this world. I will make sure that it happens. Why? Because that is a sure way towards your own destruction.

Fashion trends... They are the delusion which helps me to hold the world in my hand safely and securely. Do you see how deeply you are tangled in MY web? Do you think that you can escape me? You can, but in order to do that, you will need a Force that surpasses yours and mine... The Force you do not really want.

MUSIC

One of the greatest gifts the Creator gave to Angels and to humans – and to many other creatures – is the gift of creating music. As every other gift the Creator gave to His creatures, music was also used to express love and gratitude for His love and kindness toward them.

I have soon realized that music has a special influence on all living beings. It deeply affects the mind and one's behavior and mood. Since music is, in its basis, a way of expressing special joy and praise, I wondered if I could achieve the opposite: to make people – with a sequence of various intonations – be miserable and depressed, to encourage them to be aggressive and violent and to bring them into a state where they will not be able to fully control their mind.

You already know the answer, do not you? Of course I succeeded! I was especially happy that I was able to misuse such a great gift given to you.

I was very surprised when I noticed how much influence a rhythmic and prolonged repetition of certain sounds or voices has on the human psyche. It brings the human mind into a state of trance — a state when I can almost completely take over the mind of the person who listens to or performs music. I particularly used this in the rituals of the Oriental religions.

I have researched what effects the intonation and tone sequences have on the human mind, as well as its speed and rhythm, and came to some surprising discoveries.

I have noticed that not everyone is susceptible to the same kind of music, and, therefore, I inspired people to create different styles of music. I encouraged aggression through heavy metal and rock music and adultery through hip-hop and dance music. I was even able to make arrogant those who listen to classical and instrumental music. Listening to certain types of music became a great occasion for a drug use, to help complete the effect of rhythmic, intoxicating tones, such as rave and techno music. Other types of music, such as folk music, became even “better” with alcohol.

My favorite music is the one that makes people do something specific, like suicide. Suicides of people who have experienced something awful, such as break up of a love affair, or accident, or something similar. With carefully selected tones, I lead the human mind into such a state where suicide is the only possible solution.

Yes, I know that you are shocked. How can something so beautiful be used to destroy you? I already told you: everything the Creator uses, I can also use against you. Do you realize that you are my victim in this area as well? You are aware that I used music to make you aggressive from time to time, I made you to use drugs and alcohol. You got sad while listening to music, or you got mad. When you were happy, you celebrated it with alcohol, when you were sad, it was the same. How many times did I use music to make you upset and unpleasant towards others, while you did not even know that the reason for it was my music?

A huge number of today's singers owe their fame to me. I am the one who inspires them to write all their songs. Many of them are not aware of that, while the other half of them openly thank me for it. They are my followers through whom I – apart from influencing your mind with their music – present and spread fashion trends and moral points of view — actually immorality which I make acceptable, then distorted perception and understanding of fairness and honesty, as well as unreachable goals which make ordinary mortals depressed and frustrated. Do I have to tell you that I am the one who decides what music someone likes or not, whether certain type music is accepted or not. I manipulate with people in this area as well. And, even though I work so openly against the Creator, instead of bringing you closer to the Creator, you are getting more and more distant from Him. I also determine your taste in music.

I can also make music to become the chronic cause of suffering. This is not about music, but its volume. Do you know how bad the noise is for your ears? Are you aware that it causes permanent and uninterrupted chirp or noise in your head? For generations, I make people unhappy in this way. Do they know what causes their suffering? No, and that is why they can not teach their children about the dangers of loud music. Just as there is no one who would teach you.

Do you have any idea how much you actually belong to me? Not so funny as it was at the beginning of this book?

You have decided to run away? To go away from me? You will ask the Creator to help you, even if you would need to change your life? Do you think that you will be safe with Him because He promised so? He would certainly be very happy to fulfill His promises, but He has to have your will's support. And I can so easily take you from His hands, that I can even tell you the ways through which I captured some of the greatest researchers of the Bible, and those who though they have escaped all my traps. And even after all the explanations, I will STILL be able to cause your eternal damnation.

Did you really think that the religion will remain to be an area where you will be safe? In fact, it is the most dangerous area. An area in which I dedicated most of my attention and efforts, but also, an area of my greatest victories. My goal is to destroy you for eternity by keeping you away from the Creator. It brings me a certain joy, but achieving that goal while keeping you in the belief that you are a good believer who serves the Creator — is something which represents a very special pleasure for me.

The closer you are to the Creator, my traps are harder to spot, and my delusions are more similar to truth.

Are you aware how difficult and dangerous this path is for you if you decide to follow it? Until you make such a decision, my job is just to keep you on the path of your destruction. If that involves a certain type of well-being, I will make sure that you have it.

But if you decide to follow the Creator, I will be with you all the time. I will watch your every step. I will use every opportunity to hurt either you or your loved ones. My presence will be almost physical. You can not serve someone else on MY planet without being punished.

Will not the Creator protect you? Of course He will. But the problem is that He will allow me to let some troubles on you. He wants to use them to build up your character, but I want to weaken your faith in Him through these troubles. I always accept this challenge because I win in most of the cases. This is a very amusing game for me. One of the reasons is that I am going to make you blame the Creator for everything that happens to you because of me. Beautiful, is not it?

Here, I will even help you start following the Creator's Word. Not that you could save yourself, but to make MY victory even greater.

CHAPTER 33

THE CROSSROAD

In this very moment, you only know that you want to escape and to get out of my reach. I am going to tell you something right now: it will not happen. But if you really want to try...

Where is the Creator in all of this? If you have read carefully, you now know where He IS NOT. I revealed to you a multitude of different delusions and teachings which I have devised, so that I could obstruct the Creator's work as much as possible.

You saw that He revealed Himself through only one book — the Bible. You have also found out that there are hundreds of religious groups whose teachings are allegedly based on the Bible. Which one to join? Is it necessary to join any community or to read and research the Bible by yourself? I would personally prefer if you choose the second option, for several reasons. First, you are going to be very susceptible to my influence due to your poor knowledge of the Bible and the prejudices you already have about it. The truths you discover will be revealed to you incompletely and you will, most likely, with my help, interpret them wrongly, and thus you will misunderstand them.

Therefore, the first option is better for you: to search for a group of people who has the largest number of biblical truths discovered, and who has the greatest light from the Creator, when it comes to the salvation.

How to recognize it? Are you thinking that it must be the largest religious community? But I will tell you one thing: when it comes to religion, the majority was NEVER on the Creator's side. Nor will they EVER be. You have already realized that I have an enormous advantage over the Creator when we speak about the number of followers. The Redeemer warned you that the path to salvation is narrow, which means you should avoid the majority. You should search for a smaller community. But which one? I created hundreds of them just in order to make it difficult for you and those like you.

Most of them adapt the truth to the individual, instead of the doing the opposite, all because they refuse to accept some of the Creator's Commandments.

Here is an example:

The Redeemer told you to love your neighbor as you love yourself. You humans, because I encourage your selfishness, just can not accept this simple truth. That is why I lead you to come up with strangest philosophies to try to interpret this unequivocal statement. That is how new "truths" are discovered. When a certain number of such "truths" is gathered, people, who want to be religious, assemble around, but, at the same time, they do not want to literally implement what the Creator commands. This way, the truth gets blurred by my philosophy. Therefore, another philosophy is necessary to unmask the truth masked by my philosophy, in order to come to those simple truths which the Creator gave. All this makes religion to seem very complicated, hard to understand and repulsive.

In order to find the real Creator's truths, you would have to study the Bible very carefully, and to be prepared to leave your (im)moral habits behind you, and to accept the biblical ones. Of course, you would have to be careful not to become fanatical, while simultaneously sticking to what is truly important. However, you will quickly realize what the eternal values are, regardless of civilization and culture.

You would then have to carefully study today's religions and see which one of them follows what the Redeemer – and His apostles after Him – preached, in accordance with the Law the Creator gave through Moses. You would have to see which group of people did not bring any changes when it comes to the Law, rites, manner and time of week meeting, the way of preaching the truth, but firmly sticks to them, just as the Apostles did.

A lot of effort is needed to discover which group of people bases its teachings on what the Jews taught in the beginning. Which group continued where they have – with my help – left off, while avoiding those religious communities that have pagan elements in them.

In addition to it, you should discover which group is not under my control when it comes to various areas of life that I have previously described. You may be wondering why you should not be looking for a church that is based on honest and selfless love, instead of searching for a community that has the greatest number of truths. Be patient, because I have prepared a surprise for you...

One that you will like? I do not think so!

It would be much easier if I would pointed you to THAT group of people, right? Yes, it would be, but remember — my goal is to ruin your life, not to make it easier.

At first, you probably will not recognize this group of people, but if you search for it honestly, no matter what it takes, you will surely find it. However, honesty requires your humility and recognition of your own mistakes and that is why I will give you lots of excuses not to be honest and stay exactly where you are now. If you do not find it in your first try, I will do all that is in my power to keep you in the wrong religious community, letting you believe that you are at the right place. The real truths will be interpreted as lies and lies as truths. I will make sure that you stay in a religious community which best suits your understanding of religion, and not to join those people who will ask you to radically change your character.

Does your decision to escape from me seems feasible to you? Do you think that – with all the strings I used to tie you to me – you will have the wisdom, strength and faith to find the path which leads toward the Creator? Of course NOT. But I have decided to reveal you my secrets and to free you from your slavery just for a moment. I will allow you to see the truth. I will allow you to meet the Creator.

The better you know Him, the harder it will be for me to return you to me. But, in your case, that is an acceptable challenge for me.

The better you know Him, the more responsible you will be for the things you do.

You will expect a greater relief the more you get to know Him. But the things will be the opposite. Only then, you will be able to see your depravity in its true light. And afterwards, instead of completely changing yourself, you will come back to ME. The only difference is that you will be aware that I am responsible for your bitter reality. This will be my final victory, because, from now on, you will sin OPENLY against the Creator.

Despising the Creator's love, His sacrifice for you and His efforts to change you, thus making you a resident of His Kingdom, you will throw away your last chance to free yourself from my control. And then my goal will be complete. And this book will fulfill its purpose.

I will use this book to introduce you with the Creator. I will use this book to reveal almost everything I do to seduce you and to keep you under my control. I will use this book to place full responsibility on you before the Creator. I will use this book to give you the complete freedom.

Will I lose you? Absolutely not!

Do you really think that I have let you to read this book so that you could come to conclusions on your own? I am always with you. For me, it was important that you find out the most important things about the Creator and about me, and that you willingly choose a side. Now that you know this, the easiest way for me to win is to convince you that none of this is real, and that everything you have read here is the product of someone's imagination, that it is best to forget about this book.

Come on, start thinking that all of this is an insult to your intelligence, to your "sane" mind, common sense, science and logic... Throw this book away.

Are these thoughts yours or mine?

You have ten seconds to decide...

If you have decided not to change anything and stay with me, despite everything that was revealed to you in this book, then it is the best for you to stop reading this book now. Besides, you will not even understand the next few chapters. In that case, my job with you is finished. I will just continue where I left off before you have started reading this book.

With the difference that you now KNOW.

But, if you want to be free, then it is time to put this book aside until you are familiar with the Bible. Otherwise you will not understand much. I will, of course, try to stop or delay your Bible study as much as possible. Everything else will seem more important to you. As I said, you have learned everything important that you needed to know about the Creator and about me. You saw where your position is in all of this. That is why I will do my best to limit your acquainting with the Creator just to good intentions.

Good intentions? Someone once said that the path to my Hell is paved with good intentions...

The following chapters are meant for those who took the content of this book seriously, and who I did not manage to stop from studying the Bible. This section of the book is meant for those who consider themselves faithful to the Creator. I want to show them that, even though they believe that they are serving to the Creator, they actually still belong to ME.

Therefore, if you know the Bible and the history of the Creator's chosen nation, you can continue with reading this book.

CHAPTER 34

ON SAFE?

Now you are under the impression that you are spiritual, religious, converted. You know the truth about the Creator. You know about all His promises. You are familiar with His Word, the events that are going to happen and my role in all of it. You feel safe in the Creator's vicinity. You feel comfortable on FAMILIAR grounds.

I have to tell you something: everything that you think you know so well, I know a lot longer and a lot better than you. Your "familiar grounds" is a place where I, for thousands of years, am doing more than fine and a lot better than you could ever do. I can think of hundreds of ways with which I can take you away from the Creator and bring you to ME. And the best of all is that you will NEVER even be aware of it, while you will continue to live in the deepest and most sincere belief that you are serving the Creator in the best possible way.

Only NOW the battle for your mind becomes interesting to me. You are a worthy opponent only when you have the Creator's Power with yourself.

If you searched honestly, you have certainly found by now the people who are close to the Creator.

You are a bit disappointed, are not you? That is the surprise I told you about earlier!

You have expected that those who were not seduced by my delusions and are fully aware of the biblical truths that the Creator revealed, and that they have completely different lifestyle than those who do not even know the Creator. But they do not. At least most of them do not.

Do you now realize what I was talking about? I know these "familiar grounds" a lot better than they do. Most of them are pretty far away from the Creator, even though they believe the opposite. You wonder how is that possible? If you thought that my intrigues and conspiracies are cunning and intelligent, prepare yourself to see my masterpiece of seduction of those who think they have all possible wisdom and power at their disposal. Those who are aware of MY existence and activity, those who think they know me. Prepare yourself, for this is how your end will look like, because – sooner or later – you will end up just like them.

Here is the answer to your disappointment: would it come as a surprise to you if I told you that every group of truly religious people has the members who I brought there? This is my favorite strategy that I have been using for a long time. Basically, I just observe and study them from their birth by recording their every gesture, word or character flaw. Those people who, with my help, develop character traits which can be devastating to a community. I carefully look after them and try to get them into the best religious communities. I need to be extra aware not to let them try to change their character, but to just justify their behavior with various excuses.

Once justified, these problems remain as a continuing cause of strife, dissent, intolerance, lack of organization and compromise within the community that considers itself close to the Creator's principles. With this, I ensure that this group of people loses a lot of their time dealing with the internal problems, instead of spreading the Creator's Word. Because of this, even those who freed themselves completely from my control and who are truly faithful to the Creator, just do not have enough strength or possibility to start something that would contribute to the Creator's plans more significantly.

The Redeemer once tried to warn His students about this tactic in the story about wheat and weeds, but I eventually managed to distract His disciples's attention from these warnings.

If your mind is working properly, you should now be experiencing frustration because of what you have just found out. You are among those who know the Creator's truths, but, at the same time, live in the belief that they are serving Him — people who I brought there. What are you going to do? Go back? As I said, this would be the best for me. Stay with those people? Start criticizing them? Go ahead... I will advise you how to do it!

Are you going to set an example of true loyalty and devotion? How long do you think it will last? You think that you will be able to use the potential the Creator offers? Patience, love, gentleness, humility...?

Confused? Discouraged? Welcome back to the world of spirituality and religion!

In the following chapters, you will be honored by being able to see my traps which I use to control the “believers” and lead them toward their own perdition, while keeping them in the belief that they are doing everything in their power to be with the Creator.

However, I will not reveal all. Because it would require several thousand pages to explain everything, but also because I have prepared something for you to discover when it becomes too late. There is only a very little chance that you will be the one of those who will actually leave everything behind and use everything the Creator offers as means of protection and defense against me.

SPIRITUAL MISCONCEPTIONS

MERCY

This foundation of the Creator's plan of salvation of the mankind is the subject of my special attention. It is extremely important to me that the truth about the Creator's mercy is misunderstood. You can not even imagine how many misconceptions about mercy I was able to create and to expand.

Mercy, by itself, is something unjust and undeserved and it depends solely of the one who decided to be merciful. Undeserved... It is an especially important word for me which I particularly emphasize. I can use it to assure you that, no matter what you do or do not do, you simply can not affect the Creator's will. That is how I free you from responsibility to do something you should be doing, as well as from the responsibility for the sin you commit, overemphasizing the term of mercy as something undeserved, while presenting the Creator as someone who, in His infinite love, is unconditionally merciful.

Your attitude toward sin and toward your own sinfulness and imperfection thus becomes too tolerant. More tolerant than the Creator allows it. This way, I convince you to tolerate sin, without changing your character, due to your wrong understanding of the Creator's mercy and love. The truth is that, even though you can not earn it, you need to meet certain requirements to receive mercy.

I will elaborate.

Take, for example, two murderers. They both have murdered someone and they both deserve punishment. The sentencing would be just. Not mercy. However, one of them is greatly suffering because of his transgression, repenting for what he has done. His changed character proves that he would never do the same thing again if he was offered with a second chance. Can you show mercy to this man? You do not have to, but you can — you have a basis to do so: his sincere remorse and regret for his crime.

On the other hand, the other murderer does not feel sorry for what he has done. On the contrary, he even brags about it and claims he would do the same if presented with another opportunity. Can you show mercy to THIS man as well? I mean, I could, he would have served me very well, but the Creator can not do so. He did not meet the necessary requirements.

Thus, though undeserved, because the one who gives it does not have to give it, even if the conditions are met – that is why He can also remain absolutely just – it is clear that mercy requires certain requirements. Those requirements are, when it comes to the Creator, almost a warranty that He will show mercy to the one who SINCERELY repents.

When people speak about the Creator, they often use the adjectives »limitless« and »eternal«, which, in most cases, fits His character. But when it comes to mercy, I assure you to use the same adjectives to describe this Creator's trait as well.

»The Creator's limitless mercy«. Sounds good, does not it? Sounds very soothing and encouraging, offers a great relief, but, in fact, it is MY creation — and, for you, people, it is a very pernicious word game. But, the Creator's unlimited mercy has a limit. And it is the one which you humans can cross surprisingly easy.

Since there is no other way through which He can save you apart from mercy, it is very important to bring you in a state where mercy will no longer be available to you. A state in which you will not see any need to repent or to change your character. A state where you will consider all your weaknesses justified, due to the misinterpretation of His mercy. But, you will be the only one who is going to think so. The Creator sees it quite differently. For Him, sin has no excuse, especially not considering that He gave you the Force needed to resist it.

I can also illustrate this to you for a little.

Let us say that you provided the most expensive diving equipment to your diver, in order to find pearls in the deeper parts of the sea. After a while, you come to collect your pearls, but he did not find any. His explanation is that the pearls are too deep, and that he does not want to use the diving equipment. Your excuse for committing a sin is very similar to this one. With all that the Creator has done for you, with all what He said and gave you in His Word, with His practical example while living on Earth in human body and with His Force at your disposal, you have absolutely no justification for your sin. But you have ME — a master of excuses. Excuses that are designed to seem justified only to YOU. Justifications that does not mean anything to the Creator except that offend Him.

You have to know that I will always be right beside you. When the Creator shows you that you need to reject and change something, I will always tell you about the Creator's limitless mercy and forgiveness and His limitless tolerance. You do not have to change yourself today, you can do it tomorrow. Not even tomorrow, the Creator did it for you. You are nothing but a sinful and weak man. After all, the Redeemer has set unachievable ideals...

This is one of my favorite misconceptions. I convince people that the Creator does not want them to change anything which would require certain sacrifice and pain from them. That all of it is just an unachievable ideal. But it is not. On the contrary, it is very achievable. One can not move at a speed of thousand miles per hour, but it becomes possible when he is on a plane. The same is with the Creator's goals. They are unachievable to you, but not if you unite yourself with Him.

But, if you take the Creator's goals seriously, I am always here to assure you that their achievement is a very long and slow process.

CONSECRATION

A careful and honest Bible reader will easily understand the objectives it asks from man. But, why to hurry? Since I have made sin so appealing and enjoyable, it is not too difficult to convince you to, even though you realize that you are doing something wrong, delay the change you must make in your everyday behavior. Well, the Creator is merciful and patient.

Limitlessly patient! Why would not you postpone the applying of the newly discovered knowledge for the future?

I developed a special misconception in this area. In fact, I just altered the truth for a bit, to make this misconception seem true and very logical, while, actually, it has NOTHING to do with the truth.

Consecration is a lifelong process!

And that is my misconception. Actually, that is the truth, but my explanation of it makes it a perfect and pernicious misconception. I explain it to people like this: since the Creator is merciful and patient, from the moment you realize that you have sinned, you have unlimited time to stop doing that sin. You are weak and sinful and the Creator is aware of it. His infinite love and forgiveness allows you to use the time you have ahead of you to fight the sin or weakness that you are aware of. In other words, if you know that you are arrogant and selfish, you can continue to nourish these flaws until you are able to overpower them — nothing is time-limited. Sounds good, does not it? But I will tell you what your problem is. From the moment the Creator informs you about your weakness or sin, you become fully responsible and – most importantly – guilty for it. You were not responsible and guilty for it when you did not know about it.

Therefore, the Creator requires of you to stop committing sin from the moment you become aware of it, not to nourish it. Is that impossible? I, of course, claim it is, but remember, it is also impossible for you to move at the speed of thousand miles per hour... But the Creator leaves no room for excuse. I am the one who gives excuses: that it is impossible, that the Redeemer would have never asked from you “not to sin anymore”. You just DO NOT WANT to stop committing sin, because I do not want you to stop doing that.

The Creator actually wants something very simple from you. He wants to lead you and to bring you back to Him by building up your character, with the help of His Son’s examples, His Word and His Power. My goal is to STOP that. By consciously retaining any character deficiency that you have, you simply CAN NOT be saved.

But does not the Redeemer take His righteousness into the account, you ask? He does, but only for the things you were not aware of. For instance: if you did not know that gossiping is a sin and something bad – the Creator knows exactly did you know it or not – the Redeemer will take His perfect righteousness into the account instead of yours. But if you knew that what you were doing is wrong, but you have continued with doing it, blaming your weak and sinful human nature and living in the belief that the consecration is a lifelong process — you are ruined, and I won.

Consecration, hence, is a process, but not in the sense of gradually abandoning a sin that one is already aware of. Consecration is growth in knowledge and wisdom. Through that growth, every comprehended sin, considered as a mistake up to that moment and justified by the lack of knowledge, now becomes a sin for which there is no excuse. Realizing what your mistakes are, and making a change, with the Creator's help — is the way of consecration.

Does this mean that you may not commit a sin ever again? I certainly would not tolerate that, but it seems that, for the Creator, it is enough to stop being a slave to that sin. But the Creator will forgive one's occasional falls, if the person sincerely repents.

Where is the limit? Closer than you think. But I am always there to move that limit as far as possible. So far that, when you realize that you have crossed it, you will not be able to go back.

JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH

Although I am still keep this misconception as one of the basic truths in my church, if you have carefully studied the Bible, then you have certainly come to the conclusion that man is, in fact, justified by faith. But I can also easily use your understanding of this truth AGAINST you.

In fact, many of those who think that they believe in justification by faith live in a great delusion I brought them in. Although it is basically simple, I first complicated the truth, and then I led people to make misleading conclusions out of it. The fact that man is judged by his deeds – although he justifies himself by faith – helped me a lot. I seduced the vast majority of believers to choose one of these two extremes.

The first extreme is that justification by faith means precisely what the definition says. You just believe that the Redeemer died for your sins, you believe in what He preached and you believe that it will be enough for Him to justify you in the End. What you do has absolutely no importance because you are weak and sinful and the Creator completely understands that.

The other extreme is that you need to prove your faith with your deeds. Actually, this is true, but I am able to overemphasize it so much that it is all reduced to trying to justify yourself with your deeds.

Complicated? That is how it should be.

But I try to hide what the Creator really meant with »justification by faith«. »Believing« actually means a lot more than just having confidence and faith in the Creator. To Him, it means confirming your faith with your deeds. But this is NOT the end. Even the deeds does not mean ANYTHING to Him. They must be done for the right reasons. They must be done because you have essentially become a new person. I will illustrate this.

Let us say that you have passed through the red light and a police officer saw you. He reprimanded you and explained to you what you did wrong. Next time, you will stop at that traffic light for one of these two reasons: 1) you will see that police officer again, and stop in order to avoid paying the ticket, or 2) you will stop because you became conscientious and responsible person because of what the police officer told you.

The same is with the Creator: if you obey His Law because you are afraid of the punishment and not because keeping of the Law fundamentally changed you, your efforts in respecting His Law does not mean ANYTHING to Him. The Creator wants to change your character. He does not want to force you. You need to do it with your free will.

But, I will hide all that from you and make sure that it is important to keep yourself with the material things and that the Creator really appreciates your efforts on that matter. I will convince you that it is not important if you have really changed yourself or not, because the Redeemer will accept you because of your faith in Him.

As you can see, I do not mind that you keep everything the Creator placed in front of you. Moreover, I will make sure you become so fanatical, that you will even be willing to die for one of those principles, while I make sure that the most important thing – your character – remains unchanged.

I will use all means necessary to hide the truth about repentance and rebirth from you. I will make sure that you consider yourself just and faithful. I will even allow you to do many good things, but I will always give you an excuse to stay essentially the same. Other people will not even know it, only the Creator and ME will. And you?

You will just have a belief that you are on the right path... Just a belief...

THE LAW

Striking at the very foundation of the Creator's Word – His moral law – the Ten Commandments, I have opened the door to many other misconceptions and deceptions. Many people today do not even know what are the Ten Commandments, although they are the integral part of every human law. Most of those who do know something about the Ten Commandments are familiar with them in a form in which I have presented them. I have changed the Creator's Commandments and I threw out those Commandments that tells how to serve and to be faithful to the Creator. I was able to do that with the help of my church. I threw out the Commandment that forbids worshiping of statues and paintings. This way, I managed to make people build statues and create paintings of the Redeemer, according to my own instructions. By bowing down before a statue or a painting, they are doing exactly what He explicitly forbade, but precisely what I want. Not only do they worship the statues of so-called "Redeemer", I even inspired them to create statues and pictures of people who they themselves declared as saints. This is an even bigger insult to the Creator. In fact, this way they give me the opportunity to do something they have asked for, thus reassuring them that praying to statues is good. Can the Creator free them now? Of course He CAN NOT! Even His power has a limit. If a person prayed to a statue or a painting, or to anything or to anyone else beside the Creator, and if their “prayers” are heard by ME, when they were set free from their bondage (for instance — a disease that I have caused), I ask you: who can convince them that a dead saint does not exist anymore and that is still (spiritually) present? No one.

Apart from throwing out the Commandment about worshiping statues and paintings, I also have carefully changed the Commandment about the Day of Rest which the Creator devoted to the WHOLE mankind. I wanted to throw it out as well, but it would be too obvious, and that is why I worked hard since the days of the apostles in order to suppress this Commandment and to replace it with another one.

This is the delusion which I have planned out centuries before the Redeemer appeared. By studying the prophecies, I exactly knew the day when the Redeemer needs to resurrect Himself, if I do not succeed in destroying Him before it happens. That is why I made the most of the non-Jewish world to celebrate that very day (the day of the Redeemer’s resurrection) as the Day of Rest. In the Roman Empire, this day was dedicated to the God of Sun. To ME!

When the Redeemer resurrected, I gradually convinced the apostolic students to celebrate – in the honor of the Redeemer’s resurrection – that particular day, and so they have directly worshiped me. In fact, the Commandment about the Day of Rest is the only Commandment that speaks about the Creator Himself. That is why it was of great importance for me to change that particular Commandment. The image of the Creator of the Universe and of the Earth slowly faded away in the eyes of many so-called “Christians”, just as I wanted. I devalued this Commandment even more with the theory of evolution. Since one Commandment was now missing, I had to divide the Tenth one in two parts. So, in fact, that is how the majority of Christians keep those – MINE – Ten Commandments.

But, you must have noticed this by now and that is why you are now among those who obey the original Ten Commandments which the Creator gave to Moses on the Mount of Sinai. And you think that you are safe now...?

You pathetic fool... I will use these Commandments for your eternal destruction, instead of salvation.

The Bible warns you that knowledge may make a person arrogant. You have studied the Bible, you learnt about its Commandments, you gave up from a lot of things in order to keep the Commandments, and you now think that you finally are on the right path from which you can not stray... I have prepared a couple of surprises for you.

I do not mind that you keep all the ten Creator's Commandments. Moreover, I use them to make you arrogant, superior to those who do not keep the same Commandments. I take over your mind by convincing you that you have achieved the highest possible level that a Creator's child can reach. I assure you that it is the highest level that you need to keep yourself at and that you need to be very careful not to stray from it at any cost.

If you have carefully studied the Creator's Commandments, like you did not, you would realize that keeping all of the Ten Commandments requires absolutely no effort. Literally everyone can keep them without even the slightest effort. If you had understood this, you would ask yourself why the Creator gave such easy Commandments. Why did not He command that people DO something?

True, the Redeemer tried to explain to the wealthy young man how to gain the eternal life when he asked Him. The Redeemer told him to keep the Commandments. My disciple was thrilled when he heard that. But, the Redeemer then told him that the knowledge of this Law, which he so effortlessly kept, should result with a change of his character, in which he would become of use to those around him. The young man was clearly disappointed.

I tied him so much to the material goods, that he did not want to lose any of it. The poor idiot wanted to have both, but he did not know that it was unfeasable. The material wealth – which I allow people to have – is a very powerful tool that leads them to death. The Creator can hardly free them from my control. I would even dare to say that He CAN NOT do it.

If the Creator gave you the Commandments that would require certain action, you would obey them without knowing why you are doing it. That is why the Creator gave the Commandments that require no action, but the ones that change person's character, which – in harmony with His Law – encourage a person to be selfless. In other words, all the good things that you do, for which no one told you to do – if they have originated from the Creator’s Law – actually show Him the true motive of your faith in Him. But you humans are too superficial in your reasoning to properly understand this concept. You will only do what you are told to do, while believing that you are not obliged to do anything which was not commanded to you. But, to the Creator, this is the only important thing, because it shows Him how much you have let Him to change you.

As I said, I use that Law – which is given to you as advantage – to destroy you.

I hold you under tight control by using the Law itself. I assured you that man who loves the Creator only needs to obey the Ten Commandments. Since this is the cheapest possible “Christianity”, it is important for me to keep you strictly to the letter of the Law, encouraging you to ignore the biblical passages that speak about the most important indicator of true belonging to the Creator — brotherly love.

Due to your already devalued character, it is not hard for me to make you only formally faithful to the Creator. I will even bring you into a state where you will be able to listen and to read about brotherly love and devotion, while not trying to apply it on yourself. Through various truths and requests directed to you, you are just going to judge others, to condemn them, while, at the same time – due to your formal faithfulness – you will consider yourself just. Fortunately for me, you will rarely apply the Redeemer’s story – about the speck and log in the eye – on yourself. My goal is to create, with your help and help of those who are like you, a group of people who will strictly obey the Creator’s Law, while the greatest and true sign of recognition and unity in humility and love will perish almost completely.

How hard will I laugh when you stand in front of the Creator, confident in your salvation and righteousness because of your alleged “obedience” to Him, while you listen to the words that condemn you being spoken with sadness by the Creator.

I was always able to separate human spirituality from everyday life. In accordance with times and civilizations, I was more or less successful with it. In the old days, I even managed to persuade people to be murderers and thieves in their everyday lives, and then, afterwards, to freely pray to the Creator as the most righteous believers. Only I know how He looked at such prayers. He tried to explain them, through the Prophet Isaiah, how much such prayers are disgusting to Him, but it did not seem to have much influence on them.

Today, self-proclaimed believers may not be murderers and criminals, but it does not make much of a difference to the Creator. Today, they even enjoy pornography without a slightest guilt, they even commit adultery, and then they pray to the Creator as if nothing happened. But the more covert a sin is, the greater is one's spiritual hypocrisy. People will intrigue against each other, they will be dishonest, selfish and inconsiderate, arrogant and ruthless, cruel with little things, after which they will put their hands together in prayer to the Creator. I wish you could see how He turns His head away from such people.

I will make you believe that all you need to do – in order that you can show your faith in the Creator – is something big, while, at the same time, in the anticipation of such an opportunity, you will miss MANY smaller opportunities to do something good. The Creator pays a special attention to those little details. Life passes by, your enthusiasm for the Creator decreases, while your hypocrisy and formalism becomes even bigger by day.

Do you still think that you have found a safe haven in the faith? I purposely brought you here to make my victory even greater, and to make the Creator's pain and your destruction yet another reason of my special joy.

MISCONCEPTION

For thousands of years, I have managed to carefully hide the right concept of faith in the Creator, even from those who study the Bible.

You do not even realize how important it is to reconcile all the information that the Creator gave you about His character. I know it, and that is why I try to prevent it. And while – with some – I overemphasize the Creator’s Final Judgement and the destruction as well as His final showdown with sin, the fire with which He will destroy those who did not repent, thus inducing them to serve Him out of fear, I also overemphasize His mercy and love for mankind, which I use to make them be negligent toward life and sin, trusting that the Creator will overlook all of it.

The result of everything is a state in which His followers are. This particularly hurts the Creator. He saw what was going to happen and He tried to warn them (about what I am going to accomplish) by insisting on tepidity. But nothing can be done here.

And while in my church, believers “serve” the Creator out of fear, in your group the second concept – a careless attitude toward the Creator – is dominant. And why is that? Because you do not know His Word.

Since you do not read His Scriptures carefully, you essentially do NOT know anything about the Creator. Enthusiasm disappears, motivation as well, and without them — there is no spiritual progress. Without which you are, of course, ruined.

It is of the uttermost importance for me to keep you away from the Bible. It is abundant with new ideas that He wants to implement in you. What makes the Bible so special is the fact that, depending on various life circumstances, it opens up the entirely new dimension with each time you read the very same text. But you do not know this. You reckon if you have read it once or twice, that you know everything. Or is that just my suggestion? You have to know that I am near you every time you take it in your hands. I tell you that you already know everything, that there is no purpose to read already familiar verses, that everything has already been read — there are far more important things for you to do.

By preventing the new knowledge to reach you, I stop you from even considering the new decisions you ought to make. In fact, these new decisions allow you to grow spiritually and to reach the goal that has been set before you. And the goal is to build a character as strong as the One who died for you has. But I am there to present that goal as unattainable, as I do with the majority of goals that are set before you.

As you start looking at these goals as something unattainable, so will fade your enthusiasm to fulfill them. That is how I have taken away even the mere possibility of genuine change. You see, everything is connected. I just have to create one delusion and it will start dozens of others. I have the advantage of quickly realizing what the consequences of your life choices will be, unlike you. For example: you do not read the Bible... For you, it simply means that you do not read it. But, for me, this means the end of your spiritual growth, resulting in your eternal damnation. Do I have to tell you that in the story of the ten brides, all of them were waiting for the groom? Do I have to tell you that those crazy girls spent day after day without preparing for the wedding? It was not until they have heard that the One they are waiting for is coming, and then they have realized that they are not ready to meet Him, just as you will not be.

Fortunately, you do not even realize that your spiritual life is similar to a life of a plant. If it does not grow — it dies!

HUMAN RELATIONS

There is only ONE correct way for you to test your character and spirituality. Through human relations.

That is not too difficult to see, but it is one thing to talk about it, and completely another to actually do it. Especially if I am there to “help” you. There are two ways for me to stop you from developing your character as the Creator intended: alienation and hypocrisy. I am equally proud of both because they seem to achieve the same results. For man, these are two almost insurmountable obstacles to develop quality human relations. Making people alienated from each other is not particularly difficult because I have developed the foundation for this strategy long ago — selfishness!

Due to the life tempo I imposed on the modern man, making him selfish has never been easier. Long working days and leisure time with TV and Internet makes a perfect trap which stops people from being together.

Do you wonder why is this so important to me? Tell me, how can you know if a life habit of yours is a virtue or a vice? How will you know if you have developed a trait that you know you need to develop? How can you know if you overcame the weaknesses you knew you had? How can you use the virtues that you know you have? By reading? Surfing the Internet? Or by watching TV?

As I said, there is only one way to do it. By socializing and working with other people. Particularly with those who have similar lifestyle. Only in such circumstances you can clearly see how solid is your character and your spirituality. In your isolation from others, you can only believe that you are successfully building your character, but the true improvement can only be achieved through socializing and working with others.

That is why I am here to stop it. To distract you with your own habits, relaxation, pleasures. To separate you from the society which is the only true way to test your character and to achieve what the Angels and other heavenly beings have.

However, if the first trap fails, the other one surely will not. If you really want to build your character, I have prepared a much more complicated trap for you.

You can become polite, caring and dedicated to others if you let the Creator change you completely, in accordance with His Law, but you can also do it without Him. You can do all this because you know how it is done, not because it became an integral part of your character. This is hypocrisy. Not only will you behave hypocritically, but you will also criticize and teach others to be kind and self-sacrificing — like you are.

I will tell you something. If you behave like this, you are the only one who is assured that everything is fine, that you have passed the test of your own spirituality. The Creator, people around you and ME will clearly see your hypocrisy. The fact that only few people will draw your attention to that is, once again, my merit, because I have developed a prejudice that it is not nice to criticize anyone. It leads that people become reluctant to criticize anyone, in order to avoid conflicts and discomfort caused by criticizing. People do not know one thing. If you criticize someone, that will not change your relationship with that person. In fact, a well-intentioned criticism is a great way to know what people really think about you. If that person does not really like you, but is just hypocritically nice to you, reproaching him/her will only result in pique and a counter-critique. On the other hand, a well-intentioned criticism will make a person – who actually cares for you – think about his or her action, without any hard feelings. But, as you can see, a well-intentioned criticism – which is necessary for a normal spiritual development – has become so odious that almost no one uses it now.

But there is also another aspect to criticism. A critique that is purpose to itself. Criticism that does not offer a better solution. Criticism that belittles.

This is the reason why a well-intentioned criticism is so rare. It is easier to be malicious. It does not require love, care, nor it has to worry about the consequences. Not only will I prevent a well-intentioned critique to reach you, I will also make sure that you are praised for your hypocrisy and fake kindness.

The best way to keep you in your hypocrisy is to praise your behavior – as much as I can – through other people. The more people talk about your kindness, goodness and dedication, the more solid your hypocrisy will be. They surely will not tell you to review your character and to compare it with the one the Redeemer has.

I will even praise you through those who do not even know the Creator. And, instead of questioning on what criterias do they base their praises and measure your kindness, you will just believe that you became so spiritual that everyone notices it. But you forget that those who praise you do not mind what sin or weakness you have. For example: if you sometimes tell an ambiguous joke, watch a porn movie from time to time, flirt with your (fe)male friends, or dress provocatively, as long as you are kind, reliable, approachable, smiling and honest — it would not be a problem for them to consider you good and to praise you, in spite of your serious character flaws. They would still consider you good even if you do not read the Bible regularly.

And that is good enough to you. The testimony of others about your spirituality has a greater value to you than what the Creator – through His Law – wanted to make of you. You only care about that external indicator, about the visible. About the material. I, too, only care about that. As I said, this is the easiest way to keep you under my control. You do not care what the Creator thinks about you.

But if someone, who is really spiritual, would make a constructive criticism, it would not be too hard to prevent you from even considering that he/she might be right. Your confidence in your own righteousness and goodness (the result of the praises of those without the authority to do so), as well as your own arrogance, are my powerful allies against you.

Pride creates an indestructible obstacle. You will be seriously offended by a well-intentioned criticism, although you maybe will not show it. I will even help you with a couple of counter-arguments against the person who rightfully criticized you, so that you would not take his words into consideration. This potentially life-saving critique will be discarded. You will, of course, consider your outrage as justified. You will not even think of connecting your outrage with the pride that you are so full of.

Arrogance... The seed that encounters a very fertile ground in you humans... The greatest evil. The core of every evil. The very best way to fight it is explained in the Bible. It is not a problem for me to discover how you can overcome it. You are far too arrogant to even consider applying this strategy on yourself.

As I said, the arrogance is the foundation of your resentment. Who could even tell you that such a trait is not something that those – who are truly faithful to the Creator – have?

Resentment opposes the only trait the Creator can use to start building your character. Something that you will never have — humility.

You will believe that you have developed this trait, that you are indeed humble. I will make you believe in it by convincing you to do several things that require humility. You will even wash someone's feet, believing that it is the highest expression of your humility. But, what the Creator and ME will see, as well as those who love you, will not be humility, but hypocrisy. However, other people will not dare to tell you that.

So, what do you think I accomplish if I create religious communities that only have such selfish hypocrites? Brotherly love? Genuine closeness? A strive for common moments which will result in unity and organization in the spread of the Creator's truths?

I also accomplish that those few truly dedicated and spiritual individuals start losing their enthusiasm for anything religious.

And, instead of everything being as the Creator wanted it to be, everything IS quite the opposite. Instead of gathering people who are willing to help others as He did, His community will be full of those who only expect to receive something for free, without giving anything in return. But yes, they will help — with their criticism. I am tempted to reveal you one of my biggest secrets... Well, what is the worst thing that could happen? After all, it is just you — a creature incapable of understanding the depth and the importance of all the things it reads here. You will soon forget it anyway. It may seem unimportant to you, but you do not even realize how powerful this tool is in my hands.

I mentioned criticism, but my secret is that criticism is not just occasional and vicious animadversion, but it can become your attitude toward life. In other words, I will make you see a negative side in everything.

Such attitude permanently disables you from influencing others the way the Creator would want you to do. Instead of radiating with appealing joy, I will just nourish the bitterness inside of you. The bitterness will slowly corrode you from the inside and you will only see the negative side, even in the most beautiful and the most joyous things in life. You will start hating people because of their flaws. They will also hate you. I have to tell you that you will not easily become free from these bonds, because you will always have an excuse for every single objection, while staying completely fair in your arrogant and hypocritical mind. For these reasons, your life attitude will remain the same. But, fear not. You are not alone. You were just unfortunate enough to find this out. And to live with it from now on.

It is not so interesting when I manage to enroot the traits such as selfishness, envy, jealousy, ruthlessness, arrogance or hypocrisy in those who do not know the Creator nor did they ever heard of Him. But, when all these traits become a part of a person who claims that he is faithful to the Creator — it is what I consider a great success.

I have managed to make these negative traits to become a necessary defense mechanism for survival in the society. Everyone, to some extent, should have them. Complete selflessness and complete sacrifice will never be a goal that you will achieve, because I will always be near you to provide you with excuses why you should not be like that.

If you could just see the reality that you can not see at this very moment, you would realize why your Redeemer could live in such a way which He set as an example. You would also see whence the Apostles and other faithful men and women received their strength to remain in their selflessness and self-sacrifice until their death — which I have made very painful. They saw what you only vaguely realize when reading the Bible. You could become like them, if you wanted to. They knew that what they can not see is actually the TRUE reality, whereas what they saw and lived through, was just a small and insignificant part of the eternity. An insignificant period of time, but of a great importance when it comes to decisions that can be made during it. Decisions that I will help you NOT TO MAKE.

THE IMMINENT END

I hope that you now understand the most important principles I use to successfully destroy the mankind, and to destroy you along the way. The more detailed description, except that it would take a lot more pages, it would also significantly reduce my area of action, and I certainly do not want that to happen. I want to destroy you, did you forget about that? I want to destroy you, now when you are able to resist me. To destroy you, while I watch you as you consciously and decisively turn your back to everything the Creator did for you.

One of the reasons why I am so confident that I will succeed, when it comes to you – who believes that knows almost everything – is the fact that I have managed to distract your attention from what the Creator said about the Redeemer's soon arrival.

I was able to convince most of people that descriptions of the Old Testament rites are useless. Who even cares about the meaning of lambs, goats, candlesticks, the altar, the holidays...? Who even cares to compare them with the Redeemer's service while He was on Earth? Who even thinks about the Moses's Tent in the desert, Solomon's Temple, the Temple from Ezekiel's vision and the symbolism of the rooms, objects and services in them? Only a very few people. If you have read the Bible carefully, then you are familiar with all of it. I could not completely hide the truth about the Final Judgment, but most of Christians take it for granted. Since this world – as it is – will end when the Redeemer returns, the fact that some people will be saved, while the rest of them will be destroyed is a well-known one. But it can not be done without the prior judgement.

But the Creator – apart from wanting you to know everything about His love and sacrifice for you – also wants that you be fully aware of the reality that is taking place right NOW. It is in my best interest to prevent you from knowing it and thinking about it, because it might encourage you to stay close to the Creator. I already saw that His love for you is not necessarily a sufficient motivation. Over centuries, I have made people selfish, insensitive, ungrateful and inconsiderate. I have created a huge gap between the heavenly character – the kind of character you are supposed to achieve through the unity with the Creator – and the character you have now. Thinking about the Judgment could encourage you to achieve this, but I have a couple of techniques which I use to divert your thoughts to other – seemingly noble, but essentially useless – things.

If you would carefully study the Old Testament services, symbols that represent the reality of man's redemption, you would understand the Creator's plan of salvation. Also, if you carefully read the prophecies, follow the events which are happening around you, sincerely seek His help to understand everything you see, you could determine with a great precision in what stage the world is NOW. But I can offer you so much in order to divert you thoughts from such things. I will assure you that studying the services and the symbolism would be a waste of time since everything has already been explained. I will preoccupy your mind with pleasing yourself with the transient and – from the Creator's perspective – completely useless earthly things.

And the end will come. And you will – if you stay alive until then – be very surprised, and – thanks to me – completely unprepared. On the other hand, if the Redeemer does not return during your lifetime, you will be resurrected, without knowing that one resurrection has already happened. And the one who will stand right beside you will be ME — the most beautiful being you have ever seen. I will tell you that I am the Redeemer and that there has been a slight change in the Salvation Plan, and that I need your help now. Do you think that you will be able to tell me that I am not your redeemer? Your whole life I taught you that evil is ugly. All the bad guys, whether in books, movies or games, are all – without exception – UGLY.

Do you think that you – being brought up on such prejudices – will be able to tell to the most beautiful creature you have EVER seen: »You are the Devil from Hell«? Even if you knew a lot about me? No, you will not! You will follow me, confidently. You will come with me to the walls of the New Jerusalem, where you will reward me with the expression of your ugly face when you realize that you are going to be destroyed for all eternity. And I will enjoy watching you and the billions of others who were, more or less, on my side. And what for? For some miserable, temporary and apparent advantages which I offered them in order to leave the One who loved them the MOST.

I will also watch His face. I will enjoy watching the pain on His face when He is going to be forced to destroy all of you, because YOU chose so, and that He would give literally eternal and perfect life to those who chose Him.

You think that this does not apply on you because you now know all of this? But let me ask you a question: do you REALLY think I would tell you all of this if I did not know a way to still win you over to myself?

What you do not know is that even now, when you are among religious people, you are being influenced by many misconceptions about the end of the world and about the Redeemer's return I have introduced earlier. You expect certain events to happen, that there once again will be banishments, exile, passing of some laws which will oppose the Creator's Law, and on which basis you will be persecuted...?

You shallow and stupid fool! Why would I do that? My experience has shown me that whenever I have tried to use the brute force against the believers in the Creator, they would always become closer, bounded with each other and with Him. Instead of destroying them, I only made the Creator's people stronger and greater. Unlike man, I learn from my mistakes. I destroy the Creator's followers through tolerance and human rights.

You can be free, you can meet, you can talk, you can study. You can revive your spirituality. The time of peace combined with the technological advances is the best method in my fight against the Creator's efforts to spread His Word across the globe.

With all the misconceptions I have imposed on His people, with all the traits that I have managed to downgrade His nation with, by misrepresenting the terms such as »Conversion« and »Consecration«.

You do not learn from the past, and that gives me a significant advantage. You expect the Creator to fill you with His power so that all of you could unite and continue to do what He started. However, you have overlooked the most important thing. Such expectations are not in line with what He did throughout history. He blessed with His power those who gathered around His Word, constantly. He would reward those who really did something, encouraged by what He has done for them.

You are now far from doing that standard.

It seems that the Creator will again have to resort to some radical measures to try to save some of you from me. Up to that point, I will continue to destroy you with peace and welfare, encouraging false spirituality and developing your confidence in your own salvation.

Do you think that you should feel dissatisfaction for any area of your life? One that will encourage you to further grow and bond with the Creator? There are NO such areas. I will make you completely satisfied with everything in your life, so that you do not feel the need to change anything. Better yet, you will attribute it to the Creator's blessings due to your faithfulness to Him. Your wealth, your external peace, the realization of your plans... While, in fact, you will be MINE.

Desperate? You should be...

PROMOTING THE TRUTH

Fortunately for me, there are very few people who really know in what time they are living now. But they are too weak to spread the Creator's truths. In the beginning, I had very little success in preventing the spreading of the Creator's truths, but now, things are much more different. After the Redeemer's resurrection, the news of this was spread across the world. In the same manner, the biggest news now should be about the Judgement which is currently in the process, about the Redeemer's return and the preparation of mankind for the upcoming events. But I managed to reduce all of it to almost insignificant attempts. Since a really long time has passed from the Redeemer's promises, even those who are most zealous get discouraged in their efforts to promote the Creator's Word. I was even able to discourage the greatest men, such as John the Baptist and John the Apostle. I especially try to inform those who are the most zealous about the true state in which the world is now. And, the fact is that I have the upper hand and that no one can take that away from me. Evil triumphs over Good, hatred triumphs over love, selfishness triumphs over sacrifice, hypocrisy triumphs over the real piety. And, apart from discouraging you, I make you question the Bible and wonder is it just a result of someone's wild imagination, a cry of the human race to find the satisfaction of its needs, aspirations and hopes...

But I do not stop there. Apart from creating such a state in the majority of modern human population, I ensured that even those who will – sooner or later – meet with the Bible, thus to clearly learn about the Creator's efforts to save the world, previously be completely misguided, or, at the very least, slowed down in their efforts to find the truth. Moreover, I offer them seemingly “solid” and “irrefutable” evidences against the Bible and everything that it says.

I realized that it would be the best if I offer a relief of moral responsibility that you, as a truly religious individual, should promote through your way of living, to all the people around you. And now you are aware of what you need to promote. But, thanks to your inactivity and being lukewarm, you allow me to prepare everything that makes your job as difficult as possible.

Hence, you need to promote the Creator's principles of life with your own lifestyle. But I already beat you to it. I created books that question everything written in the Creator's Word. I devalued the Creator Himself, and particularly His Son and His efforts to reach you. In this way, I offered an alternative to people: you will be responsible to no one, no one will judge you, no one will come, no one will end the world in the state it is now, the Creator's Word does not affect you because it is written under unidentified conditions and it has been influenced by various people who changed it as they deemed fit.

People who read such books will become almost completely uninterested for every single new discovery related to the Bible. Thanks to the advertising and propaganda that accompany these books, a lot of people read them. If you try to talk to those people about biblical truths, they will provide you with the alleged "evidences" against the Bible and its credibility.

These people completely trust these books, making it almost impossible to talk about the events that the Bible predicts. Many people do not like reading – I know – and that is why I create movies based on these books.

Remember the tactic? Famous actors and likable, credible acting, "hard" evidences — and my opinion become yours. It does not matter that the arguments suggested by these books or movies have been debunked long ago. Only few people continue to study these topics after reading a book of this kind. Their minds are already polluted with everything these books say. Tell me, what are your chances of pointing out to the true reality of the Redeemer's return, after I have proved that the only source which speaks about this and similar events is unreliable? Only few people will realize the truth about this superior manipulation. The real sites and the real historical facts combined with fictional characters, plot and false historical data make such stories seem logical and true to ignorant and careless reader. Lies, with some truths in them, seem as real as the truth itself.

In addition, I made sure that various misconceptions are presented as evidences against the Bible. I carefully kept various “gospels” hidden until now. Discovered recently, they seem credible due to their old age. But, people are forgetting one thing: the situation was similar two thousand years ago. I have also inspired people to speak and write against the Creator’s Word and His people in those days. They also do not realize that, if something is really old, it does not necessarily has to be true...

But this is far from over. Through highly educated and authoritative scientists, atheism is being more and more developed. To an average person, all their evidences seem irrefutable. Few are those who will think about how little do you, people, actually know about the world around you. From a wide range of sounds, you can only hear a tiny fraction. From a wide range of colors, you see only a small part of the spectrum. From a great range of radiation, you only feel an insignificant part of it. You are an insignificant part of the Universe, trapped inside your miserable three-dimensional world. Your limited mind does not even begin to comprehend what mysteries of the Universe the Creator hides from you at THIS very moment.

But, an average reader will not even consider such things. He will accept the arguments that these scientists offer, reckoning that, at least, they – with their super-modern technology – have to know something about the origin of Space and the Creator’s existence or non-existence.

And that is how I am arming a large population, who wants to look and sound educated and clever, with their limited scientific evidences, while blinding them not to see the REAL truths all around them.

And THESE are the people to who you need to tell the truth about the Creator revealed in the Bible. People who know the Bible in the light that I presented it in. How successful do you think you will be?

Do you think that you will not get discouraged? Do you think that you can be so close to the Creator that you become resistant to the discouragement I throw at you? You would need to have COMPLETE trust in the Creator for that not to happen. But you are just a man. A man who realizes that he can not be fully committed to Creator. Is not that so?

I am completely sure in this, because I have very reliable ways of distancing you seamlessly from the Creator. These ways are so effective that even when you are aware that you are doing something wrong, when you know what you should not be doing and what the consequences of such a doings are, you will still continue to sin, without realizing that I am building a solid wall of prejudices and habits behind you. This wall will not allow you to return to the Creator. Distancing from the Creator is a one-way journey.

Everything is ready. Unlike you people, I know EXACTLY what is going to happen in the last times. You would know it too, if you had carefully and assiduously studied the Book of Revelation and the Book of Daniel, allowing the Creator to fully reveal their messages to you, by abandoning the things which are preventing Him to do so.

But, on the other side, I am completely ready for the final events. All institutions – religious and secular – in one way or another, are under MY control. I am just waiting for the Creator to make the first open move which will start the final events.

Have you heard stories about Hell? Of course you have. I invented them and I made sure they reach you. But such a hell is something harmless compared to what is going to happen soon. I will enjoy watching the faces of those who will finally realize that everything written in the Bible was true and that they should have stick to it. Agony that you are about to experience will be unlike anything anyone has experienced before, all the more because everyone will be aware that he or she chose it willingly. I will especially enjoy the torturing of those who were aware of my existence and actions — as you are NOW.

Will I tell you about these final events? Of course not. I have prepared many prejudices and scenarios which will distract you from the events around you, indicating that the end of THIS world is nigh. And all of it in order to make you completely frivolous, relaxed, carefree and completely unprepared for these events.

MINE OR THE CREATOR'S?

There is no third option. There is no middle and no one can be neutral or undecided. You are either with me or you are with the Creator. Simply put, anyone who is not in the union with the Creator, belongs to me. And only to me. Whether it is someone who does not care for the Creator or the one who does not serve Him in the manner He intended, or the one who openly serves to me. All of them are on MY side.

Yes, some people openly and knowingly serve to me, believing that I will protect them in such a way. There is also a group of people who proudly bow down to me and they call themselves Satanists, Luciferians or demon worshipers. It is a very secret society. Would you be surprised if I tell you that some of the most powerful, influential and wealthiest people on Earth are the members of these secret groups? They know MUCH less about me than you do now. I lead many of them through life, allowing them to live in luxury, power and success, while, at the same time, I literally despise them for what they were willing to do. But their success is a lure for many others, and I use it to trap them in darkness and to separate them from the Creator for eternity.

These pathetic and miserable individuals are completely under my control. The Creator has no possibility to influence them, not because He can not or does not want to do that, but because they showed they do not want that, since I have completely overtook their minds. I keep them under my control by telling them lies about my final victory and how they will become some sort of superior beings one day. They do not even suspect that they will – in a very near time – disappear forever together with me. Intoxicated with success and wealth, they do not even question my words. They do not get discouraged even when I kill some of them in the most egregious ways, just for the sake of my own pleasure.

But there were always a lot of people who served me in a less open ways. Magicians, sorcerers... Then the people who you call Wizards and Witches who performed the black arts. Whether they are those who foretell the future from the cards, stars, bowels or anything else — all of them are, more or less, under my control. Using the false healers and so-called “exorcists”, I easily trap people in my web.

I successfully use the human tendency to follow authorities, by making man – whose lifestyle offends the Creator – capable of banishing ghosts and healing. In reality, I am the one who answers their pathetic attempts of prayers or rites by releasing the grip I hold on the person obsessed or sickened. This is particularly useful because those who have witnessed these supernatural events conclude that it must be the work of the Creator. That it is good to follow the healer, his beliefs and his way of life. They are convinced that it is the right thing to do. And it is the right thing. But for ME.

Of course, there are many charlatans and impostors who do not even know what they are doing, but a lot of them do know and, with my help, they really can do something that you people find unexplainable.

I pay a special attention to the spiritualist séances. Thanks to the misconception I created a long time ago – that the human soul is immortal – people believe that they really can talk with their loved ones who are not among the living any longer. Mimicking the voices of the dead, moving the objects, mentioning the most intimate events, no one can see through this hoax. Most of the people go insane after a while, because the human mind is not capable of withstanding the pressure we put it through. Only few of those who witness these sessions manage to escape me. They simply cross the line after which there is no going back.

I will soon start with a more spectacular deceptions that will deceive and confuse a vast majority of people. The prejudices needed for the implementation of my plan are already deeply rooted in the society. I will not tell you too much about it. That would be just plain stupid. But here are some hints: the appearances of the dead, aliens, healers, false Messiahs...

...Maybe I can tell you briefly a little more, since I am going to deceive you anyway: I intend to ruin the Creator’s doctrine about the mortality of the soul with the alleged appearances of the deceased, thus preparing the greatest and the most influential traps that I will use to deceive the mankind. Creating prejudices and popularizing the questions about aliens, I will ruin everything related to the Creator’s work in the Universe, and particularly to His influence on life on this planet. One single alien can make the Bible completely worthless. And aliens will appear. Very soon. At least you will believe so.

A false return of the Redeemer is something I keep for the very end. For those who will not be fooled by anything else. For those who will ignore the Redeemer's advice not to go near.

All these traps will be VERY compelling, obvious, tangible, attractive, indubitable, just as is a piece of cheese placed on the mousetrap for a mouse. And then, many will fall into that trap...

No one will escape me. Well, almost no one. My final efforts will be directed against the most determined followers of the Creator, in the true sense of these words. Against those who will not be affected by any of my traps. I will put all my efforts in it. Because of what I have prepared for you, most of you will be completely deceived and drawn to my side. You might call it a Super-Deception. Many believe that something like that has to be global. They, of course, think so, because I want them to believe so. They do not ask themselves what kind of deception could deceive so many people. Something like that can not exist nor it can be created, because people are very different.

The Super-Deception is based on the fact that I have prepared a mixture of traps and deceptions for EVERY person on Earth — a combination that is irresistible just to them personally. Such a deception is not too hard to come up, because I carefully study every single person from the day of their birth. Every weakness, every flaw, every sinful inclination of yours is my strong starting point for the Super-Deception. All these points are stimulated and, at the same time, they are a very reliable and a sure way to deceive and ruin even many of those who are the most loyal followers of the Creator. And THAT is exactly what I keep for the end.

The things – for which you thought that were your strongest support – will collapse, disappointments will come from the places you have least expected. Things you thought that could never happen — will happen. I will take EVERYTHING away from you. You will only be left with your belief in what was written in the Bible. Belief in the promises about the Creator and the Redeemer, and, if you were wise, priceless experiences you have gained with Them so far.

And believe me that I will do my best to make you forget about the Bible, because of everything that will be happening to you. I will convince you that your experiences with Them are just your imagination.

You will be driven to the very limits of the human trust — you will believe in something I made apparently tangible, clear and irrefutable, or you will believe in something that someone promised two thousand years ago.

Apparently tangible facts and tremendous pressure through my suggestions will face your confidence in something that someone once wrote...

I can already tell that you will not be able to withstand it. Few are those who were able to do it. Almost nothing compared to the ones I have broken. Can you follow the example of those I did not manage to seduce? You could, if you wanted to. But you will not. I can tell that by the fact that I have already beat you so many times. I control almost every aspect of your life. And it gives me a special kind of pleasure: the fact that you know, but you can not do anything about it.

Now you know who I am. You are familiar with the ways in which I act, and – most importantly – you know how to escape me, even in your miserable and pathetic state.

Do you know how hunters hunt monkeys? They put an orange in a small cage. The cage has a round hole smaller than the orange. When the monkey tries to take the orange, his hand gets stuck. He could just let go of the orange and walk away, but he does not want to drop the orange, even when he sees the hunters approaching. Frantically screaming, he still tries to take the orange from the cage. In the end, the hunters have to take the orange from his hand in order to separate him from the cage.

And that is why I am sure that you CAN NOT escape me. You are just like the above mentioned monkey. You know it all, you see it all, but you simply do not want to let go of the orange.

And now – at the end of this book – the question remains: can the Father of Lies tell the truth? If you are smart enough, and if you have understood anything from what you have read in this book, the answer is obvious. If not, I am going to tell you:

I can! Providing that the truth becomes even more dangerous than lies.

As it is in your case.

See you soon!

“THEN YOU WILL NOW THE TRUTH, AND THE TRUTH WILL SET YOU FREE.”

– The Gospel According to John, 8:32.

Actually, it would be more precise to say that it has the power to do so...

But the Truth is not all-powerful.

Between knowing the Truth and liberation through it, lays an insurmountable obstacle for you.

Your ego!

Regardless of your beliefs, all this time you are following the path that leads to doom.

Why don't I just leave you there?

Because you might prove yourself
as a challenge for me.

I'm about to reveal the Truth which I've kept carefully concealed until now. The Truth that can set you free from my grasp.

But you will not want to do that.

So you will allow me to achieve the greatest possible victory. Double victory.

Over you... ...and over the Creator.
